RESOLUTION.

TARIFFS.

Simla, the 22nd June 1935.

No. 458-T. (14).—In response to the representations of certain glass manufacturers in India the Government of India in their resolution in the Department of Commerce No. 458-T. (2), dated the 20th October 1931, referred to the Tariff Board for examination the claim of the indigenous Glass Industry for protection. The terms of reference directed that the Tariff Board should be guided by the principles laid down in the resolution adopted by the Legislative Assembly on February 16, 1923, and that it should consider—

(1) Whether the conditions laid down in the Report of the Indian Fiscal Commission were satisfied in the case of the industry and to what extent, if any, and in respect of what articles or class or description of articles protection should be afforded;

(2) In what form and for what period protection, if any, should be given; and

(3) How its recommendations, if any, would affect other industries.

2. The Report of the Tariff Board, which is published to-day for general information, shows that the Glass Industry has a wide geographical distribution in India and that there are as marked differences in the nature of its products and in the methods of their manufacture as in its location. But whatever differences may exist in these respects, the Report makes it clear that all branches of the industry have a common need for the same raw materials. In Chapter II of its Report the Board, in accordance with its terms of reference, has investigated the natural advantages possessed by the industry with a view to determining whether it satisfies the first condition prescribed by the Indian Fiscal Commission and in particular it has examined the resources of the industry in respect of raw materials. Of these by far the two most important are silica and soda ash, and while the Board is of opinion that ample supplies of the former in the form of sand of sufficiently good quality are available, it has found that satisfactory sources of soda ash are not yet in existence in India and that the industry is dependent on imported supplies. The Board does not, however, consider that this fact in itself invalidates the claim for protection and it finds that the first of the conditions prescribed by the Fiscal Commission is satisfied.

3. The Government of India regret that they are unable to accept this finding. They are of the opinion that the absence of indigenous supplies of a raw material which in the United Provinces, where the Glass Industry is to a great extent concentrated, represents 70—75 per cent. of the total cost of materials and which even at ports of entry represents 30—45 per cent. of that cost, constitutes a disadvantage to the industry which cannot possibly be balanced by any advantages which it possesses in other respects. The Government of India are unable to distinguish the present case from that of the manufacture of electric wires and cables in which the Tariff Board itself held that the absence of indigenous supplies of copper was a fatal obstacle to the grant of protection.

4. At the time when its Report was written, however, the Tariff Board expressed the opinion that supplies of soda ash would in the immediate future be available in this country. The Government of India were therefore reluctant to reject the claim of the industry for protection until it had been ascertained whether or not the anticipations of the Board were likely to be fulfilled. Enquiry has, however, shown that the Board was unduly optimistic and that no adequate source of Indian soda ash has yet been developed. It is possible, however, that a fresh source of supply may be available within the next few years at Khewra and the Government of India do not propose to take a final decision on the claim for protection until the possibilities of this new source have been more fully explored.

5. There are a number of other matters in respect of which the Government of India are unable to accept the Tariff Board's conclusions, but as they do not propose to take a final decision at present, it is unnecessary to discuss these now. In the meantime, until such final decision can be taken, the Government of India have decided to afford the glass manufacturing industry certain measure of relief by way of rebate of the duty on imported soda ash. The proposed procedure for granting this rebate is as follows:—

When a Collector of Customs is satisfied that any consignment or part of a consignment of soda ash imported at his port has been supplied, after the date of this Resolution, to a glass manufacturer for use, within a reasonable period, in the manufacture of glass, he will on the request of the importer pay to the glass manufacturer a refund of the entire duty in the case of soda ash of British or colonial origin and of the excess over 10 per cent. ad valorem in the case of other soda ash. The refund will be paid by cheque to the manufacturer or his authorised agent.

This concession will continue for three years at the end of which period, if it appears that a prima facie case for protection then exists, a further reference will be made to the Tariff Board.

3. We consider that the Bill has been so altered as to require republication.

4. The changes made in the Bill are as follows :—

Preamble.—We have modified the preamble to give greater emphasis to the real purpose of the Bill, viz : to provide for the development of lands in Bengal, the levy merely being a means by which that purpose is to be fulfilled.

Clause 2.—We have inserted a definition of "agricultural lands" in clause 2 (a1) to include lands used for the purpose of growing vegetables and the like.

We have substituted "notified area" for "benefited area" throughout the Bill, as being more appropriate. The definition of benefited area has therefore been omitted. The definition of the new phrase "notified area" has been provided for in clause 2 (5a).

We have made a slight emendation in the definition of Collector in clause 2 (2).

We have revised the definition of "improvement work" in clause 2 (4) to make it clear that it includes works of improvement constructed before the commencement of the Act.

We have inserted a definition of "notified area" consequential on the substitution of this phrase for "benefited area."

The alteration in the definition of "period of objection" in clause 2 (6) is, in part, consequential. It has also been simplified.

Clause 3.—The changes in this clause are consequential upon the revised definition of improvement work in clause 2 (4).

Clause 4.—We have revised clause 4 (a) to provide for the giving of as full a description as practicable of an improvement work in the notification to be published under clause 3.

Clause 5.—We have simplified the provisions of this clause, and have modified sub-clauses (1) and (3) to make the intention clearer. We have also omitted the words "and such declaration shall be final and shall not be questioned in any court or in any other manner whatsoever", in sub-clause (1), as unnecessary.

Clause 5 (2) (b) has been reproduced in new clause 5A.

Clause 5A.—The first part of this clause takes the place of clause 5 (2) (b) of the Bill as introduced, but we have provided that the Local Government shall only impose the improvement levy when it is satisfied that the notified area has benefited from the improvement work.

We have inserted an important proviso requiring that, before an improvement levy is imposed, the proposal shall have the recommendation of the Legislative Council.

Clause 5B.—We consider that in so far as it may be decided upon to impose an improvement levy in respect of the Damodar and Bakreswar canals, to which an indirect reference is made in the statement of objects and reasons, this should be provided for specifically in the Bill by proposed clause 5B instead of waiting for a resolution to be passed under clause 5A.

Clause 6.—In sub-clause (1), we have made it clear that the officer appointed to prepare the estimate under this sub-clause shall hear any objections that may be submitted to him.

We have also altered the proviso to make it clear that an estimate may be made on the assumption that the land has produced or will produce crops other than the staple crop.

We have redrafted clause 6 (2) to provide for the publication of estimates by the Board of Revenue and for consideration of objections and suggestions to the estimates by the Board. Thereafter the Local Government may reject the estimate or may, by notification, accept it with or without modification.

By clause 6 (3) we have provided for the revision of the estimate in certain cases.

Clause 7.—We have simplified the provisions of this clause and reduced the period for which the price may be fixed from 10 to 5 years.

Clause 8.—We have entirely recast this clause which deals with the incidence of improvement levy on agricultural lands.

Clause 8A.—We have inserted this new clause because we think that it will be impossible to prevent increased salami from being realised by landlords or raiyats where land benefited by improvement work is settled or resettled by them after the imposition of an improvement levy and that provision should be made for a part of the increase in the amount of salami obtainable by such landlords or raiyats being paid as improvement levy.

This decision was reached by a majority of non-official members, and the official members abstained from taking part in the voting.

Clause 9.—This clause reproduces, with verbal alterations, the substance of clause 9 (1) of the Bill as introduced which lays down the maximum limit of the levy which may be imposed on non-agricultural lands included within a notified area.

Clause 9A.—This clause reproduces, with slight verbal alteration, sub-clauses (a) and (b) of clause 9 (2) of the Bill as introduced.

Clause 9AA.—In this clause we have made provision for the determination by the Collector—

(i) of the amount of levy payable for non-agricultural lands, and (ii) of its manner of payment—

(a) in the case of increased capital profit in one lump sum, and

(b) in case of increased recurring profit, at an annual rate.

In sub-clause (2) of clause 9AA we have provided that no improvement levy shall be imposed unless the amount has been determined by the Collector within ten years from the date of the completion of the improvement work.

Clause 9B.—We have made provision by this clause for the payment by instalments of an improvement levy assessed in one sum under sub-clause (a) of clause 9AA and for recovery of arrears with interest.

Clause 9C entitles a person liable to pay an improvement levy at an annual rate under clause (b) of sub-clause (1) of clause 9AA to commute his liability on agreed terms. It follows in the main the wording of clause 9(e) of the Bill as introduced.

Clause 9D is new and makes specific provision for the publication of the date of the completion of an improvement work: it is necessitated by clause 9AA (2).

Clause 10.—The changes are either consequential or of a drafting character to make the intention clearer.

Clause 10A.—This clause is new and provides for the issue of a notice of demand on every person liable to pay an improvement levy by which we ensure that information is given to each person of his liability, before the stage is reached when he should, if he so desires, appeal.

Clause 10B.—This reproduces with modifications the provisions of clause 13 of the Bill as introduced. But it allows revision by the Collector at this stage and it also provides for the re-publication of the statement prepared under section 10 before the presumption of correctness is attached to it.

Clauses 11 and 11A.—We have reproduced the provisions about appeals in clauses 11 and 11A with certain important modifications as follows:—

Clause 11, as revised, provides for appeals as regards agricultural lands while clause 11A deals with those in connection with non-agricultural lands.

It will be noticed that instead of leaving the appellate authority to be prescribed by rules, as in the Bill as introduced, we have specifically mentioned the authorities to whom appeals will lie in all cases.

In the case of clause 11A, the majority of non-official members (the official members abstaining from taking part in the voting) were desirous of inserting a provision that the High Court be empowered to interfere in regard to appeals, but it was pointed out that such a provision would be ultra vires in an Act of the Local Legislature whereupon the members urged that mention should be made in the report that the Government of India be asked to introduce a Bill in the Indian Legislature containing provisions similar to those of the Calcutta Improvement (Appeals) Act, 1911 (XVIII of 1911) conferring the necessary powers on the High Court.

Clause 13.—We have omitted this clause and have provided in new clause 10B for the re-publication of the statement prepared under section 10 before the presumption of correctness is attached to it.

Clause 14.—The changes made in clause 14 are consequential.

Clause 16.—The changes made in sub-clause (1) are consequential.

Sub-clause (2) has been revised to provide for payment of interest on arrears of improvement levy at a rate not exceeding $6\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. per annum. The reference to the Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act in the sub-clause as introduced has been omitted as unnecessary. We have omitted sub-clauses (3) to (5) of clause 16 in the Bill as introduced, and have provided a new clause 16A on the lines of section 82 of Ben. Act III of 1876 dealing with the power of the Collector to contract with any person for collection of the improvement levy.

Clause 16A.—This is in substitution of sub-clauses (3) to (5) of clause 16 referred to above.

Clause 16B.—This clause is new and provides for refund of the improvement levy in those cases in which it is subsequently found to be not payable.

Clause 17.—The reference to costs has been omitted from this clause as being unnecessary in view of the provisions of new clause 29A.

Clause 18.—We have removed certain restrictions from this clause so as to make it of more general application and more useful for the purposes of the inquiries contemplated.

Clause 19A.—We have re-numbered sub-clause (3) of clause 19 as a separate clause 19A as this provision is of a more general application.

Clause 19B.—In sub-clause (1) we have provided that no person who pays an improvement levy under the Bill shall be liable to pay any rates, dues or charges to the Government under any other Act in return for any benefit derived from such improvement work.

In sub-clause (2) we have made provision for those cases in which there are existing agreements under the Bengal Irrigation Act, 1876.

Clause 20.—The changes are purely consequential. We have also corrected the reference to the Bengal Irrigation Act, 1876, from section "75" to "74".

Clause 21.—We have slightly modified this clause in order to bring out the intention more clearly.

Clauses 22 and 23. - The changes are of a purely drafting character.

Clause 24.—In sub-clause (2), we have made it clear that the application of the clause is restricted to artificial obstructions.

We have omitted the reference to costs of the hearing as unnecessary.

Sub-clause (4) has been revised by reducing the penalties. The other changes in this sub-clause are merely verbal.

We have omitted sub-clause (5).

Clause 26.—We have revised this clause so as to prevent claims to compensation for damages caused by the revival of dead or decayed rivers.

We have omitted sub-clause (a), and have provided that such cases of injury, damages or loss should be governed by clause 27.

Clause 27.—We have altered sub-clause (1), of this clause and have provided that persons suffering loss in the circumstances mentioned shall not be entitled to any compensation under any other law, but may apply to the Collector for such compensation as may be granted under the provisions of the Bill.

Sub-clause (2) has been reproduced in clause 31B.

Clause 28.—This clause has been recast.

Under sub-clause (2) the award of compensation by the Collector will be regulated by rules. As apportionment disputes cannot suitably be decided by the Collector provision has been made in sub-clause (3) for the reference of such disputes to the Court. Court has been defined as in the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

Clause 29 has been revised to provide specifically for appeals to the Commissioner of the Division subject to revision by the Board of Revenue, and not to an authority to be prescribed by rules as in clause 29 of the Bill as introduced.

Clause 29A.—This clause provides for the award of costs in appellate and revisional proceedings and for the recovery of the same—Cf. sub-clause (2) of original clause 11. The reference to costs in clause 17 has accordingly been omitted.

Clause 30.—We have entirely re-cast sub-clauses (b) and (c) of this clause dealing with the question of the restriction on the enhancement of rent in regard to lands settled after the imposition of an improvement levy, in order to make the intention of the provisions more clear, and we have added a provision to prevent contracts for the evasion of these restrictions by commuting rents for lump payments.

Clause 31.—We have simplified this clause so as to make it of general application.

Clause 31A.—This clause is new. We consider this saving clause to be necessary. It is based on section 34 of Ben. Act VI of 1920.

Clause 31B.—This provision reproduces with slight modifications sub-clause (2) of clause 27 of the Bill as introduced which dealt with the bar to suits for compensation.

Clause 33.—The changes are purely consequential on the emendations made in the respective clauses of the Bill under which rules are to be framed.

The Committee, by the decision of a majority of the non-official members, decided that mention should be made in this report of a proposal which emanated from a member to insert a provision in the Bill to the following effect:—

"30A. In a benefited area as defined by this Act a raiyat having a right of occupancy shall be entitled upon payment to his immediate landlord of an amount equivalent to two years' rent as salami to acquire the rights of a raiyat at a fixed rate of rent."

The Committee desire to add that as the matter was of such outstanding importance they felt that, without specific instructions, it would be better, instead of coming to a decision as to the insertion, or otherwise, of such a provision in the Bill as reported on by them, to leave the matter to be dealt with in open Council should any member desire to raise the question by the moving of an amendment on the floor of the House under the provisions of the Rules and Standing Orders.

The Committee recommend that the Bill, as reported on by them, be passed.

Minute of dissent by Mr. Narendra Kumar Basu, M.L.C.

Clause 5B.—I am not in favour of making the provisions of the Bill retrospective.

Clause 24.—There ought to be a provision for the payment of the costs of the modification in suitable cases.

Minute of dissent by Mr. Sarat Kumar Roy, M.L.C.

The main ground of my objection to the Bill is that it overlooks the root causes which have led to the bad drainage and the resultant water-logging and other mischievous consequences in Bengal. It is true that the situation is extremely deplorable and urgently calls for a remedy, but for that reason, one should not forget that the evil arose from unrestricted drawing off of water from the river Ganges in Upper India, the erection of innumerable railway and other embankments with inadequate outlets for discharge of surplus water and such other things over which the agriculturists of Bengal have practically no hand at all, and hence for the consequences of which they cannot be held responsible. At any rate, the landlords of Bengal ought not to be victimised for the mischievous consequences that have followed. But curiously enough the Government of Bengal have thought it proper to impose the levy on the agriculturists and the landlords alone, to provide funds for a remedy of this evil. Clearly the Government should have sought the remedy elsewhere.

The landlords of Bengal are already finding great difficulty in realising rents from their tenants. Though it is claimed that the tenants' financial position will be greatly improved by the development of their lands in the way proposed, it is apprehended that on the contrary, the tenants of Bengal will be still further embarrassed by the new levy, inasmuch as the levy will, I am afraid, in many instances, exceed the rent they are now paying. Hence, the so-called improvement, instead of being a blessing, will prove a burden on them and that will add to their difficulty in paying rents. Consequently, the landlords will also be greatly embarrassed. It would, therefore, have been much wiser for the Government to seek the remedy by other means.

In any case, I think, the above facts ought not to be lost sight of in framing the details of this legislative measure. I, therefore, strongly protest against the following provisions of this Bill:—

Clause 3.—There is hardly any justification for imposing the levy on non-agricultural lands. The holders of such lands will not derive any benefit directly, just as others in the country also will not do. Hence, it is not equitable to include the former while excluding, for the same reason, the latter. I, therefore, object to the words "or the profits from any land not used for agricultural purposes" in lines 6 and 7 of this clause.

Clause 6.—I think the principle underlying section 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, regarding selection of the crop for determining the increased profit of any land, should be followed invariably. I, therefore, object to the proviso to this clause and particularly to the amendment made thereto by the Select Committee.

Clause 8A.—It is doubtful if a landlord will succeed in realising a salami in every case he makes a settlement of his khas lands with tenants. Hence, if the Collector imposes a levy on such landlord on the assumption that a salami is obtainable by him, the landlord will have to bear it from his own pocket. I, therefore, strongly oppose the imposition of a levy on estimated salami and would, therefore, suggest the deletion of the new clause 8A inserted by the Select Committee.

I protest against the insertion of the remarks in the report regarding the proposed 30A. I think, in making such a suggestion, we would clearly exceed our authority. This clause, if inserted in the Bill, will affect seriously the existing land laws of Bengal, and it is not fair to attempt to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act by the back door, as has been sought by the proposed amendment. Hence, I cannot subscribe to the remarks made in this connection in the report.

There are several other defects in the amendments proposed by the Select Committee, which I cannot support. I shall place my viewpoints on them before the Council, when the Bill will be considered by it.

Minute of dissent by Rai Bahadur Satya Kinkar Sahana, M.L.C.

Though I fully approve the main object of the Bill, rather welcome it, I cannot help thinking that there is room for difference of opinion regarding the details. I do not agree with all the provisions which are calculated to bring in complications and to antagonise numerous sections of the people to such an extent as to create great obstacle to the proper functioning of the Bill passed into an Act. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill it has been mentioned that this Bill is mainly intended to avoid an impending disaster caused by the inconsiderate protective embankments, the progeny of the desire of profit of the Railway and Steamer Companies. It is the first bounden duty of every Government to improve the sanitation, agriculture, industry and other sources of wealth of the country from the revenue of the country; it is more so with our Government as the decadence of the decadent areas in Bengal set in within the last 150 years. Smarting under an unjust financial arrangement our province has got a penurious coffer. Considering all this the people, though they have long ago crossed the taxable limit, do not object to a levy for the purpose of the improvement of the decadent areas and so avoid a disaster. But why the levy should be made permanent and not temporary or only for that period by which the capital expenditure together with a reasonable interest be realized, passes my comprehension. The fact that crores of rupees that the Irrigation Department spent since its inception was mostly spent over the navigable waterways of East Bengal, but when the question of reviving the dead and dying rivers of Central and West Bengal becomes imperative a levy is to be imposed, cannot but cause heartache; but if that levy be made permanent, the sense of justice of the people cannot but be shocked.

Clause 5A.—There should be a clear proviso to the clause that the levy shall not continue longer than the period required for the realisation of the capital expenditure together with interest.

Clause 5B.—There are strong remours of suspicion that the main object of the Development Bill is to realise the money, not very judiciously spent, over the Damodar and Bakreswar Canals by imposing a levy on the hard-hit agriculturists. This clause empowering the Government to impose a levy in respect of the said canals without a recommendation from the Bengal Legislative Council is calculated to confirm their suspicion and to strike them with panic. This cannot be desirable. This clause should be deleted.

Clause 9AA (1) (a).—The principle of the Bill as mentioned in the Statement of Objects and Reasons is to impose the levy on the basis of increased profits which was understood to be increased recurring profits or increment in the annual yield. In this clause "increased capital profits" have been introduced. Those words are explained to mean increment in salami or price or consideration, i.e., increased value. The introduction of this new principle will, I fear, lead to endless complications and litigations. There can be little doubt ttat in the improved areas the capital profits of agricultural lands in the shape of salami or value will increase as well. If the capital profits for non-agricultural lands be made leviable, what justification there will be for exempting those for agricultural lands? Further, many people will try to avoid the levy by making false entries in the documents about the salami or the consideration or the class of the land and that will cause a double loss of stamp revenue and levy revenue. I think the principle of levying the increased capital profits should not be introduced and this sub-clause should be deleted.

I sign the Report of the Select Committee with the above remarks and reserve the right of moving amendments during the discussion of the Bill in the Council.

Minute of dissent by Khan Bahadur Md. Abdul Momin, M.L.C.

I do not agree to the principle of the Bill with regard to the levy of the Irrigation Tax. I do not recognise the right of Government to any share of the profit, but only to the recovery of the amount of actual cost incurred.

I also object to some of the provisions of the Bill which I shall state at a later stage.

THE BENGAL DEVELOPMENT BILL, 1935.

to provide for the development of lands in Bengal and to impose a levy in respect of increased profits resulting from improvement works constructed by the Government.

WHEREAS it is expedient [with a view] to provide for the development of lands in Bengal and for that purpose to impose a levy in respect of increased profits resulting from improvement works constructed by the Government and to provide further powers in regard to works of improvement; [such works].

AND WHEREAS the previous sanction of the Governor General has been obtained under sub-section (3) of section 80A of the Government of India Act to the passing of this Act; 5 & 6 Geo. V, c. 61; 6 & 7 Geo. V, c. 37; 9 & 10 Geo. V, c. 101.

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Development Act, 1935.

(2) It extends to the whole of Bengal.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Local Government may, by notification, appoint.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

[(1) "benefited area" means any area in respect of which a notification has been issued under sub-section (2) of section 5, and includes any part of such area;]

(2) "Collector" includes any officer specially appointed by the Local Government to perform all or any of the functions of a Collector under this Act;

(3) "dead or decayed river" includes any river into which, or along any part of which, water has ceased to flow as freely as it would have flowed if it had not been diverted or obstructed whether owing to natural causes or as a result of interference by man, and includes also any depression which at one time formed part of a river-bed but in which there is no longer any flow of water;

(4) "improvement work" means any work of improvement constructed by the Government, before or after the commencement of this Act, or proposed to be constructed by the Government, which the Local Government has, by notification, declared to be an improvement work for the purposes of this Act;

The Bengal Development Bill, 1935.

(Clauses 3—5.)

(6) "period for objection" means a period [to be] mentioned in a notification under this Act [section 3, sub-section (2) of section 6, sub-section (1) of section 7 or sub-section (1) of section 25] within which objections or suggestions will be considered [by the Local Government] ; and

(7) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act.

Preliminary notification of intention to impose improvement levy.

3. Whenever, [the Local Government has constructed, or contemplates constructing, any improvement work which] in the opinion of the Local Government any improvement work has increased or is likely to increase the profits from the agricultural produce from any land or to increase the outturn of such produce, or the profits from any land not used for agricultural purposes, within any area, the Local Government may, by notification, declare its intention to impose an improvement levy within that area.

Publication of particulars.

4. A notification under section 3 shall state the following particulars—

(a) as full a description of the improvement work as, in the opinion of the Local Government, may be practicable ; [a brief description of the improvement work which has been, or is proposed to be, constructed ;]

(b) the object for which such work has been, or is proposed to be, constructed ; and

(c) the boundaries of the area within which the Local Government intends to impose the improvement levy.

Abandonment of intention or declaration of intention [decision] to impose [an imposition of] improvement levy.

5. (1) After the expiry of a period of objection to be mentioned in a notification under section 3 the Local Government shall consider the objections and suggestions, if any, received by it and thereafter shall, by notification, declare its intention either wholly to refrain from imposing the improvement levy or to impose the same in the area concerned or in a specified part thereof, whereupon the area in respect of which the Local Government has by such a notification declared its intention to impose the improvement levy shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Act, to be a notified area. [with or without modification, in the area concerned, and such declaration shall be final and shall not be questioned in any Court or in any other manner whatsoever.]

[(2) At any time after the issue of a notification under sub-section (1) declaring the intention of the Local Government to impose an improvement levy, the Local Government may, by notification -

(a) declare the area concerned to be a benefited area, whereupon such area shall, for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be a benefited area, and the issue of a notification under this sub-section shall be conclusive proof that the work in question has benefited or will benefit that area ;

(b) impose the improvement levy in the area concerned from such date as may be specified in the notification ;]

The Bengal Development Bill, 1935.

(Clauses 5A—6.)

(3) The Local Government may, so far as may be in the manner hereinbefore provided, from time to time include in or exclude from any notified area any area which, in the opinion of the Local Government, has benefited or has not benefited, as the case may be, from the improvement work. [revise the boundaries of a benefited area so as to include or exclude any area to which, in the opinion of the Local Government, the benefits in question extend or do not extend, as the case may be.]

Imposition of improvement levy.

5A. When the Local Government is satisfied that a notified area has benefited from an improvement work it may, by notification, impose the improvement levy in that area from such date as may be specified in the notification :

Provided that, an improvement levy shall not be imposed in respect of any improvement work unless the Bengal Legislative Council has, by a resolution, recommended such imposition.

Imposition of improvement levy in respect of Damodar Canal and Bakreswar Canal.

5B. Notwithstanding the proviso to section 5A, an improvement levy may, subject to the provisions of this Act, be imposed in respect of the Damodar Canal (including the Eden Canal) and the Bakreswar Canal without a recommendation from the Bengal Legislative Council.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section "canal" means a canal as defined in clause (1) of section 3 of the Bengal Irrigation Act, 1876. Ben. Act III of 1876.

Estimate of increased outturn of agricultural produce.

6. (1) From time to time an officer appointed by the Local Government shall, in accordance with rules made under this Act, and after hearing any objections in the prescribed manner, prepare in respect of [relation to] land throughout a notified [benefited] area an estimate of the average increase in the outturn of the agricultural produce from land of any class which, in his opinion, has been, or is likely to be made possible by any improvement work, on the assumption that the land has produced and will produce the staple food crop notified under section 39 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, in respect of that land : Act VIII of 1885.

Provided that the Local Government may, at its discretion, direct that the estimate be made on the assumption that the land has produced or will produce some other crop. [without such assumption.]

(2) The Board of Revenue shall, by notification, publish such estimate and, after a period for objection to be specified in such notification, shall consider the objections and suggestions, if any, received by it and shall report to the Local Government thereon. Thereafter the Local Government may reject the estimate or may, by notification, accept it with or without modification, whereupon the accuracy of any estimate so accepted shall not be questioned in any court.

(3) Where an estimate has been accepted under sub-section (2) in respect of a notified area before the imposition of the improvement levy, such estimate shall, as soon as may be practicable after the expiry of two years from the date of the imposition of the levy, be revised in the manner provided in sub-sections (1) and (2) for the preparation, publication, and acceptance of an estimate.

[(2) The Local Government shall, by notification, publish such estimate and after a period for objection to be specified in such notification shall consider the objections and suggestions, if any, received by it and shall, by

Area in 1935.—The estimated area of jute in the three provinces is 1,858,200 acres, a decrease of 752,900 acres, or about 28·83 per cent. as compared with the revised total for 1934.

The consolidated figures are as follows:—

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BENGAL, 1935.

[NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1932-33, the area under jute in Bengal to which this forecast relates, represents some 86·0 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.]

The Preliminary Forecast deals only with the estimates of area sown and the condition of the crop at the time of publication of the forecast. The estimates of area are based on information received through the Collectors from the Revenue staff; also from the Panchayets and Agricultural Officers.

Revision of Area for 1934.—In 1934 the forecasted area was 2,186,100 acres. This has since been revised to 2,288,700 acres.

Area sown in 1935.—In Bengal, returns for the present season show a total area of 1,613,500 acres, a decrease of 675,200 acres, or about 29·5 per cent. as compared with the revised figures for 1934. The decrease in area is attributed partly to adverse weather conditions and partly to the intensive restriction campaign.

Character of the season.—The weather was, on the whole, unfavourable both for preparatory tillage and for sowings in East and North Bengal. As a result sowings were generally late. In East Bengal, however, the germination was good and subsequent conditions improved the prospects of the crop. In North Bengal, on the other hand, the progress of the crop was not satisfactory, owing to drought in some areas and to excessive rain in others. Elsewhere the growth was satisfactory. In West Bengal drought affected early sowings and growth was not uniform. Later on favourable weather enabled further sowings to be made and the late crop is thriving generally.

Present state of the crop.—With the exceptions mentioned above, the present condition is good in East Bengal and satisfactory in North and West Bengal.

Stock.—Collectors report that stocks in the hands of cultivators are small.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal (offg.).

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BIHAR AND ORISSA.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BIHAR AND ORISSA, 1935.

[NOTE.—On an average of the five years ending 1932-33, the area under jute in Bihar and Orissa to which this Forecast relates represents about 7·4 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.]

The present forecast deals only with the estimated area sown. It gives also a general survey of prospects, but makes no reference to the probable outturn either in percentage figures or in bales.

2. Acreage.—I estimate the area sown during the current and four preceding years in round numbers as follows:—

Year.	Acreage.
1932	170,000 (Revised).
1933	192,100
1934	173,800 (Revised).
1935	142,000

3. Weather conditions.—In March light rain fell in the Santal Parganas, Cuttack and Balasore. There was no rain in the rest of the jute districts. The fall was below normal. In April light to moderate rain fell in Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Purnea, the Santal Parganas, Cuttack and Balasore except Champaran and Bhagalpur where there was no rain. The fall was below the normal everywhere except Cuttack and Balasore. In May light rain fell in all the jute districts. The fall was below the normal everywhere. In June rain fell in all the jute-growing districts. The fall was light everywhere. The weather conditions are reported to be unfavourable in the important district of Purnea and also in Champaran. Sowings are still going on in the Santal Parganas, Cuttack and Balasore.

4. District returns.—Last year's area under jute has been finally estimated at 173,800 acres. The total area under jute this year is estimated by District Officers in round number at 142,000 acres. The decrease in area is marked in Purnea and also in Bhagalpur and Darbhanga and is due to slump in jute market in the preceding year and to propaganda for jute restriction scheme in Purnea and to scarcity of rainfall and increase in area under sugarcane in the remaining two districts.

5. Condition and prospects.—The condition of the crop is, on the whole, fair.

6. General.—The quantity of jute which remains in the jute districts from the crops of 1934 is reported to be small.

The statement below compares the estimated area under jute in this province this year with the preliminary and final figures of last year:—

Name of province.	Estimated area under jute.			Difference between the preliminary forecast of 1935 and final forecast, 1934.

Preliminary forecast of the jute crop of Bihar and Orissa for 1935.

Division.	District.	Total area of the district.	Estimated total area under cultivation.	Estimated normal area under jute (This figure has been arrived at by taking the acreage of 10 years immediately preceding the year to which this forecast relates).	Estimated area under jute.		Whether much, little or no jute remains in the district from the crop of 1934.	Date by which the sowing of the crop generally commenced this year, and whether that date was early, normal or late.	Remarks by District Officers.
					Last year (1934) final figure.	This year (1935).
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
		Acres.	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.	Acres.
Tirhut	Champaran ..	2,263,194	1,430,200	3,100	2,500	2,300	Little in Sadar ..	First week of April to middle of April.	The weather and rainfall were not favourable. The present condition of the crop is poor. The sowings were normal and have been completed. The crop is expected to be same as last year in Bettiah and probably inferior to last year in Sadar.
	Muzaffarpur ..	1,934,630	1,627,000	3,200	2,720	4,140	No jute ..	Normal in Sadar and Sitamarhi but late in Hajipur.	Jute crop requires immediate and sufficient rains.
	Darbhanga ..	2,142,720	1,677,800	1,600	835	310	Nil ..	Latter part of May. (Normal).	Decrease in area is due to scanty rainfall and to increase in acreage under sugarcane.
Bhagalpur	Bhagalpur ..	2,661,814	1,684,100	3,200	4,974	3,519	Little ..	Last week of May	The present condition of the crop is poor due to scarcity of rain.
	Purnea ..	3,141,926	1,694,400	165,100	136,711	117,578	Do. ..	May ..	The weather and rainfall have been unfavourable for the growth of jute crop. The present condition appears to be fair. Sowings have been completed and the outturn is expected to be the same as last year or less than that. The decrease in area under jute is due to slump in jute market and the propaganda of jute restriction scheme in Purnea district.
	Santal Parganas ..	3,514,374	1,717,900	900	500	500	Very little ..	First week of June	Commenced in one subdivision in the first week of June and not yet in other. Sowings were late owing to scarcity of rain.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, ASSAM.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF ASSAM, 1935.

[NOTE.—On the average of the five years ending 1932-33, the area under jute in Assam represents som 5·5 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.]

1. Season.—The weather at sowing time was not favourable owing to insufficient rainfall almost in all the important jute-growing districts of the province. Further incessant rains also hampered the growth of the crop to some extent. Insect in Kamrup, hailstorm in Nowgong and local flood in low lands in Sibsagar also caused slight damage. The present prospects of the crop are not quite satisfactory and hence the outturn is anticipated to be below the normal.

2. Area sown.—The total area under jute as estimated by the Deputy Commissioners is 102,700 acres against 148,600 acres (revised) of last year. There is a decrease in area in all the important jute-growing districts due to restriction scheme, the net decrease over last year's actual figure being 45,900 acres.

3. Stock.—According to the reports of the Deputy Commissioners very little jute remains in stock from the crop of last year.

Cachar (plains) ..	200	200	200	..	..	None ..	Middle of April. Normal.	The weather has been generally favourable for the cultivation and growth of the crop and the outturn is likely to be better than that of last year.
Sylhet ..	15,000	8,600	7,700	..	900	Little ..	Ditto ..	The decrease in area is due to jute restriction propaganda and also to unfavourable weather condition which was not quite satisfactory at sowing time but has since improved. The present condition of the crop is on the whole fair.
Goalpara ..	60,000	40,400	27,700	..	12,700	A little quantity remains.	First part of April. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to jute restriction propaganda and also to unfavourable weather condition at sowing time. Drought in March and April followed by incessant rains hampered the growth of the crop. The present prospects of the crop are, however, generally fair but the outturn is expected to be worse than last year.
Kamrup ..	28,000	34,600	24,100	..	10,500	None ..	Early April. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to jute restriction propaganda and also to unfavourable weather condition at sowing time. Afterwards the growth of the crop was hampered by too much rains. Insects too have caused some damage in places. The present condition of the crop is generally fair but the outturn is expected to be below normal.
Darrang ..	12,600	12,100	7,400	..	4,700	Little ..	Beginning of April. Normal.	The decrease in area is due to jute restriction propaganda and also to unfavourable weather condition at sowing time, specially in the Sadar subdivision, due to inadequate rainfall. Later on, there was heavy rainfall which retarded the growth of the crop. The present condition of the crop is not quite satisfactory and the outturn is expected to fall below normal.
Nowgong ..	50,000	48,100	31,000	..	17,100	Do. ..	Middle of March. Normal.	The decrease in area is due partly to restriction scheme and partly to low price of jute. The weather has been generally favourable for the cultivation and growth of the crop and the outturn is anticipated to be better than last year. Hail-storm caused slight damage in places.
Sibsagar ..	400	300	300	..	..	None ..	Middle of April. Normal.	The weather has been favourable on the whole, for the cultivation and growth of the crop. The outturn is expected to be better than last year although local flood has slightly damaged the crop in some places.
Lakhimpur ..	1,000	300	300	..	..	Do. ..	First week of April. Normal.	The weather has been favourable for the crop and a normal outturn is expected.
Garo Hills (plains)	5,000	4,000	4,000	..	..	Do. ..	Middle of April. A bit late.	The weather has not been favourable for the cultivation and growth of the crop. The present condition of the crop is not satisfactory and the outturn is expected to be worse than last year.

9. The Registrar shall invite the attention of the Registrar of the Calcutta University to the date of expiry of the term of office of the member elected by the University seventy-five days in advance of such expiry, and inform him in case of a casual vacancy in that office as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of the vacancy, and request him to fill the vacancy by fresh election under section 4 and under these rules in ample time before the end of the term of office of the Council or within one month under section 10, as the case may be. 11. The Returning Officer shall in the notification referred to in rule 10 invite all electors concerned to obtain nomination papers from him on application to nominate qualified candidates and request all electors generally to participate in the impending elections. He shall at the same time appoint and notify dates, times and places relative to the elections as required by rule 26.

12. In respect of any election under clauses (f) to (h) of section 4 the electoral rolls shall consist of a copy of the latest Annual Medical List corrected to the date just preceding the last date appointed by the Returning Officer under rule 26 for the receipt of nomination papers:

Provided that for an election held to fill a casual vacancy or vacancies the medical list shall be corrected in respect only of names of voters eligible to vote in the particular constituency or constituencies concerned.

The corrected medical list shall be published at the office of the Returning Officer on the said last date for receipt of nomination papers and no practitioner whose name is entered in the Register of Registered Practitioners on or after such last date shall be entitled to vote at the next succeeding elections.

N. B.—Registered practitioners with plural qualifications under clause (f) and clause (g) should be allowed to vote at the election for the constituency under each of these clauses, while those with such qualifications under either clause (f) or clause (g) and clause (h) should be allowed to vote at an election under either clause (f) or clause (g) as the case may be, and debarred from voting at an election under clause (h), vide Local Self-Government (Medical), No. 2113Medl., dated the 4th September 1926, and Local Self-Government (Medical), No. 398-T.Medl., dated the 11th September 1926.

Nomination of candidates for election.

13. (1) Any person whose name is included in the Register of Registered Practitioners and who is not disqualified for election to the Council under section 6 may be nominated as a candidate for election under clause (f), clause (g) or clause (h) of section 4 and any such person who is also a member of the Faculty of Medicine of the Calcutta University may be so nominated for election under clause (c) of the same section:

Provided that—

(a) at a general election—

(i) for an electorate under clause (g) each qualified elector may nominate a maximum number of two candidates, one of whom must be a teacher. Should he nominate more candidates than one, one of the nominees must be a teacher,

(ii) for an electorate under clause (f) and an electorate under clause (h) each qualified elector may nominate a maximum number of four and three candidates, respectively, of whom in each case one shall be a teacher and another a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta. Should a qualified elector nominate more than two candidates for the former [the electorate under clause (f)] and more than one candidate for the latter electorate [under clause (h)]— in the case of a single additional nomination, it must be of a candidate who is either a teacher or a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta, or who combines both these qualifications in himself; in the case of two additional nominations they must be of two candidates who possess in the alternative the qualification of teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta, or combine both qualifications in themselves. In the event of a single candidate thus nominated possessing both qualifications an additional qualified candidate who is neither a teacher nor a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta may be proposed as the second nominee.

(b) in the case of a casual vacancy affecting a member originally elected to provide a special qualification or qualifications as teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta or both, the nominee must possess the particular qualification or either of such qualifications, as the case may be.

(2) Such nomination of each candidate shall be made in writing with complete particulars required on a separate nomination paper in Form II in the Appendix, which shall be supplied by the Returning Officer concerned on application.

(3) The nomination paper of each candidate nominated to represent any of the electorates mentioned in clause (c), clause (f), clause (g) or clause (h) of section 4 shall be subscribed by two qualified electors of the particular electorate concerned, by one as proposer and by the other as seconder:

Provided that no elector may subscribe, whether as proposer or seconder, more nomination papers than the number of vacancy or vacancies to be filled at the particular election by the electorate to which he belongs.

(4) The nomination paper shall be subscribed also by the candidate nominated as assenting to the nomination and shall be forwarded by post or otherwise to reach the Returning Officer not later than the latest date and time specified by him thereon for its return.

14. On receipt of each nomination paper the Returning Officer shall forthwith endorse thereon the date and hour of its receipt.

He shall examine each nomination paper and shall record on it his decision accepting or rejecting the same, and, if a nomination paper is rejected, shall state in brief his reasons for such rejection, e.g., that it does not comply with the requirements of any particular rule or that it has arrived after the latest date and time fixed for the receipt of nominations.

15. If more nomination papers than are allowed by the proviso to rule 13 (3) be subscribed by the same elector, then only the permissible number of such nomination papers first received by the Returning Officer shall, if otherwise in order, be held to be valid, but if the Returning Officer is unable to determine the order in which such nomination papers were received by him, all of such nomination papers shall be held to be invalid.

16. Every nomination paper in respect of which any requirement of these rules has not been complied with, or which is not received by the Returning Officer on or before the latest date and time fixed for the sending in of nomination papers, shall be invalid.

N. B.—Temporary change of station of practice shall be disregarded.

Scrutiny of nomination papers.

17. (1) On the date and at the time and place appointed by the Returning Officer under rule 26 for the scrutiny of nomination papers, every candidate and his proposer and seconder may attend, and the Returning Officer shall allow them to examine the nomination papers of all candidates which have been received by him and on which he has noted the result of his examination under rule 14.

(2) The Returning Officer shall decide all objections to his decision as well as all questions which may be raised as to the validity of any nomination, and his decision on any such question shall, subject to the provisions of rules 28 and 29, be final.

N. B.—For contingencies that necessitate the declaration of candidates as elected immediately after the scrutiny of nominations see rule 19 (1).

18. Any candidate may withdraw his candidature by notice in writing subscribed by him and delivered to the Returning Officer up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon on the date succeeding that appointed for the scrutiny of nominations. A candidate who has withdrawn his candidature shall not be allowed to cancel the withdrawal or to be renominated as a candidate for the same election. The candidature of any candidate shall remain valid for all purposes of these rules unless withdrawn in accordance with this rule (vide notification No. 4101Medl., dated the 20th December 1929).

Election and voting.

19. (1) If in the case of an entire election, whether general or casual, to be held at any time under any clause of section 4 other than clause (d) and clause (e), the total number of duly nominated candidates with or without special qualifications as required by the section who stand for election or remain in the field after withdrawal of candidates signified before the completion of scrutiny of nomination papers does not exceed the number of members with or without the same qualifications to be elected at the time under that clause, the Returning Officer shall on the completion of such scrutiny in the presence of the candidates, their proposers and seconders forthwith declare such candidate or candidates (if duly qualified) to be elected.

Should this contingency arise as a result of withdrawal under rule 18 communicated after the scrutiny no poll shall be held for the particular electorate concerned and the fact shall forthwith be notified in the Calcutta Gazette, but the formal declaration of result of its election shall be held over until the date of counting of votes in respect of other electorates.

(2) If the number of such candidates with or without special qualifications exceeds the numbers with or without the same qualifications to be so elected, the Returning Officer shall—

(a) cause the names, qualifications, with any special qualifications required by section 4, registration numbers and addresses of the candidates offering for election under each such clause to be entered alphabetically in the order of their surnames in a separate voting paper in Form III in the Appendix, and

(b) thereupon publish in the Calcutta Gazette and in such other manner as he may think fit the said names, with the respective qualifications, and addresses, classified according to the clauses of section 4.

(3) The Returning Officer shall by a date fixed under rule 26 send by registered post to each qualified elector concerned at his registered address one such voting paper (and no more) of candidates for election under the clause or clauses of section 4 under which he is qualified to vote, with an identification envelope as prescribed in these rules.

Provided that—

Such a voting paper with an identification envelope shall also be issued to such an elector (if any) to whom a voting paper has not been sent already, on his applying to the Returning Officer for the same at any time before the latest date and time appointed by him for return of voting papers. In no other case shall a voting paper be issued after the last date prescribed under rule 26 for the issue of voting papers nor shall a voting paper not delivered to a voter by the post office be re-issued to him on its return to the office of the Returning Officer.

(4) No election shall be invalidated by reason of the non-receipt by any elector of a voting paper.

20. Each qualified elector desirous of recording votes shall mark the voting paper issued to him with a single cross X (and no other mark) in the proper column against the name or names of the candidate or candidates (not exceeding the number of members to be elected) for whom he intends to vote (A vote recorded otherwise than on the voting paper supplied shall not be accepted.) No elector shall give more than one vote to any one candidate:

Provided that—

(a) at a general election—

(i) for an electorate under clause (g) a qualified elector may give a maximum number of two votes to two candidates, of whom one must be a teacher. Should he vote for more candidates than one, one of the candidates supported must be a teacher.

(ii) for an electorate under clause (f) and an electorate under clause (h) a qualified elector may give a maximum number of four and three votes, respectively, to as many candidates, of whom in each case one shall be a teacher and another a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta. Should an elector vote for more than two candidates for the former [the electorate under clause (f)] and more than one candidate for the latter electorate [under clause (h)]— in case he records a single additional vote it must be in favour of a candidate who is either a teacher or a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta, or who combines both these special qualifications in himself;

in case he records two additional votes they must be in favour of two candidates who possess in the alternative the qualification of teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta, or combine both qualifications in themselves. In the event of a single candidate thus supported possessing both qualifications the second additional vote may be recorded in favour of a qualified candidate who is neither a teacher nor a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta.

(b) in the case of a casual vacancy affecting a member originally elected to provide a special qualification or qualifications as teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta or both, the candidate voted for must possess the particular qualification or either of such qualifications, as the case may be.

The qualified elector shall sign furnishing full particulars the requisite declaration printed on the identification envelope received with each voting paper, place the voting paper in this envelope, close it and deliver it personally to or send it singly by post to reach the Returning Officer on or before the latest day and time fixed by him for the return of voting papers with the relative identification envelopes.

No voting paper will be accepted unless it is enclosed in the identification envelope supplied with it, and any defect, e.g., incompleteness in the entries required on the envelope or its receipt after the latest day and time fixed for its return with the proper voting paper shall invalidate both the envelope and the voting paper enclosed.

Every voting paper in respect of which any requirement of these rules has not been complied with or on which a mark is placed in such a manner as to make it doubtful to which candidate the vote is given or on which the elector has placed any mark whereby he may be afterwards identified or on which an alteration or erasure occurs indicating a change of vote or which is not received by the Returning Officer on or before the latest day and time fixed for the return of voting papers, shall be invalid.

Counting of votes and declaration and publication of results of election.

21. (1) On receiving the identification envelopes the Returning Officer shall divide them into separate batches according to the different electorates concerned and shall examine the envelopes in each batch separately as regards the completeness or otherwise of the particulars required to be entered thereon, and, in the case of an election under clause (f) or clause (h) of section 4, shall divide the said envelopes into two sets, viz., (1) those received from practitioners practising in Calcutta, and (2) those received from practitioners practising outside Calcutta, and shall record his decision "rejected" on any identification envelopes which are incomplete in any requisite entry, mark thereon the incompleteness of entry and place them in safe custody for inspection at the counting of votes. The distinction of divided batches and sets shall be maintained throughout the entire process of counting of votes.

(2) The Returning Officer shall place the identification envelopes which are complete in requisite entries which he provisionally accepts as containing valid voting papers without opening them in a separate ballot box for each electorate.

22. (1) The Returning Officer shall attend for the purpose of counting the votes on such date or dates and at such time and place as may be appointed by him under rule 26.

(2) Every candidate may be present in person or may send a representative, duly authorised by him in writing, to watch the process of counting.

(3) The Returning Officer shall show all identification envelopes whether accepted or rejected to the candidates or their representatives for examination of the propriety of their acceptance or rejection, and dispose of any objection taken to his decision in the manner prescribed in sub-rule (5).

(4) The accepted identification envelopes in sets where so divided under sub-rule (1) of rule 21 will then be opened in the presence of the candidates or their representatives appearing under sub-rule (2) and the voting papers will be separated from their covers which will be kept aside from view and the Returning Officer will thereupon proceed to examine the voting papers to see whether they have been filled up correctly in respect of every requisite particular, and, in the case of an election under clause (f) or clause (h) of section 4, shall maintain the division of the said voting papers into two sets, viz., (1) those received from practitioners practising in Calcutta, and (2) those received from practitioners practising outside Calcutta, made with reference to the relative identification envelopes under sub-rule (1) of rule 21. He shall record his decision "rejected" on every voting paper which is found to be defective in any respect and indicate thereon with reference to rule 20 the ground of rejection very briefly. The remaining voting papers will be deemed as accepted. Each convenient batch of voting papers, whether accepted or rejected, will be presented in separate sets where so divided to the candidates or their representatives present for examination of the Returning Officer's decision.

(5) If any objection is taken to his decision of acceptance or rejection of any identification envelopes or voting papers, such objection shall be decided at once by the Returning Officer, whose decision shall, subject to the provisions of rules 28 and 29, be final.

(6) The Returning Officer shall separate or cause to be separated the accepted voting papers from those that have been rejected and keep them in separate bundles. The identification envelopes originally rejected and those provisionally accepted when separated from their enclosed voting papers shall also be kept in separate bundles. All these bundles of voting papers and identification envelopes will be placed in safe custody for disposal under rule 24.

23. (1) When the counting of the votes of each electorate has been completed by the conduct of the operation on one or more days as necessary the Returning Officer shall, subject to the provisions of section 4, and of the subsequent portion of this rule, forthwith declare the duly qualified candidate or candidates, as the case may be, to whom the largest number of valid votes has been given to be elected.

(2) When an equality of votes is found to exist between any candidates, and the addition of a vote will entitle any of the said candidates to be declared elected, the determination of the person or persons to whom such one additional vote shall be deemed to have been given shall be made by lot to be drawn in the presence of the Returning Officer and in such manner as he may determine.

(3) When a candidate elected for a particular electorate by operation of sub-rule (1) happens subsequently to receive the highest number of valid votes of another electorate he shall be allowed to choose for which of the two electorates he shall serve and the choice once made by the candidate shall be final.

When a seat of a particular electorate remains unfilled by the operation of this sub-rule or becomes vacant by the refusal of the elected candidate to serve, such refusal being signified before his name is published in the Calcutta Gazette under rule 25, the seat may be filled by that one among the other candidates willing to accept office who has received the highest number of votes among unsuccessful candidates of the electorate affected at the election. If there is no unsuccessful candidate a fresh election shall be held to fill the vacancy thus created.

The Returning Officer shall determine which candidate should be declared as elected under this sub-rule and announce the results as soon as possible after the counting of votes.

The declaration in this case may be made either in the presence of the candidates or their representatives if present or merely by notification in the Calcutta Gazette under rule 25.

N. B.—(a) To select the two candidates elected for the electorate under clause (g) the candidate with the requisite qualification of teacher who has secured the largest number of votes should first be declared as elected and then the candidate who has secured the largest number among the rest. To select respectively the four and three candidates elected for the electorates under clauses (f) and (h) a separate list shall be prepared for each electorate showing all candidates with an indication of special qualifications as teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta where such exist, the number of votes received by each from the registered practitioners practising within and outside Calcutta separately and the total number of such votes polled. The mufassal candidate with the largest number of mufassal votes shall first be declared as elected in each electorate and, secondly, the candidate with the special qualification of teacher who has polled the highest number of total votes and, lastly, the remaining member or members, two for the electorate under clause (f) and one for that under clause (h) shall be declared as elected with reference to the highest number of total votes polled. In the event of the first selection made as above possessing both special qualifications the remaining members three for the electorate under clause (f) and two for that under clause (h) shall be elected with reference to the largest totals of votes polled, (vide Government of Bengal letter No. 128T.—Medl., dated the 10th June 1922).

(b) Temporary changes of station of practice should be disregarded.

(d) The Returning Officer shall immediately report the results of the elections to the President. Should the election fail to secure members with the requisite special qualification or qualifications required by section 4 in any case, the defect in respect of each electorate under clause (f), clause (g) and clause (h) of that section should at the same time be reported for the information of the President along with any defect in the number of candidates with or without special qualification that offered for election and the want of candidates willing to accept office in circumstances contemplated in paragraph 2 of sub-rule (3).

24. Upon the completion of the counting of votes and after the results have been declared by him, the Returning Officer shall seal up the voting papers with their identification envelopes and all other documents relating to the elections and shall retain the same for a period of six months and thereafter cause them to be destroyed.

25. The Returning Officer shall as soon as may be after the election publish the names of the candidates declared elected in the Calcutta Gazette.

26. The Returning Officer shall appoint and shall notify in the Calcutta Gazette and in such other manner as he may think fit such date or dates or latest date, as the case may be, and, if necessary, such time and place as may be deemed suitable, for each of the following operations of an election, namely:—

(a) the receiving of nominations under rule 13;

(b) the scrutiny of nomination papers under rule 17;

(c) the sending of voting papers with the relative identification envelopes under rule 19;

(d) the receiving of voting papers with the relative identification envelopes under rule 20; and

(e) the counting of the votes under rules 22 and 23.

The dates appointed must ensure the completion of the election, in the case of a general election in ample time before the expiry of the term of office of the sitting members and, in the case of a casual vacancy under section 9 (1) or resulting from the death or resignation of a member or from the operation of rule 30, within the month prescribed by section 10.

General Rules for election under clauses (c) to (h) of section 4—Report of results of elections by the President to the Local Government.

27. On receipt of the report under rule 23 (4) the President shall forthwith report to the Local Government the results of all elections for action under section 7. He shall at the same time report, for action under section 5, what seats, if any, of any electorates could not be filled by election owing to defect in the number of candidates offering, or of candidates with the requisite special qualification of teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta where necessary or to want of candidates willing to accept office in circumstances contemplated in paragraph 2 of rule 23 (3).

Finality of decisions of the Local Government.

28. The Local Government may, of its own motion or on objection made within three months from the date of the election, declare any election to the Council to be void on account of corrupt practice (e.g., bribery, undue influence, personation, publication of false statements) or any other sufficient cause, and may call on the electorate affected to make a fresh election within a specified date, and any decision of the Local Government under this rule shall be final.

29. The decision of the Local Government on any question that may arise as to the intention, construction or application of these rules shall be final.

Rule under section 33 (1) of the Act—Vacation of seat.

30. If a registered practitioner having been elected or nominated a member is found guilty of infamous conduct in any professional respect and his name is removed from the Register of Registered Practitioners, the Council shall, at the same time, declare his seat to be vacant.

The President shall report the fact to the Local Government and the vacancy shall be filled like a casual vacancy within one month by fresh election or nomination as the case may be, under sections 4 and 10 and these rules.

Instructions.

1. Each elector has as many votes as there are members to be elected on each particular occasion (number to be specified in each case). If he does not wish to use all his votes (in the cases where more than one vote is allowed), he need not do so, but more than one vote may not be given to any one candidate.

2. (a) At a general election—

(i) for an electorate under clause (g) of section 4 a qualified elector may give a maximum number of two votes to two candidates, of whom one must be a teacher. Should he vote for more candidates than one, one of the candidates favoured must be a teacher.

(ii) For an electorate under clause (f) of section 4 and an electorate under clause (h) of section 4 a qualified elector may give a maximum number of four and three votes respectively to as many candidates, of whom one shall be a teacher and another a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta in each case. Should he vote for more than two candidates for the former and more than one candidate for the latter electorate—

in case he records a single additional vote it must be in favour of a candidate who is either a teacher or a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta or who combines both these special qualifications in himself;

in case he records two additional votes they must be in favour of two candidates who possess in the alternative the qualification of teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta or combine both qualifications in themselves. In the event of a single candidate thus supported possessing both qualifications the second additional vote may be recorded in favour of a qualified candidate who is neither a teacher nor a registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta.

(b) In the case of a casual vacancy arising out of a casualty affecting a member originally elected to provide a special qualification or qualifications as teacher or registered practitioner practising outside Calcutta or both, the vote cast must be in favour of a candidate who possesses the particular qualification or either of such qualifications, as the case may be.

3. He shall vote by placing in the proper column of the voting paper a single mark X (and no other mark) opposite to the name or names of the candidate or candidates (not exceeding the number of members to be elected) whom he prefers. A vote recorded otherwise than on the voting paper shall be invalid.

The voting paper shall be invalid if the mark X is placed opposite to the name of more candidates than are to be elected, or if the mark denoting any vote is so placed as to render it doubtful to which candidate such vote is intended to apply or if more votes than one are recorded in favour of a single candidate.

4. Each qualified elector shall sign the requisite declaration giving full particulars required on the identification envelope, place the voting paper in this envelope, close it and return it in the manner prescribed in instruction 6. Without such signature and entry the identification envelope as also the enclosed voting paper shall be invalid.

5. A voting paper on which the voter has placed any mark whereby he may be afterwards identified shall be invalid.

6. The date appointed for the commencement (to be specified separately for each electorate) of the counting of votes is ..... A voting paper enclosed in the relative identification envelope which is not received by the Returning Officer before .....on the.....day of.....19.....will be rejected.

N. B.—The form will be simplified for the convenience of electors by excision of irrelevant words in each case, e.g., by deletion of instructions regarding general election in the case of a bye-election and vice-versa.

Extract from rule 20 of the election rules.

No voting paper will be accepted unless it is enclosed in the identification envelope supplied with it and any defect, e.g., incompleteness in the entries required on the envelope or its receipt after the latest day and time fixed for its return with the proper voting paper shall invalidate both the envelope and the voting paper enclosed. POLICE.

Simla, the 2nd July 1935.

No. F. 114/24/35.—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India has been pleased to confer the Indian Police Medal on the following officers:—

Name of officer and rank and statement of services for which the decoration has been conferred.

BENGAL.

(1) Thomas Fulton, Acting Station Officer, Calcutta Fire Brigade.—Mr. Fulton attended a fire in a house at Calcutta at 3-32 a.m. on 4th May 1935. The premises involved comprised a range of double and single storied buildings divided into sections in which a very large quantity of celluloid films were stored. The premises were blazing furiously and to prevent the fire spreading this officer proceeded to get a line of hose to work from the roof. While thus engaged he heard cries for help which he located behind a substantially built wooden partition. He, with assistance, broke down this partition and after traversing a passage about 10 feet wide inspite of the fact that on both sides of this passage were stores of very inflammable films and also a considerable quantity of furniture on fire, discovered a man lying on a table about twenty feet from the partition and near the end of a cul-de-sac about ninety feet long. The table too was actually on fire and also the film stores immediately adjoining. The man was severely burned and this officer picked him up, carried him to the partition and handed him out to a Fire Brigade Jemadar. He was then carried to the Salvation Army Quarters on the opposite side of the road. Mr. Fulton rendered first-aid and sent the injured man to Hospital where unfortunately he died later from shock. There was considerable danger of an explosion of films and the officer's line of retreat might have been closed as the rescue was effected in the immediate proximity of a large stock of films which were actually on fire. But for his removal by this officer the injured man would have been burned to death in the cul-de-sac.

(2) Maulvi Syed Ali Irtaza, Sub-Inspector of Police.—On receipt of information of a projected dacoity near Ujirpur village in the jurisdiction of Damurhuda police station in the district of Nadia, a police party in charge of a Circle Inspector proceeded on the night of the 7th April 1935 to the village. While rounding up the gang, which had been caught in the act of committing a house dacoity, probationary Sub-Inspector Syed Ali Irtaza seized a dacoit lurking in a dark corner of the compound surrounding the house. The dacoit, who was subsequently identified as a dangerous criminal, endeavoured to escape by striking the Sub-Inspector on the head with a plough-share, by throttling him, by biting his right cheek and by causing injuries to other parts of his body. The Sub-Inspector was seriously injured on the head and elsewhere but retained his grip on the dacoit till his cries attracted other members of the police party to his assistance. The Sub-Inspector on this occasion displayed courage of a high degree and a spirit of devotion to duty which merit recognition.

(3) Deodutt Tewary, Constable.—Constable Deodutt Tewary received information that a notorious externed Goonda had returned to Calcutta and was likely to be found in the locality of Sova Bazar.

On the afternoon of the 24th March 1935, he proceeded in that direction and found the Goonda in Nanda Ram Sen Street. As he was about to arrest him, the latter produced a large knife with which he stabbed the Constable on his right arm. Inspite of this, the Constable grappled with the man and managed to hold him until a Traffic Police Constable came to his assistance when the Goonda was secured and taken away under arrest. He is well known to be a man of desperate character with many previous convictions.

This Constable has an extremely good record during his 10 years' service with the Calcutta Police and his courage on this occasion is in keeping with his previous conduct which has earned him numerous rewards.

N.B.—These awards are for gallantry under regulation (d) (i) of the Regulations governing the grant of the Indian Police Medal and consequently carry with them the special allowances admissible to officers of and below the rank of Inspector of Police.

CALCUTTA, THE 12TH JULY 1935.

RESOLUTION—No. 1667 P.H.

Minister-in-charge: The Hon'ble Sir Bijoy Prasad Singh Roy, Kt.

Read—

The Report of the Director of Public Health, Bengal, for the year 1933.

Vital statistics.—The total number of births and deaths recorded during the year 1933 was 1,473,944 and 1,197,885, respectively.

Births, therefore, exceeded deaths by 276,059, as against an excess of 306,115 in 1932. The number of births was greatly in excess of the average for the last ten years, but the number of deaths also was the highest recorded since 1924; increased infant mortality was largely responsible for this as no fewer than 294,975 deaths occurred amongst infants under the age of 1; this number exceeded the average of the previous nine years by 52,408 and last year's figure by 57,382. The rate of infant mortality per 1,000 births increased from 178·9 in 1932 to 200·1 in 1933.

54,462 more males were born than females, or 107 males to every 100 females: this is slightly lower than the average of the last ten years, which was 108.

The rate of natural increase (5·5 per mille) was again lower than in any other province, the next lowest being 8·77, while the infant mortality was the highest.

Calcutta and Jessore both again showed an excess of deaths over births, viz., 7·7 and 4 per mille, respectively, against 4·3 and 5·9 per mille in 1932.

Cholera.—There were 29,242 deaths from cholera in 1933 against 33,910 in 1932; this represents a decrease of 14·3 per cent. as compared with the previous year and of 60 per cent. on the average of the quinquennium. 2,268 deaths occurred in the towns and 26,974 in rural areas.

Mortality was higher than in any other province except Assam.

The death rate per mille was highest in Tippera (1·4 per mille), Dacca (1·3) and Bakarganj (1·2) against a provincial rate of ·6. In every district the rate for the year was below its average for the decade 1923-32, except in Tippera, where it was equal to the average. No deaths were reported in Darjeeling district.

The number of inoculations performed during the year was 1,036,643 against 952,105 in 1932.

Small-pox.—The mortality from this cause showed a considerable increase, the number rising from 7,910 to 15,426 and every district being affected. Even so, however, this represents a reduction from the average of the previous five years from ·4 to ·3 per mille of the population.

The death rate was highest from March to May, but it was lower in every month except February than in the corresponding months of the previous decade. In Calcutta the incidence was heaviest, 3·49 per mille against the previous ten years' average of 1·05; the outbreak in Calcutta was mainly responsible for the abnormal increase in the urban mortality from 1,194 in 1932 to 5,498 in the year under review.

There were also a great increase in the mortality amongst young children, 808 infants under the age of one year and 915 children between one and ten years dying of small-pox as against 170 and 398, respectively.

Four provinces in India returned a higher percentage of mortality.

The number of persons vaccinated fell from 6,670,134 to 6,637,097.

The average cost of each successful case of vaccination stood at 1 anna 9 pies, the same figure as in the previous year, while the cost of manufacture of a grain of lymph was reduced from 1·11 pies to 1·4 pies.

Special attention is invited to the remarks in paragraph 91 of the Report on the efficacy of vaccination in preventing and combating this disease, which was responsible for 1·3 per cent. of the deaths in Bengal during 1933.

Malaria and Kala-azar.—Mortality from fevers rose from 691,513 in 1932 to 812,393 in 1933, the death rate being 16·3 per mille of population against 13·8 in 1932 and 14·4 during the last quinquennium. Malaria accounted for 413,922 and Kala-azar for 13,447 of these deaths, an increase over the previous year of 86,536 and 2,727, respectively. The death rate from malaria was heaviest in Nadia with 20·0 per mille, Rajshahi (18·9), Jessore (18·5), Malda (17·7), Murshidabad (14·9), Birbhum (14·5), Pabna (13·2) and Dinajpur (13·0). Every district except Khulna, 24-Parganas and Calcutta showed an increase over the previous year, the increase being most noticeable in Rangpur (from 7·8 to 12·5) and Pabna (from 9·4 to 13·2). The fever indices fell in two distri ts only (Calcutta and the 24-Parganas). The number of new Kala-azar cases admitted for treatment increased from 105,840 in 1932 to 129,539 in 1933, the increase being greatest in Rajshahi, Jessore, Dinajpur, Rangpur and Darjeeling.

An important feature of this year was the experiment, initiated in certain areas of the Burdwan district, in the intensive treatment of the population with plasmochin and quinine. Particulars of the experiment, which aims at preventing the infection of mosquitoes with malaria germs and thus rendering their bites harmless, will be found in paragraph 84 of the Report; it was not, of course, possible to make any conclusive deductions from the results during the first year, but the results were encouraging and the effect of the experiment will be watched with keen interest.

Another departure was the free distribution of quinine in five highly malarious thanas in Bengal, to which reference is made in the same paragraph and which appears to have had beneficial results in the localities.

The threat to Calcutta from anopheles ludlowii continued to cause anxiety, and the seriousness of the position was more generally appreciated when it was relealised that mosquitoes of this species had penetrated as near the city as the Salt Lake. Two additional survey units were sanctioned and the campaign was extended over larger areas around Calcutta. The measures taken during the year again averted the danger, but any relaxation of the campaign is likely to have most unfortunate results on the health of the city.

Respiratory diseases.—These diseases were responsible for 82,173 deaths in 1933 against 62,249 in 1932, representing death rates of 1·6 and 1·2 per mille, respectively. Calcutta was highest with 8·5 deaths per mille, Jalpaiguri (5·1), Howrah and Hooghly (3·7) and Darjeeling (3·5). In every district the death rate was higher than in the previous year. 37,337 of the deaths were from pneumonia as compared with 28,158 in 1932, and all the districts except Howrah and Birbhum shared in this increase.

Phthisis accounted for 14,802 deaths, an increase of 3,001 over the previous year; Calcutta returned the highest death rate (2·17 per mille) followed by Darjeeling (1·35) and there was an increase in all but five districts.

Fairs and festivals.—The Public Health Department and the authorities concerned are to be congratulated on the satisfactory arrangements which they made to prevent the outbreak of infectious diseases at the Ganga Sagar and the Nangalbundh melas. There were two imported cases of small-pox at the former, while there were sixteen cases of cholera, one of which proved fatal, among the lakh of visitors to Nangalbundh, although cholera had already been prevalent in the locality.

Sanitary works and water-supply.—Rs. 52,38,472 or 46·3 per cent. of the total income of municipalities were spent on sanitary works during the year against Rs. 58,32,213 or 47·6 during 1932. Rs. 22,64,196 were spent on conservancy, Rs. 14,60,058 on water-supply and Rs. 7,09,310 on drainage; the average expenditure on sanitary works generally per head of population was Rs. 2-4-2½, a decrease of annas 4 from the previous year.

In rural areas the district boards maintained their expenditure on sanitary works and water-supply at much the same level as in previous years: 3 per cent. of their income was spent on water-supply, ·1 on drainage and 8·4 on sanitation against the corresponding figures of 3·5, ·07 and 8·2 in the previous year.

Of the total expenditure of Rs. 88,62,000 union boards spent Rs. 38,88,000 in carrying out the various works of public utility contemplated by the Village Self-Government Act, Rs. 5,50,000 being devoted to water-supply and Rs. 1,32,000 to drainage and conservancy.

School hygiene.—Medical officers visited 183 schools and inspected 21,140 boys and 550 girls, as against 189 schools, 20,320 boys and 1,204 girls in the previous year. Their reports showed that 38·5 per cent. of the children were well nourished and 38·9 per cent. fairly nourished, while the remaining 22·6 per cent. were returned as ill-nourished; these fingers show a welcome improvement on the returns of the previous year. 16 per cent. were found to be suffering from eye trouble and 6·3 per cent. from defective teeth. There was a large increase in the number of inspections carried out by rural sanitary inspectors, who visited 4,468 schools and examined 1,09,693 pupils. The corresponding figures for 1932 were 2,730 schools and 86,310 pupils.

Educational propaganda.—1,315 lectures and demonstrations were given during the year and were attended by 20½ lakhs of people, as against 18 lakhs, who attended the 1,300 lectures in 1932. The number of baby shows and health exhibitions, also, was slightly higher than in the previous year. The popularity of the lectures and cinematograph shows on sanitation and the increased demands for the services of the officers and material of the publicity section of the department amply justify the Ministry's faith in the value of this form of propaganda. The rural population are able to learn for themselves the recognised principles of hygiene and sanitation and to appreciate the immense benefits to be derived, with such small effort, from following them.

Any improvement in the sanitary conditions of the province as the result of this mass education must necessarily be gradual, but Government are confident that the interest aroused in this presentation of problems which so intimately affect the countryside must have an ever increasing influence upon the attitude of the public and lead in course of time to a more general application of simple health principles throughout the province.

Personal.—The Minister desires to express his appreciation of the good work and untiring efforts of all the officers of the department and, in particular, to acknowledge the services of Dr. Khambata, who continued to hold the post of Director of Public Health throughout the year.

By order of the Govt. of Bengal.

(Ministry of Public Health),

H. R. WILKINSON,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Page 35—Rule 75.—Delete clause (b) of rule 75 and for the figures and letter "75 (a)" substitute the figures "75."

Page 28.—Insert the following as rule 53A:—

Attachment of pay for debt.

(Vide section 60 (1) of the Civil Procedure Code.)

53A. I. The pay of a Government servant while on duty is exempt from attachment for debt to the extent of—

(i) the whole of pay, where it does not exceed forty rupees monthly;

(ii) forty rupees monthly, when the pay exceeds forty rupees and does not exceed eighty rupees monthly; and

(iii) one moiety of the pay in any other case.

Provided that where a decree-holder is a society registered or deemed to be registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, 1912, and the judgment-debtor is a member of the society, the provisions of sub-clauses (i) and (ii) shall be construed as if the word "twenty" were substituted for the word "forty" wherever it occurs and the word "forty" for the word "eighty."

II. Leave salary, if less than pay, is wholly exempt from attachment, but leave salary which is equal to pay is liable to attachment to the same extent as pay while on duty.

Note 1.—Compensatory allowances are not included in the term "pay" for the purpose of this rule and should be treated as exempt from attachment by a Civil Court. Exchange Compensation allowance is included.

Note 2.—The maximum pay attachable by a Civil Court is the pay earned and not what remains after satisfying any debts due to Government on account of advances taken under rule.

Note 3.—Subscriptions to funds recognised by Government, instalments in repayment of advances from the General Provident Fund and recoveries of income-tax, deductions for which appear in the pay bill, should be excluded from the aggregate pay for the purpose of attachment by a Civil Court.

Note 4.—Sterling Overseas Pay, or that portion of leave salary which is based on Sterling Overseas Pay, not being payable in British India, is not liable to attachment by a Court of Law in India as part of pay or leave salary of a public officer and cannot be taken into account in assessing the amount which is liable to such attachment.

Note 5.—Cases may occur in which the judgment-debtor does not sign the acquittance roll and intentionally allows his pay to remain undisbursed; or the judgment-debtor, being a gazetted officer, or not being a gazetted officer but being permitted to draw his pay on a separate pay bill, may refrain from preparing his pay bill and drawing his pay regularly in order to evade payment on account of an attachment order issued by a Court of Law. In such circumstances the head of the office or, in the case of a gazetted officer or of an officer treated in this respect like a gazetted officer, the Administrative Officer of the Department concerned may draw the pay of the judgment-debtor in satisfaction of the attachment order subject to the restrictions laid down in the main rule and remit the amount to the Court concerned. The amount of the pay drawn should be charged in the accounts, the particulars of the attachment order being cited in the acquittance roll or the pay bill, as the case may be, as an authority for the charge and the Court's receipts for the amount should be filed with the attachment register.

III. SUPPLEMENT.

Official Papers.

Report on Public Instruction in Bengal for the year 1933-34.

CHAPTER I.

General.

1. The year 1933-34 was a period of quiet and steady work in the Department of Education. The cloud of economic depression had not lifted from the province and the initiation or development of many useful measures was either prevented or retarded.

There was, in spite of this, a general increase in the number both of educational institutions and of pupils and (with one bitter exception) a very welcome abatement of terrorist activities.

2. (i) In accordance with the optional scheme framed by Government under the Rural Primary Education Act, 1930, steps were taken during the year under review to constitute District School Boards in the seven districts of Birbhum, Dinajpur, Bogra, Pabna, Mymensingh, Noakhali and Chittagong. These School Boards which will relieve district boards of their educational work will begin work from the beginning of the year 1934-35. These seven districts are to be congratulated on their wisdom, and it is hoped that the initial experience gained by these purely educational boards will prove of great use when the Act is in full swing. Other district boards are now considering the scheme with a view to its adoption.

(ii) All preliminaries in connection with the introduction of free and compulsory primary education in Ward No. IX of the city of Calcutta were settled during the year by the Corporation of Calcutta, who have also sanctioned the appointment of an Attendance Officer. The scheme, which does not involve the imposition of any education cess or the receipt of any aid from provincial revenues, will begin to operate from 1934-35.

(iii) The 10 per cent. cut in the salaries of officers was reduced to 5 per cent. in this year, and the relief thus afforded proved very welcome.

(iv) The reduced rates of grants paid to non-Government colleges and secondary schools continued.

(v) A revised syllabus in physical education was introduced in primary and secondary schools. Additional emphasis was laid on physical culture by the introduction of games and folk dances on a larger scale and by the deputation of a larger number of Sub-Inspectors of Schools and teachers to physical training classes.

(vi) The zenana system of education was entirely abolished.

(vii) Many school buildings, particularly those in the district of Darjeeling, were seriously damaged by the violent earthquake which took place on 15th January 1934.

(viii) An important step forward was taken by the District Board of Jalpaiguri in the year under report, who issued a declaration making all Board Primary Schools in the district free. The District Board of Murshidabad also made primary education free in some of the schools managed by them.

(ix) Various measures were devised and experiments undertaken to endeavour to improve discipline and to bring teachers and pupils into closer touch with each other.

3. (i) So far as educational progress can be assessed by figures, the following tables will show what has been achieved since the preceding year:—

	Number of institutions.

CHAPTER II.

Administration and Control.

The authorities which exercise in varying degrees administrative, academic or financial control over educational institutions in the Presidency are the Education Department of Government, the two Universities of Calcutta and Dacca, the Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Dacca, district boards and municipalities and various religious and philanthropic societies—both Indian and non-Indian. The control of general education vests ultimately in the Minister of Education who is an elected member of the Legislative Council.* Throughout the period under review the Hon'ble Mr. Khwaja Nazimuddin, C.I.E., was in charge of the Education portfolio. European Education was, as previously, in charge of a Member of His Excellency the Governor's Executive Council.

2. The Education Department, Bengal, is composed of (a) members of the—

(i) Indian Educational Service (Men's and Women's Branches);

(ii) Bengal Educational Service (Men's and Women's Branches); and

(iii) Subordinate Educational Service, and

(b) officers holding—

(iv) special posts; and

(v) posts not included in any of the services mentioned above.

*Medical schools and colleges are under the control of the Local-Self Government Department, and agricultural, technical and industrial (except engineering) institutions of the Agriculture and Industries Department.

(i) Indian Educational Service.—Recruitment to this service (which was made by the Secretary of State) has ceased for some years, and the Provincially Recruited Service which is to take its place was not formally constituted until after the close of the year 1933-34. The majority of the posts in this service are held now by Provincial Service officers or by officers recruited on special rates of pay.

(ii) Bengal Educational Service.—The Bengal Educational Service comprises the majority of the superior posts in the department, whether teaching or inspecting. There was a slight reduction—202 as against 208—of the permanent posts in this service, due to the reduction in status of some posts and other causes. The Women's Branch of 20 strong remained at that figure.

(iii) Subordinate Educational Service.—At the beginning of the year, appointments in the Subordinate Educational Service numbered 2,154. During the period under review, some posts were abolished and others created, and the total at the end of the year was 2,140 divided into various categories of service as shown below:—

	1st April 1933.	31st March 1934.
Teaching ..	1,342	1,340	(including 85 posts held in abeyance or lying vacant).
Inspecting ..	314	314
Miscellaneous	96	90	(including 4 posts held in abeyance).
Ministerial ..	402	396
Total ..	2,154	2,140

Besides the above there were certain other temporary posts (either whole or part-time) in existence on 31st March 1934 which are enumerated below:—

Whole-time posts—
Lecturers	10
Physical Instructress, Bethune College and Collegiate School	1
Teachers of the School Final Classes attached to Darjeeling Government High School	3
Miscellaneous	19
Clerks	10
Part-time posts—
Lecturers	7
Drawing Master, David Hare Training College	1
Total ..	51

(iv) Special posts.—Besides the regularly constituted services there are a number of posts classed as special, or not included in the classified lists. These numbered 40—as in the preceding year.

The post of Special Officer for Primary Education, Bengal, which was created towards the close of the preceding year, was held by Mr. J. M. Sen, a member of the Bengal Educational Service from 14th March 1934 in place of Dr. W. A. Jenkins of the Indian Educational Service who went on leave.

3. Direction.—The Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, is the executive head of the Education Department of the Government of Bengal. During the year under review Mr. J. M. Bottomley held this post, and was assisted in his work by. Mr. R. Wolfenden, Assistant Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, Khan Bahadur Mr. M. Maula Baksh, Assistant Director of Public Instruction for Muhammadan Education, Mr. J. Buchanan, Physical Director , and Mr. J. M. Sen, Special Officer for Primary Education (from the 14th March 1934)

4. Inspection.—The subjoined table indicates the strength of the departmental inspecting staff as it stood on 31st March 1934.

(c) Excludes the post of District Inspector of Schools, Chittagong Hill Tracts, which has been temporarily reduced to the status of a Subordinate Educational Service post.

5. Extra-departmental agencies.—Difficulties of communication, the numerical weakness of the Departmental Inspectorate, and the multiplicity of educational institutions make proper control of them an exceedingly difficult matter, and I have to acknowledge with gratitude the great help which the department has received from Magistrates and other Executive Officers in the districts. Not only do they act as presidents of innumerable school committees, but by means of conferences, personal inspection, advice and suggestions they render invaluable aid to the cause of education.

More especially in the two districts in Bengal, Midnapore and Chittagong, which have been most deeply affected by terrorist propaganda, have District Magistrates worked unceasingly to produce in the student population a healthier outlook. The department is also indebted to the chairmen of district and municipal boards for the interest they have evinced for the spread and improvement of primary education in rural and urban areas respectively. The various missionary societies —Indian and non-Indian, and other organisations like the Nari Siksha Samity, the Brahmo Samajes and the Society for the Improvement of Education among the Backward Classes—deserve special mention for their unabated zeal in spite of the present economic depression for the spread of education, particularly among girls and women and the members of backward communities. The railway administrations of the presidency have done valuable work by maintaining a number of schools at important centres, which though established chiefly for the education of the children of railway employees are attended by the children of all communities.

CHAPTER III.

University and college education.

1. Calcutta University.—Sir Hasan Suhrawardy, Kt., O.B.E., M.D., etc., was Vice-Chancellor of Calcutta University during the period under review. In December 1933 Dr. Harendra Coomar Mookerjee, M.A., Ph.D., offered to the University a further sum of Rs. 1,00,000 in 3½ per cent. Government promissory notes for creating an endowment in memory of his mother. The late Rai Bahadur Beharilal Mittra by his will left to the University a sum of Rs. 4,000 per month for the advancement of Hindu female education and a committee was appointed by the Senate in April 1933 to frame a scheme for carrying out the wish of the testator. The subjoined table will show that the numbers of students increased in all classes except the M.Sc. Class in which there was a slight fall in numbers:—

	1932-33.	1933-34.
In M. A. Classes	894	1,115
In M. Sc. Classes	247	230
Undergraduate students (in Commerce Classes)	108	154
Women students	52	58

2. Dacca University.—Mr. G. H. Langley, I.E.S., was the Vice-Chancellor of the University during the period. The University registered 984 students on 31st March 1934; of this number 531 (including 35 women) were reading for Arts degrees, 215 (including a woman) for Science degrees, while 171 were in the Law Department, 44 in the Commerce Department and 23 (including one woman) engaged in Research. The Halls (including the women's hostel) had 374 students in residence on 31st March 1934.

3. Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Dacca.—The Dacca Board has completed the 14th year of its existence. Khan Bahadur Abdur Rahman Khan, who had ably worked as Secretary of the Board since January 1926, having been transferred to the Inspectorate in August 1933, Khan Sahib Abdul Khaliq was appointed to succeed him. The cost of maintaining the Board during the period under review was Rs. 43,515, of which Rs. 8,244 was met from provincial revenues. Excluding Islamic intermediate colleges the number of intermediate colleges under the supervision of the Board rose from 4 to 5, the increase being due to the inclusion of the Kamrunnessa Intermediate College for Girls, Dacca, which was recognised with retrospective effect by the Dacca Board in May 1934. Two of these colleges, viz., Dacca Intermediate College and Eden Intermediate College for Girls, are maintained by Government; the Jagannath Intermediate College receives aid from the department.

4. Colleges.—The total number of arts colleges in the Presidency remained unchanged during the year; 45 of these were for men and 6 for women, their roll strength increased from 20,867 to 23,023, and the cost of maintenance rose from Rs. 34,67,254 to Rs. 36,18,352. Of the men's colleges, 10 (including the Islamic intermediate colleges) were, as previously, maintained by Government, 19 received aid from the department and 16 were unaided. The following tables give comparative figures of enrolment and maintenance charges of arts colleges for men for the last two years:—

	Number of students.
	1932-33.	1933-34.

From other sources	2,91,359	2,96,199
Total ..	33,24,883	34,68,041

As in previous years a sum of Rs. 2,27,960 was distributed by Government in the period under review in giving grants to non-Government arts colleges. Financial stringency was responsible for the continuance of the 10 per cent. cut on all grants and the inability of Government to give the usual grant of Rs. 1,29,000 which in normal years is distributed among non-Government arts colleges for the improvement of libraries, laboratories and gymnasia.

5. Government colleges.—The number of students reading in Government arts colleges for men rose from 3,205 to 3,508 during the period. The cost of maintaining these colleges rose from Rs. 13,36,032 to Rs. 14,10,330, of which Rs. 9,90,869 was borne by provincial revenues. The average annual cost of educating a student was Rs. 402, of which Rs. 282 was met from provincial revenues. After careful consideration of the recommendations of the Bengal Retrenchment Committee, Government prescribed specifically for the first time, last year, the number of hours which the principals, professors and lecturers of Government colleges should ordinarily devote to teaching work each week. A system of tutorial supervision over students by college teachers was introduced during the year in all first grade Government arts colleges with a view to bringing the students more closely into personal touch with their tutors. There are practical difficulties in the way of realisation of this most desirable object, but the results reported are considered to be generally satisfactory.

The following table gives statistics relating to Government colleges for men :—

*Islamic intermediate colleges maintained by Government are dealt with in Chapter X.

†Includes 117 post-graduate students

Beyond the inevitable changes in the personnel of their staffs due to transfers, retirements and death, there is little of moment to relate in the life of Government colleges.

Founder's Day at Presidency College and the College Duty Fund annual meetings at Islamia College were celebrated in the presence of the usual distinguished gatherings.

At Sanskrit College there is an increasing amount of research work being done by outside students. Rajshahi celebrated its Diamond Jubilee with great pomp, and the scheme for the establishment of an agricultural institute in close connection with the college moved a little nearer completion. A recrudescence of terrorist activity in Chittagong forced the college to close for a short time towards the close of the year, but normal working was soon restored.

More than one college complained of inadequate staff, and so long as a principal is counted a part of the tutorial staff, there will never be a satisfactory way of evading difficulties caused by transfer.

6. Non-Government colleges.—Besides the colleges maintained by Government, there were 35 other arts colleges in the province; of these 19 received a regular monthly grant-in-aid from public revenues, and 16 were maintained entirely from private sources.

In the aided colleges the number of students rose from 9,478 to 10,218 and the cost of maintenance from Rs. 12,11,287 to Rs. 12,32,958, Rs. 2,06,490 of this amount being provided from provincial revenues. The Scottish Church College in Calcutta and the Brojomohan College in Barisal were the largest colleges with 1,389 and 1,294 students, respectively, and at the other end of the scale come the Islamic Intermediate College at Serajganj with 34 students and Victoria College at Narail in the Jessore district with 110 students.

In the unaided colleges the total number of students rose from 7,676 to 8,701 and the cost of maintaining them from Rs. 7,77,564 to Rs. 8,24,753. In these institutions the disparity in number is even more marked. Vidyasagar College, Calcutta, with 2,335 and St. Joseph's College, Darjeeling, with 4 students being the largest and smallest. The following table gives the enrolment for all the non-Government colleges—both aided and unaided:—

Increased numbers, often the result of extended affiliations, improved the financial position of many colleges, and in several the rather drastic cuts in salaries which poverty had made necessary were wholly or partially restored.

CHAPTER IV.

Secondary education.

1. The following table which includes figures relating to both boys and girls' schools (whether Indian or European) shows that the number both of institutions and pupils show an increase compared with the previous year:—

		Number of schools.
		1932-33.	1933-34.
High English schools		1,186	1,221
Middle English schools		1,873	1,889
Middle vernacular schools		62	60
Number of pupils		456,175	463,060
Cost of maintenance	Rs.	1,49,09,770	1,53,76,660

The only decline occurs in the case of middle vernacular schools.

Secondary education of Indian boys.—[The secondary education of Indian girls and of Europeans is dealt with in other chapters.]

2. Schools and pupils.—The total number of secondary schools for Indian boys rose in the year under review from 2,966 to 3,003. High English schools increased from 1,103 to 1,133 and middle English schools from 1,809 to 1,817; while middle vernacular schools declined from 54 to 53. Pupils reading in high schools rose from 264,084 to 268,706, but in middle English and middle vernacular schools the numbers fell from 157,643 and 3,788 to 157,391 and 3,591, respectively. The figures for pupils in 1933-34 include 440 girls reading in high English schools, 1,944 girls reading in middle English schools and 121 girls reading in middle vernacular schools.

3. Expenditure.—The total cost of maintaining secondary schools for Indian boys rose during the year under review from Rs. 1,22,96,193 to Rs. 1,26,59,618. Of the total expenditure Rs. 20,96,692 or 16·6 per cent. came from public funds and Rs. 105,62,926 or 83·4 per cent. from private sources as compared with Rs. 20,46,896 or 16·8 per cent. and Rs. 102,49,297 or 83·2 per cent., respectively, in the previous year. High English schools cost during the period Rs. 97,87,952, middle English schools Rs. 28,18,912 and middle vernacular schools Rs. 52,754; the corresponding amounts in the previous year were Rs. 94,56,310, Rs. 27,85,136 and Rs. 54,747, respectively. The expenditure on middle vernacular schools therefore decreased with the decline in their number during the year under report.

4. Manual instruction.—There is an astonishing lack of variety in the range of subjects taught in our secondary schools. Work in them is dominated by thoughts of the Matriculation Examination, and few have the wit to realise that what is done outside that somewhat narrow range is of vital importance in the intellectual and moral development of the child.

Fifty-eight schools of secondary status have opened classes in some form of handwork—carpentry, weaving, smithy work being the favourites—and agricultural scheme devised and sanctioned by Government in 1929 was in operation in 56 middle and high schools. The reports from these are varied; in too many it is apparent that apathy and lack of interest are fatally at work, although there are welcome and outstanding examples of schools where farm work is a real part of school life.

It is curious that school final classes which are conducted in seven Government high schools are not more popular. They provide very sound instruction in a course of Science deliberately framed. It leads to vocational training in professional institutions, and yet during the year there were only 74 pupils in them.

5. The number of pupils who appeared at the Matriculation Examination of the University of Calcutta, and at the similar school-leaving examination of the Dacca Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education was 20,441. Of these 12,743 passed. The figures for the preceding year were 18,435 and 12,140.

6. The principles regulating the distribution of Government grants remained unaltered. The reduction of 10 per cent. in their amounts coincided with a fall in that part of schools' income derived from private sources, and this double disability affected deeply both the efficiency and the morale of secondary schools. Rules regarding grants had to be relaxed, and the undignified scramble for pupils between rival institutions in contiguous areas was intensified. Loans from private individuals and from semi-public funds such as teachers' provident funds were resorted to, in order to start off a complete cessation of work, and miserably inadequate salaries, and forced contributions from teachers were the rule rather than the exception.

The lean years through which Bengal is passing have left a mark upon its schools and teachers which will be difficult to eradicate. Patient work will do much to curb the evils that have arisen, but no completely satisfactory solution of the problem of secondary education in Bengal can arrive until there is more unified control, much larger grants from public revenues, and complete agreement between the public and those responsible for the education of the province as to the necessity for a radical reorganisation and redistribution of its secondary schools.

CHAPTER V.

Primary education.

1. General statistics.—There were increases in both the number of schools and number of pupils. The following table gives figures for these and also for the cost of maintaining the schools:—

		1932-33.	1933-34.
Number of schools	.. .. ..	62,719	64,320
Number of pupils	.. .. ..	21,92,130	22,86,442

Primary education of Indian boys.—[The primary education of Indian girls and of Europeans is dealt with in other chapters.]

2. Schools.—The number of primary schools for Indian boys rose during the year from 44,633 to 45,431; this increase was shared by the Presidency, Dacca and Rajshahi Divisions. The decrease of schools in the Burdwan Division is attributed to the efforts that were made towards amalgamation of the weaker schools. In the following table figures are given for each division of the Presidency separately:—

Division.	1933-34.						1932-33.
	Number of schools managed by Government.	Number of schools managed by district boards.	Number of schools managed by municipal boards	Number of schools receiving aid from public funds.	Number of schools not receiving aid from public funds.	Total.	Total number of schools returned in the previous year.

Rajshahi Division ..	13	1,261	11	6,304	774	8,363	8,126
Total ..	81	3,991	268	36,440	4,651	45,431	44,633

The decrease in the number of schools managed by Government was due to the abolition of the practising school attached to one Guru Training School in the Burdwan Division.

3. Pupils.—On the 31st March 1934, primary schools for Indian boys were attended by 17,90,154 pupils (including 116,146 girls) as compared with 1,725,040 pupils (including 104,939 girls) in the preceding year. Pupils reading in primary schools for Indian boys, together with those reading in the primary classes of secondary schools, numbered 1,973,276 against 1,904,551 in the previous year, showing an increase of 68,725 pupils in the year under report. But the most deplorable fact in connection with primary education is that a very large proportion of the pupils, viz., approximately about 70 per cent., never reach Class IV or V, and many of those that read up to Class II or complete the lower primary course, soon lapse into illiteracy on account of inefficient teaching. Of the total male population of school-going age 50 per cent. were receiving primary education during the period under review.

4. Relative progress of Hindus and Muhammadans.—Classified according to communities, there were altogether 817,087 Hindu and 1,034,276 Muhammadan pupils reading in primary schools at the close of the year under report as compared with 740,369 and 969,413, respectively, in the previous year. The number of Hindu pupils increased by 76,718 and that of Muhammadan pupils by 64,863 in the course of the year. Of the total Hindu male population 7·2 per cent. and of the Muhammadan male population 7·3 per cent. were under instruction in boys' primary schools on 31st March 1934. In the preceding year the percentages were 6·5 and 6·8, respectively.

5. Expenditure.—The total cost of maintaining primary schools for Indian boys fell during the year under review from Rs. 66,37,904 to Rs. 64,99,588. Of this amount Rs. 36,56,716, or 56·26 per cent., was borne by public funds and Rs. 28,42,872, or 43·74 per cent., was provided from private sources. In the previous year public and private funds contributed 55·7 and 44·3 per cent., respectively, of the total cost of maintenance of boys' primary schools. The expenditure from public funds included Rs. 21,62,627 paid from provincial revenues, Rs. 755,433 provided from district funds and Rs. 738,656 contributed by municipal funds against Rs. 22,11,751, Rs. 769, 236 and Rs. 718,088, respectively, in the previous year. Thus expenditure incurred from provincial and district funds for the upkeep of primary schools decreased, while that from municipal funds increased. Reduction of grants under certain heads was responsible for the smaller expenditure from provincial revenues; in the case of the district boards, the decrease of expenditure was due to the reduced income of the district boards on account of the economic distress prevailing in the country.

6. Panchayati union schools.—It has already been mentioned that there was 3,991 primary schools under the management of the district boards. Of these about 3,000 were constructed before 1917-18. The schools constructed after 1917-18 have come to be known as panchayati union schools. These schools are managed by district boards with financial aid received from Government. In the year under report a sum of Rs. 1,41,048 was distributed among district boards for the maintenance of 1,080 (912 boys' schools and 168 girls' schools) panchayati union schools in the presidency. Extension of the scheme must be postponed pending the introduction of the Bengal (Rural) Primary Education Act of 1930 when they may have to be readjusted according to local needs. Panchayati union schools are not so popular as the Biss' Scheme schools, as the latter impart education without charging any fees.

7. Biss' Scheme schools.—Extension of the scheme to rural areas has been suspended in view of the enactment of the Bengal (Rural) Primary Education Act, and no new scheme for urban areas could be financed during the year on account of monetary stringency. The number of schools of this type located in rural and urban areas was 283 in the year under report. These schools are managed by district and municipal boards on the basis of grant received from Government amounting to half the total approved cost. The municipalities with a few notable exceptions have not generally shown much enthusiasm in contributing their share of the cost. No fees are charged by these schools.

8. Primary schools in Calcutta.—The number of boys' primary schools in Calcutta rose during the year from 483 to 503, and that of pupils attending them from 39,017 to 40,379. Pupils reading in boys' primary schools and in the primary department of secondary schools together numbered 57,356 on 31st March 1934 against 51,020 in the previous year. The total cost of maintaining boys' primary schools in the city fell during the period under review from Rs. 7,27,830 to Rs. 7,26,795, of which Rs. 6,12,691 was borne by public funds. The free primary schools for boys managed by the Corporation of Calcutta which are included in the number mentioned above rose during the period from 147 to 150. With regard to the scheme for the introduction of free and compulsory primary education in Ward No. IX of Calcutta which was sanctioned by Government in January 1933, the Corporation have recently sanctioned the appointment of an Attendance Officer. The rules framed under section 15 of the Bengal Primary Education Act of 1919 have also been prepared by the Corporation and approved by Government so that the scheme may be put into operation from the beginning of the Calender year 1935.

9. Night and continuation schools.—Night schools which are meant to make the labouring classes literate are held in the evening for about a couple of hours daily, and are attended mostly by adults, who cannot attend day schools on account of their occupations. The object of these schools being production of literate labourers, they usually teach reading, writing and arithmetic. In the year under report there were 982 night schools in the presidency which taught 24,756 pupils.

Continuation schools which are of two types are found, as previously, only in the Presidency Division and Calcutta. Both types meet in the evening. The first teach only the three R's and are attended mostly by boys, who are working during the daytime, and are unable to attend day primary schools. The object of the second sort is to teach adults, who have already finished the preliminary primary course in an ordinary primary school or in a school of the first type. The subjects usually taught in these schools are arithmetic, a language and a technical subject which is generally tailoring, carpentry, hat-making, bookbinding or typewriting. On the 31st March 1934 there were altogether 236 continuation schools in Bengal, which taught 7,108 pupils. Unfortunately, neither teachers nor pupils give very serious attention to the technical subjects, which are of such practical value.

10. Examinations.—In the year under report 19,683 boys appeared in the Primary and Maktab Final Examinations, of whom 14,215 were declared successful. In the previous year the corresponding figures were 16,672 and 11,280, respectively.

11. Curriculum.—No change was made during the period in the curriculum previously in force. Some of the subjects, e.g., English and Geography, are, however, so indifferently taught that boys on seeking admission to high English schools are frequently admitted into lower classes. This state of things will, it is feared, continue until teaching in primary schools is improved by the appointment of better qualified teachers and the syllabus is further simplified.

12. Scholarships.—During the year under review no change was introduced in the number and value of the primary scholarships or in the rules for their award. These scholarships fall under two categories, viz., preliminary primary scholarships and final primary scholarships. The former are awarded as before by district and municipal boards and the latter by the Divisional Inspector of Schools. Most of the Divisional Inspectors of Schools are of opinion that as the cost of primary education has gone up considerably in recent years, and as the number of competitors for the scholarships has risen, both the number and value of the scholarships should be increased. Exception having been taken by the Accountant-General, Bengal, some years ago to the award of preliminary primary scholarships from the funds of local bodies, it was decided that the scholarships should be awarded by the District Inspector of Schools out of Government funds, an equal amount being deducted from the grants placed at the disposal of local bodies by Government. This temporary arrangement is still in force.

13. Double-shift system.—According to this system each school-house is made to accommodate two schools or batches of pupils—one in the morning and another in the afternoon. The same teacher teaches both the batches, although the work puts great strain on him. The great advantage of the scheme lies in the economy in the expenditure on school-houses, which results from its adoption. The experiment was in operation during the year in five Biss' type schools in the district of Bogra; the average attendance in them, however, fell from 215 to 175.

14. School post offices.—The number of primary school teachers who did postal duties in addition to their own work during the year under review was 356 against 289 in the previous year. The remuneration for postal work varied as before from Rs. 5 to Rs. 15 a month.

15. While it is satisfactory to see every year increase in the numbers of pupils reading in primary schools, it cannot be said that any real progress is being made so long as the appalling wastage now apparent is allowed to continue.

Lack of money to be spent upon salaries, coupled with the ever-increasing number of schools (and it is fairly certain that Bengal, in spite of its awkward systems of communications has far too many already) are factors each contributing towards the degradation of primary education.

The District School Boards, which will come into being from the beginning of the year 1934-35, have before them an immense task of reconstruction.

CHAPTER VI.

The Training of Teachers of Indian Schools.

A—Training of Men Teachers.

1. Educational training institutions in the province are of three kinds. The most advanced—training colleges—are for those intending to become senior (what are called "English") teachers in schools or to enter the service of Government as Sub-Inspectors of Schools. Next to them come training (or normal) schools which for men are differentiated in title from guru training schools which train primary school teachers, while in the case of women training schools embrace both grades of work, distinguished by the titles senior and junior.

2. For men there are two training colleges—one at Calcutta and one at Dacca. Both are Government institutions, and the annual cost of training between 150 and 160 students is something over a lakh of rupees. Although these colleges are, as have already been mentioned, meant to train men for the inspectorate, as well as for school teaching, the syllabuses which are followed contain little that is useful or suitable for men whose chief work will be the inspection of country primary schools. As might be expected in institutions which open avenues to Government employment, there is very keen competition to gain admission.

3. There is no Government training college for women, and the needs of the province are very inadequately met by training classes at Diocesan College and Loreto House, in Calcutta. The combined capacity of these two is 40.

4. There are in the province five normal schools, though the old division of Bengal into east and west still persists in their names and courses of study. West Bengal calls them training schools and prescribes a three-year course, while in East Bengal they have the more modern title of normal school and a two-year course. All five of the institutions are maintained by Government at a total cost of a little more than one and a quarter lakhs of rupees. When full they can have in training at one time over 400 students for junior posts in secondary schools.

Guru training schools or institutions for the training of primary school teachers numbered 85 during the year. With a few exceptions these are maintained entirely at Government expense, the students under training being paid stipends also at the rate of Rs. 10 per month. During the year 2,241 students were being trained in these schools, this number showing an increase of 62 over the preceding year. The total cost was Rs. 3,60,053. Certain schools, notably that at Hatchapra, district Nadia (organised on the lines of Punjab schools), and the one at Birisiri on the boarder of the Garo Hills in Mymensingh are doing excellent work in providing for their students a complete training in village work.

5. The training institutions for women teachers which parallel normal schools and guru training schools are called training schools which work up to two standards—senior and junior.

There are ten of these training schools for women, three of which are maintained by Government, and the number of pupils in them was 256 compared with 241 in the preceding year. The total cost of maintaining them amounted in the year under review to Rs. 79,042, of which Rs. 64,295 was met from provincial revenues; the corresponding figures for the previous year were Rs. 77,591 and Rs. 61,201, respectively.

Modern educational theory lays great stress upon the paramount importance of the training of the teacher. The facilities afforded in Bengal are hopelessly inadequate, and there is the additional disadvantage that especially in the lower grades of training institutions, the mental equipment of the students is far below the standard which should be demanded. The following table is illuminating:—

	Men teachers.		Women teachers.
	Total number of teachers.	Number of trained teachers.	Total number of teachers.	Number of trained teachers.
Primary schools ..	82,280	24,403	5,670	597
Middle schools ..	10,716	2,944	434	233
High schools ..	14,740	1,909	513	174

CHAPTER VII.

Professional and technical education.

1. Law colleges and classes.—Facilities for the study of Law are available in three institutions in the presidency, viz., University Law College, Calcutta, the Law Departments of Ripon College and the Law Faculty of the University of Dacca. The number of students reading in the three institutions fell from 2,334 to 2,214 of whom 1,857 were Hindus and 334 were Muhammadans. The upkeep of the University Law College, Calcutta, and the Law Department of Ripon College cost Rs. 2,17,946 as compared with Rs. 2,21,160 in the previous year. The expenditure incurred for the maintenance of the Law Classes attached to Dacca University, which has not been shown separately in the University returns, is included in the General Tables under the head "Universities". The three institutions passed 584 out of the 1,326 students who sat for the Final B. L. Examination.

2. Medical colleges and schools.—Higher medical instruction is provided by three institutions, viz., Calcutta Medical College, the Carmichael Medical College, Belgachia, and the School of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene. The three institutions enrolled 1,413 students (including 16 women) on 31st March 1934, as compared with 1,331 (including 17 women) on the corresponding date of the preceding year. Of the total number 58 were Europeans and Anglo-Indians, 1,245 were Hindus and 93 were Muhammadans. The cost of maintaining the three institutions fell during the period from Rs. 8,81,311 to Rs. 8,60,080. In the Final Examination the three institutions presented altogether 519 students of whom 208 were declared successful.

The number of medical schools in the presidency was 12, 9 of which are recognised; these schools altogether had 2,535 pupils (including 40 women) against 2,387 students (including 30 women) in the previous year. Of the total roll strength 2,220 were Hindus and 263 were Moslems. The cost of maintaining medical schools rose during the period from Rs. 5,51,871 to Rs. 5,61,537. Altogether 1,830 candidates appeared from these schools in the Final Examination and of these 1,017 were successful.

3. Veterinary College, Belgachia.—The number of students reading in this college rose during the year from 176 to 184, of whom 110 were Hindus, and 39 were Muslims. The cost of upkeep of the college (Rs. 1,82,571 as compared with Rs. 1,73,243 in the previous year) was borne entirely by provincial revenues. Out of 183 students who sat for the Annual Examination in the year under review 121 were successful.

4. Bengal Engineering College.—In the Bengal Engineering College, Sibpur, roll strength fell during the period from 288 to 283 (of whom 165 were in the Civil Engineering Department, 70 in the Mechanical and Electrical Engineering Department and 48 in the Industrial or Artisan Department). Classified according to race or creed, there were 10 Europeans and Anglo-Indians, 226 Hindus, 43 Muslims and 4 of other communities. The cost of maintaining the college rose from Rs. 3,60,495 to Rs. 3,69,330, of which Rs. 3,07,346 against Rs. 2,96,058 was met from provincial revenues. The average annual cost per student was Rs. 1,304, of which Rs. 1,086 was borne by Government. The results of the college in the various examinations held during the period under review are indicated below:—

Examinations.	Examinees.	Passes.
B. E., Civil Engineering	45	41
B. E., Mechanical Engineering	7	6
Associateship in Mechanical Engineering ..	3	3
Diploma in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering ..	8	6

5. Ahsanullah School of Engineering.—The number of students under training in the school fell during the year from 433 to 409 (161 in the Sub-Overseer Classes, 175 in the Overseer Classes, and 73 in the Artisan Department). Of these students 330 were Hindus and 77 Muhammadans. The total cost of maintenance fell from Rs. 1,33,110 to Rs. 1,28,652, of which Rs. 84,580 came from provincial revenues.

6. Bengal Survey School.—In the Bengal Survey School, Mainamati, enrolment fell during the period from 65 to 55, of whom 40 were Hindus, 14 were Muslims and 1 was an Indian Christian. No kanungo candidate joined the school last session; on the other hand, 5 students were admitted to the Special Training Class in Mine Survey. The cost of upkeep of the school rose during the period from Rs. 18,540 to Rs. 19,672, of which Rs. 14,716 was met from provincial revenues. The school passed 23 out of 27 students in the Survey Final Examination and 27 out of 33 students in the Amin Examination.

7. Art schools.—During the year under report there were, as previously, 5 art schools in the presidency of which 1 was managed by Government and 3 were aided. The Government School of Art, Calcutta, had 280 students as compared with 254 in the previous year, of whom 265 were Hindus and 10 were Muslims, the rest being of other creeds. The maintenance of the school cost Rs. 41,843 (against Rs. 42,625 in the preceding year) of which Rs. 28,922 was met from provincial revenues. Twenty-one students passed the Final Examination out of 25 who sat for it. The Commercial Art Section of the school continues to flourish.

8. Commercial institutions.—Facilities for advanced commercial education continued to be provided by the two universities and the Commerce Department of Vidyasagar College, Calcutta. Teaching in I. Com. is imparted by Jagannath Intermediate College, Dacca. The four institutions had 876 students on 31st March 1934 against 760 in the previous year. Altogether 25 students passed the M. Com., 105 students the B. Com., and 27 students the I. Com. Examination in the year under review, the number of examinees being 33,224 and 44, respectively.

The number of commercial schools in Bengal fell during the period from 24 to 22, of which 1 was managed by Government and 3 were aided; the rest did not receive any aid. The Government Commercial Institute, Calcutta, registered 396 pupils on 31st March 1934 against 373 in the previous year of whom 364 were Hindus and 20 were Muslims, the rest belonging to other communities. The cost of maintenance fell during the period from Rs. 65,616 to Rs. 58,877, of which Rs. 31,016 was provided from provincial revenues. Ninety-four students of the institute sat for the Final Commercial Course Examination, of whom 82 were successful. In the Special Commercial Examination 32 students of the school passed out of 77 candidates, who presented themselves. The recommendation made by the Bengal Retrenchment Committee that the institution should be closed down has not been accepted by Government.

9. Weaving schools.—The weaving schools of the Presidency are controlled by the Department of Industries. Some of them are permanently located and some are peripatetic. Hence, the number of these schools fluctuates considerably from year to year. The chief of these schools is the Government Weaving Institute, Serampore, which had 156 pupils under training on 31st March 1934 against 138 in the previous year. Of the total enrolment 117 were Hindus, 26 were Moslems and 13 were Indian Christians. The cost of maintaining the school rose during the year from Rs. 37,075 to Rs. 39,217, of which Rs. 38,029 was borne by provincial revenues.

10. Music schools.—The number of music schools in the Presidency was 7 as compared with 10 in the preceding year, of which 6 received aid from public funds. The decrease in the number of schools was due to the abolition during the period of 3 schools in the district of Bankura for want of support. The music schools taught 328 pupils during the year as compared with 504 in the year preceding.

11. Agricultural schools.—There is no institution in Bengal for imparting agricultural instruction of the collegiate type. With regard to the teaching of agriculture in secondary schools some account has been given in Chapter IV of this report. Of the agricultural schools proper which numbered 6, 2 were managed by Government, 3 were aided and 1 was unaided. These schools registered 279 pupils on 31st March 1934 against 161 in the previous year.

12. Other technical centres.—The following senior technical schools which afford facilities for vocational education may be specially mentioned in this report:—

(i) In the Calcutta Technical School roll strength dropped from 175 to 164. The cost of maintaining the school also fell from Rs. 55,722 to Rs. 49,426, of which Rs. 31,835 was provided from public funds. Of the 49 students who appeared in the Board of Control's Technical School Annual Examination, 36 were successful. Five out of 6 apprentices passed the Electrical Wiremen Course Examination; 20 students of the school are reported to have passed the Final Examination and left the school.

(ii) The Kanchrapara Technical School registered 78 students against 77 in the previous year. The upkeep of the school cost during the period Rs. 90,350, of which Rs. 35,350 came from provincial revenues. Of the 59 candidates who sat for the Board of Control's Annual Examination 53 were declared successful. During the year under report 2 senior posts of Assistant Head Masters were retrenched which were replaced by Assistant Mastership on lower pay; the post of the Workshop Instructor was kept in abeyance as before and the contingent expenditure was reduced by 40 per cent. In the circumstances, some dislocation of work was inevitable.

(iii) The Bengal-Nagpur Railway Technical School, Khargpur, had an enrolment of 37 apprentices on 31st March 1934. The cost of running the school amounted to Rs. 5,072, of which Rs. 2,548 was met from public funds. Of the 32 apprentices who appeared in the Board of Control's Technical School Examination in the period under review 23 were declared to have passed.

CHAPTER VIII.

Education of Indian Girls and Women.

1. During the year ending 31st March 1934 the total number of educational institutions of all types and grades meant for Indian girls rose from 18,538 to 19,427, and that of pupils attending them from 500,307 to 536,168; thus institutions and pupils increased by 889 and 35,861, respectively. Girls reading in girls' schools together with those under instruction in boys' schools numbered 649,297 on 31st March 1934; of this number 275,091 were Hindus, 362,746 were Muhammadans, and 11,460 were of other communities. Altogether 8,976 boys are reported to have attended girls' schools in the year under review.

2. Controlling agency.—For the inspection of girls' schools in the Presidency there are, as previously, 2 Inspectresses of Schools; the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions are in charge of the Inspectress of Schools, West Bengal, who has her headquarters at Calcutta; and the Dacca, Chittagong and Rajshahi Divisions are in charge of the Inspectress of Schools, East Bengal, whose headquarters are at Dacca. Each of the Inspectresses of Schools is assisted in her work by 6 Assistant Inspectresses of Schools.

3. Collegiate education.—During the year under report the number of arts colleges for Indian women remained unchanged at 6, including the Women's Section of Vidyasagar College, Calcutta, which counts as a separate unit. Two of the arts colleges for women, viz., Bethune College, Calcutta, and the Eden Intermediate College, Dacca, are, as previously, directly managed by Government; the rest including the Diocesan College which receives aid from the department are under private management. The women's colleges registered 596 pupils on 31st March 1934 as compared with 508 on the corresponding date of the previous year; the subjoined table indicates the enrolment and cost of upkeep of each of the women's colleges. Besides this number there were 460 women reading in men's colleges and in the University Classes. The demand for college education is steadily increasing among Indian girls, in response to which the authorities of some arts colleges for men have opened separate sections for women in their colleges.

Eden Intermediate College, Dacca ..	60	4	1	65	15,777	3,690	19,467	300

In the Bethune College roll strength increased by 43, the increase being accompanied by a considerable reduction in the average cost per girl. Further development of the college has been arrested by inadequate and out-of-date class room accommodation and absence of affiliation in B. Sc. Standard in Physics and Chemistry. The college has secured affiliation in civics I. A. Standard and Economics Honours in B. A. Standard with effect from the session 1934-35 and the creation of the post of an Additional Lecturer in Economics has been sanctioned to cope with the work. The question of utilising the Christ Church School buildings, which have been acquired for the college, is still under consideration; the premises will probably be adapted for college classes instead of a hostel as was originally contemplated. The college passed 12 out of 16 girls in the B. A. Examination; in the Intermediate Examination the college passed 25 out of 34 girls in Arts, and 8 out of 10 girls in Science.

The Eden Intermediate College, Dacca, continues to occupy rented buildings. In August 1933 the appointment of a Classical (Arabic and Persian) Teacher was sanctioned by Government; this teacher instructs the Moslem girls of Class VII and upwards in Arabic. The Health Officer, Dacca Municipality, arranged for the delivery of a set of lectures to the First Year students in First Aid and Home Nursing. The college passed 28 out of 38 students in the I. A. Examination. There is no Science Class attached to the institution.

The opening of classes for women in men's colleges has slightly reduced the roll numbers in Diocesan College. This college passed 9 out of 10 students in B. A. and 19 out of 19 students in the I. A. Examination. The Loreto House presented 17 students in the B. A., 25 students in the I. A., and 8 students in the I. Sc. Examinations, of whom 14, 25 and 4, respectively, were successful. The Victoria Institution passed 2 girls out of 4 who appeared in the I. A. Examination, 1934.

4. Secondary schools.—(i) High schools.—The number of high English schools for Indian girls rose during the year under report from 39 to 44; the starting of new high schools for girls in Calcutta is responsible for the increased number. Of these schools 5 are, as previously, maintained by Government and 32 are aided by the department; the rest receive no aid. The desire for secondary education of Indian girls is so keen that the authorities of some boys' high English schools, e.g., Faridpur, Serajganj, have opened separate sections for girls in their schools. The number of girls reading in high English schools also increased during the year from 11,452 to 13,212. In the Matriculation Examination held in 1934, 609 girls out of 1,047 were successful; the corresponding figures for the previous year were 547 and 813, respectively. Maharani High School, Darjeeling, an aided institution, received a grant from His Excellency the Viceroy's Earthquake Relief Fund for repair of the damage caused by the last earthquake.

(ii) Middle schools.—The number of middle English schools for Indian girls rose during the year from 57 to 70, and that of girls attending them from 9,083 to 10,699. The number of middle vernacular schools for girls, however, declined from 11 to 7; these schools taught 810 girls as compared with 982 in the preceding year.

High schools for girls cost Rs. 8,05,312 and middle schools Rs. 3,62,958 during the year under report, of which Rs. 3,27,803 and Rs. 1,41,031, respectively, came from public funds.

The 10 per cent. emergency cut made in the grants payable to non-Government secondary schools for girls in the "excluded areas" of Darjeeling and Chittagong Hill Tracts was abolished with retrospective effect in the year under review to bring them in line with the grants paid to non-Government secondary schools for girls in the "transferred areas" which were not subjected to the emergency cut.

5. Primary schools.—The year 1933-34 closed with 18,871 primary schools of all types for Indian girls attended by 603,829 girls; the corresponding figures for the previous year were 18,067 and 563,358, respectively. The number of panchayati union schools for girls remained unchanged at 167. But the number of free primary schools managed by the Corporation of Calcutta rose during the year from 84 to 85 and they taught 12,785 pupils as compared with 12,438 in the preceding year. The number of primary schools which aim at educating peasant girls living in the remoter parts of the Presidency Division was 22 as previously. Among private agencies which are striving for the spread of primary education among Indian girls the Nari Sikha Samiti, the Society for the Improvement of Backward Classes, Bengal and Assam, and Missionary Societies deserve special commendation. The Society for the Improvement of Backward Classes which receives from the department a substantial grant for their educational activities managed 118 girls' schools during the period under review. The Nari Sikha Samiti also maintains some schools in different parts of the province. The Uttarpara Hitakari Sava continues to encourage female education by holding examinations and awarding scholarships to deserving girls. Primary schools for Indian girls cost Rs. 14,46,172 during the year under review to which Rs. 9,86,222 was contributed by public funds.

6. Special schools.—On 31st March 1934 the presidency had 46 technical, industrial and other special schools for Indian girls, which were attended altogether by 2,789 pupils; the corresponding numbers in the preceding year were 43 and 2,138, respectively. In special schools girls are taught such arts and crafts as will enable them to earn a living the training being supplemented by some amount of general knowledge. The technical subjects that are usually taught are needle-work of various kinds, lace-making, weaving, spinning and tailoring.

7. Zenana education.—The system of zenana education, a method adopted by which zenana governesses teach married purdah women at central gatherings or by visiting them in their houses, has been totally abolished, as the results achieved by this method of education did not justify the expenditure incurred. It has been decided by Government that the funds that will be set free in consequence of the abolition of the system of zenana education are to be utilised for the improvement of education among Moslem girls. The new scheme involves (a) grant of aid to Junior Madrasahs and middle English schools for Moslem girls, and (b) creation of stipends available for Moslem girls who will agree to join training schools and colleges.

8. Needle-work.—The quality of neddle-work is reported to have improved immensely in urban schools under the guidance of the peripatetic needle-work teachers. In village primary schools, however, says the Inspectress of Schools, West Bengal, where a pandit is in charge of the school, the teaching given is unsatisfactory, and cannot be improved, until funds are available for the employment of more trained women teachers. The sewing grant of Re. 1 a month paid to some schools by the department for the purchase of sewing materials is much appreciated, although the amount is hardly adequate. The Lady Carmichael diploma in needle-work has been greatly responsible for improvement of needle-work done by girls, and girls from East and West Bengal are said to be eager to compete for the diploma.

CHAPTER IX.

Education of Europeans and Anglo-Indians.

1. Schools.—The year 1933-34 closed with 67 institutions for the education of Europeans and Anglo-Indians as compared with 68 in the preceding year; the decrease of 1 school is due to the exclusion of Hastings Day School, Calcutta, in which the number of pupils having fallen off very considerably, the school was closed in March 1933. Of the 67 institutions reported, 3 are for special instruction, and 64 impart general education. The 3 special institutions mentioned above are (1)

the Commercial and Technical Classes attached to the Y. W. C. A., Calcutta, (2) Dow Hill Training College, Kurseong, and (3) the Children's House, Kurseong. The 64 institutions for general education include 24 secondary, 19 higher grade, 20 primary and 1 ungraded schools. Three of the institutions, viz., Victoria Boys' School, Dow Hill Girls' School and Dow Hill Training College for School Mistresses, Kurseong, are directly managed by Government; the rest are managed by various religious and philanthropic societies and railway authorities. Several European schools are mixed schools containing both boys and girls, but as the standard forms prescribed for annual returns do not recognise the nomenclature "mixed schools," such schools have been included in the category of boys' schools or girls' schools, according as they have respectively a majority of boys or girls in them.

2. Pupils.—The subjoined table shows the European schools of the Presidency classified according to management together with their enrolment:—

	1932-33.		1933-34.
	Number of schools.	Number of pupils.	Number of schools.	Number of pupils.
Government	3	361	3	385
Church of England	9	1,873	9	1,817
Church of Rome	30	6,769	30	6,563
Non-conformist	5	812	4	850
Undenominational	17	1,405	17	1,407
Jewish	3	324	3	338
Armenian	1	120	1	98
Total ..	68	11,664	67	11,458

The total number of pupils reading in European schools thus fell during the year under report from 11,664 to 11,458 or by 206. Of the total enrolment in 1933-34, 6,191 were boys and 5,267 were girls as compared with 6,437 boys and 5,227 girls, respectively, in the preceding year; thus although the number of girls increased by 40, that of boys decreased by 246. Non-European pupils reading in European schools numbered 2,556 against 2,539 in the preceding year; of these 1,129 were Indian Christians, Jews, Armenians and others.

3. Expenditure.—The total cost of maintaining European schools amounted during the year under review to Rs. 35,92,761 (including boarding charges of Rs. 10,58,215 as compared with Rs. 10,82,372 in the previous year). The amount was contributed from the following sources:—

	1932-33.	1933-34.
	Rs.	Rs.
1. Provincial revenues	8,33,256	8,41,463
2. Municipal grant	30,971	44,505
3. Fees	16,74,335	15,94,025
4. Subscriptions and donations	10,12,738	11,12,768
Total ..	35,51,300	35,92,761

Thus expenditure increased under all heads except fees.

4. Scholarships.—A sum of Rs. 28,039, as compared with Rs. 27,178 in the previous year, was spent on the award of scholarships to pupils of European schools in 1933-34. This figure represents the amounts actually drawn by students, and excludes the amount of scholarships, which were awarded in other provinces, but paid in Bengal. Altogether 187 scholarships were awarded.

5. Teachers.—The number of teachers employed in European schools in the Presidency during the year ending 31st March 1934 was 795 as compared with 784 teachers working in these schools in the previous year. Of the total number 148 were graduates; 475 teachers including 80 graduates were trained, and 320 teachers including 68 graduates were untrained. The number of trained and untrained teachers reported in the previous year were 474 and 310 respectively.

6. Training of teachers.—On account of financial stringency no European or Anglo-Indian male teacher was deputed in the year under report to the Chelmsford Training College, Goragali, Punjab, for training.

The Dow Hill Training College, Kurseong, which has facilities for training European and Anglo-Indian female teachers, enrolled 17 pupil teachers as compared with 18 in the preceding year. In the annual examination held in November 1933, seven Senior or Second Year students presented themselves and all of them were successful.

7. Examinations.—Government have now decided to realise an examination fee of Rs. 3 from each of the candidates for the Higher Grade School Final and Scholarship Examinations and Rs. 15 per student in the case of the Dow Hill Training College Final Examination. The two scholarships of Rs. 24 per mensem awarded on the results of the Higher Grade School Scholarship Examination have been made tenable at either a higher grade or a secondary school. The following table indicates the results of the various examinations for which pupils entered in 1932-33 and 1933-34:—

8. Education of sub-normal children.—The Children's House, Kurseong, which adopts special methods for training mentally and physically defective European children, registered 24 pupils on 31st March 1934 as compared with the same number on the corresponding date of the previous year. Stipends amounting to Rs. 2,520 were awarded by the department during the year under report for the maintenance and education of the children living in the House.

9. Trust funds.—(i) Sussex Trust.—The income of the fund amounted during the year 1933-34 to Rs. 28,436, and the expenditure for the same period was Rs. 23,495-9-5. Nine overseas scholars and twelve local scholars profited by the scholarships awarded. An expenditure of Rs. 4,884-6 was also incurred in connection with the award of scholarships under the head "Special endowment—(i—Overseas scholarships for European and Anglo-Indian girls (ex-students of the Dow Hill Training College, Kurseong)."

(ii) Doveton Trust Fund.—The total amount of receipts including the opening balance on 1st April 1933 and the interest accruing on Government securities during the year under report was Rs. 8,452-12-2 and the total expenditure for the same period was Rs. 6,616-6-6, leaving a closing balance of Rs. 1,836-5-8. Altogether 40 scholarships were awarded during the year under review out of the income derived from the fund.

10. Controlling agency.—Mr. T. G. Barker continued to act as Inspector of European Schools, Bengal, throughout the period under review. The Inspector of European Schools, Bengal, is also ex-officio administrator of the Doveton Trust Fund.

11. European Schools Code.—Owing to financial stringency it was not possible during the year under report to give full effect to the provisions of the revised Code of Regulations (1929) for European Schools, which led as in the previous year to a reduction in the amount available for maintenance, teaching-staff, and fixed grants to European schools in the presidency.

Government have approved of the revised system of awarding cadet and other similar grants to non-Government European schools involving an annual expenditure of Rs. 5,600 Necessary alterations have accordingly been made in the European Schools Code.

12. Association of Teachers of European Schools in Bengal.—This newly formed association already consists of 314 members recruited from 28 schools and bids fair to become an useful addition to the agencies which work in the province for the advancement of European and Anglo-Indian education. Departmental recognition was granted to the association in August 1933.

13. Government Schools, Kurseong.—The educational efficiency of the Government Schools, Kurseong, has been well maintained. Intermediate Classes in Arts have been added to the Victoria Boys' School; in the last I. A. Examination 4 students were presented from this school, all of whom were successful. Government were approached for according administrative sanction to the installation of electric lights in the Kurseong schools which was given after the close of the period under review. The Governing Bodies of Victoria Boys' School and Dow Hill Girls' School have been amalgamated to constitute a single Committee of Management for the two schools.

14. Financial position.—During the year ending 31st March 1934, there was practically no improvement in the economic situation. Fresh cases of parents being retrenched or businesses failing through trade depression have not come to notice, but at the same time very few cases of re-employment can be reported up to the present and the condition of those who have suffered is getting steadily worse. During the year under review a sum of Rs. 22,638-12 was spent by the Managing Committee of His Excellency the Governor's "Calcutta Schools Emergency Fund" in giving stipends to 255 European and Anglo-Indian children studying in 21 schools and but for this help it would have been impossible for the recipients to continue their education.

15. The earthquake.—Many European schools in the hills suffered considerably from the effects of the earthquake which took place in January 1934, and requests for assistance to rebuild and repair the school premises amounted to Rs. 2,88,000.

CHAPTER X.

Education of Muhammadans.

1. Statistics of Muhammadan pupils.—During the year under review the total number of Moslem students reading in all grades of educational institutions for Indians rose from 1,476,797 to 1,541,342. Of the total number 1,178,596 were boys and 362,746 were girls compared with 1,101,829 boys and 275,091 girls belonging to the Hindu community returned on 31st March 1934. The proportion of Muhammadan students to the total number of pupils under instruction at the end of the year rose from 51·7 per cent. to 51·9 per cent. The statistics for the last two years which are furnished in the following table show that the number of Moslem students increased in course of the year in all grades of institutions except professional colleges and special schools, the widespread economic depression which has overtaken all classes of people and has affected the Moslem community more particularly, is chiefly responsible for the decrease of pupils in such institutions. In arts and professional colleges Moslem pupils constituted 13·3 and 11·5 per cent. of the total enrolment against 13·4 and 11·8 per cent., respectively, in the previous year; in the high, middle and primary stages their proportions to the total number of students under instruction were 21·2; 24·6; and 55·01 per cent., against 20·2; 24·7; and 54·5 respectively in the year before; in special schools the proportion was 69·3 per cent. as compared with 70·6 in the year preceding.

	1932-33.		1933-34.

2. Special institutions for Muhammadans.—Besides the general schools and colleges, which are open to boys and girls of all communities, special facilities for high education are provided for Moslem boys by the Muslim Hall of Dacca University, and the Islamia College, Calcutta. The following paragraphs briefly describe the progress achieved by Moslem students in the period under review in the special institutions of different types which are chiefly meant for them:—

(i) Islamic intermediate colleges.—During the year under review the number of Islamic intermediate colleges in the Presidency was 3 as previously; 2 of these colleges, viz., the Islamic Intermediate Colleges at Dacca and Chittagong, are maintained by Government as before, and the third, which is at Serajganj, is aided by the department. This college was paid a lump grant to meet the past deficit in its working expenses. The number of students reading in the 3 colleges rose from 142 to 154 on 31st March 1934. Of the 72 candidates that appeared in the Islamic Intermediate Examination in 1934, 55 were successful. For the first time in the year under report the students of Islamic intermediate colleges sat for the examination in English Literature and History as optional subjects.

(ii) Madrasahs.—The total number of Madrasahs in Bengal rose in course of the year from 710 to 725, but the number of pupils attending them fell from 66,692 to 65,683. The total cost of maintaining Madrasahs increased from Rs. 13,73,354 to Rs. 13,83,901 and the amount of the expenditure met from public funds from Rs. 4,76,378 to Rs. 4,88,107. The particulars in respect of each type of Madrasahs are shown below:—

	No. of Madrasahs.	No. of pupils.	Cost of maintenance.	Cost met from public funds.
			Rs.	Rs.
(a) Reformed Senior (High) ..	34	5,662	2,69,023	1,33,290
(b) Reformed Junior	558	49,847	8,96,189	2,60,123
(c) Old type Senior	45	5,654	1,87,001	90,336
(d) Old type Junior	88	4,520	31,688	4,358
Total ..	725	65,683	13,83,901	4,88,107

In the High Madrasah Examination conducted by the Dacca Board 501 students appeared and of these 233 were declared successful.

A committee of five members was appointed by the Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Dacca, to enquire into the causes of low percentage of passes at the High Madrasah Examination. In the opinion of the committee the low percentage of passes is due mainly to failures in English and that the teachers of English in Madrasahs are not always sufficiently qualified. To remedy this state of things the committee made the following chief recommendations:—

(i) that the number of English teachers in High Madrasahs be increased by one and that of Arabic teachers decreased by one;

(ii) that, if possible, arrangements should be made at the Teachers' Training College, Dacca, for a vacation course on the methods of teaching English for English teachers of High Madrasahs; and (iii) that Government be requested to increase the grant of High Madrasahs to Rs. 200 a month.

In the Junior Madrasah Examination held in November 1933, 3,020 candidates appeared of whom 2,017 passed.

The title classes in Fiqh and Usul groups attached to Calcutta Madrasah have been continued on a temporary basis. Of the 247 candidates who appeared during the period from Calcutta Madrasah in the different examinations conducted by the Central Madrasah Examination Board 176 were declared to have passed. Considering the increasing demand for English-knowing Maulvis it has been suggested that English should be a compulsory subject in the Arabic Department, Calcutta Madrasah.

(iii) Maktabs.—In the year under review the number of maktabs rose from 26,405 to 26,743, of which 17,270 were for boys and 9,473 for girls. The number of pupils reading in maktabs also increased during the period from 867,556 to 931,765; of the total number of pupils 647,786 were boys and 283,979 were girls. In the previous year maktabs were attended by 608,519 boys and 259,037 girls. Maktabs are very popular institutions as they impart both general and religious instruction. The total cost of maintaining maktabs fell in the period under review from Rs. 21,99,227 to Rs. 21,79,842 and the amount of expenditure borne by public funds from Rs. 11,31,536 to Rs. 10,92,218.

(iv) Quran schools.—The number of Quran schools or unsecularised maktabs rose during the period from 340 to 359; these schools were attended by 10,023 pupils as compared with 8,451 in the preceding year. These schools teach the pupils the rituals of Islam in addition to the ordinary school subjects.

(v) Muallim training schools.—The number of muallim training schools which are intended to train maktab teachers remained unchanged during the year at 6, namely, 1 in the Burdwan Division, 3 in the Presidency Division, 1 in the Chittagong Division and 1 in the Rajshahi Division. All these schools are managed by Government; they had 166 teachers under training against 167 in the previous year. These schools have been dealt with in Chapter VI of this report under the head guru training schools. Maktab teachers are also admitted to guru training schools.

3. Education of Muhammadan girls.—During the period under review the number of Muhammadan girls reading in all classes of recognised schools in the Presidency rose from 329,150 to 355,894. Of the total number 20 were in colleges, 210 were in the high stage, 422 were in the middle stage, 354,083 were in the primary stage and 1,159 were in special schools; the corresponding numbers for the previous year were 11; 161; 290; 328,219 and 469, respectively. Proposals were submitted to Government towards the end of the year for the establishment of a high English school for Moslem girls in Calcutta under the management of Government with the Sakhawat Memorial School as its nucleus. In October 1933 a scheme for the improvement of education among Moslem girls in the presidency at an annual cost of Rs. 12,600 was administratively approved by Government. The scheme involves among other things (a) a total annual grant-in-aid of Rs. 2,400 to 3 Junior Madrasahs for girls at Rajshahi, Barisal and Sutiakati, and (b) the creation of 11 stipends of Rs. 5 each per mensem tenable for 2 years in Classes V and VI of the Madrasahs mentioned above.

4. Special facilities.—For the encouragement of Muslim education in the presidency, the following facilities have been provided by Government, namely, reservation of places in favour of Muslim students in Government and Government aided schools, grant of special scholarships and stipends to Muslim students and of free studentships up to a limit of 15 per cent. of their own enrolment, and higher grant to denominational schools, e.g., 50 per cent. higher grant to recognised maktabs.

5. Advisory committee.—The committee which was appointed by Government in 1931 to advise them with regard to the policy to be followed for the advancement of Muslim education in the presidency have concluded their labours and drawn up a report.

CHAPTER XI.

Education of special classes.

But there are special arrangements for education of the boys of the Nizamat family in the Nabab Bahadur's Institution, Murshidabad, where a separate hostel has been reserved for them. The Nizamat boys live in this special hostel under the direct supervision of the Head Master of the school. The number of Nizamat boys who occupied the hostel in the year under review was the same as in the previous year, viz., 26. The maintenance of the hostel cost Government Rs. 4,984.

2. Education of the children of backward classes.—In the subjoined table statistics are given showing the number of boys and girls of backward communities that were under instruction in various grades of schools and colleges in the presidency on 31st March 1934:—

In the succeeding paragraphs a concise account is given of the educational progress that was noticeable among the children of aboriginal and non-aboriginal backward classes during the year under report in each division of the presidency separately. In November 1933 revised rules for the award of free studentships in Government and Government aided schools were approved by (ii) Presidency Division (outside Calcutta).—The Namasudras and Pods of 24-Parganas, Khulna and Jessore are reported to have started quite a large number of primary and secondary schools for their children. The District Board of 24-Parganas subsidised many primary schools in the Sunderbans, which are populated chiefly by backward communities. CHAPTER XII.

Unrecognised institutions.

1. The term "unrecognised schools" includes various types of indigenous institutions from the most advanced to the elementary such as tols, pathsalas, Koran schools, Kyangs or Buddhist monastic schools and newly started primary schools and maktabs. Unrecognised schools do not, as a rule, adopt the curriculum prescribed by the university or the department, and are very often inferior in buildings, staff, equipment, teaching methods, discipline and organisation. The number of these schools naturally fluctuates considerably from year to year. In the year under report there were 1,588 unrecognised schools in Bengal attended by 67,171 pupils as compared with 1,554 schools having 65,704 pupils in the preceding year. Of the total enrolment 51,162 were boys and the rest were girls.

2. The most conspicuous among these schools are the group of institutions founded by Dr. Rabindra Nath Tagore at Bolpur and Surul in the district of Birbhum, where considerable prominence is given to the artistic side of education, and where endeavours have been made to combine the best Indian traditions with the most up-to-date system of Western education. Valuable work is also being done by this group of schools in effecting improvement in village life. Reference should also be made to the Kabindra College, Goila, Bakarganj, which offers higher Sanskrit studies including Ayurveda and Hindu Philosophy, and the Mahakali Pathsala, Mymensingh, a girls' school, which imparts general instruction besides religious teaching on orthodox lines. The pathsala taught 128 girls in the year under review against 150 in the year preceding.

CHAPTER XIII.

Residence of students and their physical and moral training.

1. During the year ending 31st March 1934 the number of students residing in hostels and boarding houses attached to various types of educational institutions in the Presidency fell from 30,110 to 29,433. Of the total number 24,561 lived in hostels meant for Indians and 4,872 occupied boarding houses meant for Europeans and Anglo-Indians. Of the Indian boarders 21,503 were males and 3,058 were females. Among the European and Anglo-Indian boarders 2,802 were boys and 2,070 were girls. The fall in the number of boarders residing in hostels is attributed chiefly to the higher cost of living in them.

On account of financial difficulties of Government, a general cut of 10 per cent. was made in the year 1932-33 in the grants admissible for superintendence of hostels attached to non-Government schools and colleges; these grants were subjected to a further 10 per cent. cut, i.e., altogether 20 per cent. cut in the year under review.

2. Messes.—Messes are preferred to hostels, as residence in a mess is cheaper and is not subjected to such strict supervision. The number of messes (including non-collegiate hostels) administered last year by the Students' Residence Committee of Calcutta University was 36 which accommodated 1,947 boarders. The number of messes managed by the Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Dacca, through the Assistant Inspector of Students' Residence during the same period was 24, and they provided accommodation to 591 students belonging to different institutions in the town of Dacca. Both in Calcutta and Dacca the major portion of the cost of residences occupied by students of backward communities is borne by Government.

3. Physical education.—It is generally recognised that a healthy constitution is essential to success in life, and that it can be secured only by some form of physical exercise. Almost all types of schools and colleges are said to be eager for providing facilities for games and sports to their pupils; but progress in this direction is greatly hampered by the absence of playing-grounds, lack of trained instructors and apparatus, inadequacy of funds and the absence of any provision for a midday meal for schoolboys and girls. The Government grant of Rs. 200 a month was paid, as previously, to the Young Women's Christian Association to enable them to maintain the services of a Physical Directress; this officer has done much to help girls' schools in organising games and sports. The allowance of the Physical Instructress of Bethune Collegiate School was reduced during the period for financial reasons.

The temporary Physical Training Centre, which was opened in July 1932 was granted during the period another year's lease of life. It cost Rs. 11,835-8 and in the second session which ended in March 1934 out of 19 students who joined the centre 15 completed the course and were awarded diplomas, the remaining 4 students were passed later after further examination. Two Nepali students were also trained by special arrangement. The local branches of the All-Bengal Teachers' Association, Calcutta and Dacca, organised a five weeks' training camp in each of which 46 teachers were trained in May-June 1934; altogether 85 of these teachers were awarded diplomas in physical training.

During the year under review a sum of Rs. 12,374-8 was sanctioned by Government for the purposes noted below:—

	Rs.	A.
(i) Training of Subdivisional Inspectors of Schools	1,000	0
(ii) Training of Sub-Inspectors of Schools	1,000	0
(iii) Training of teachers of middle English schools	600	0
(iv) Training of teachers of Junior Madrasahs	400	0
(v) Training of teachers of guru training schools	900	0
(vi) Health and games grants to girls' schools	1,475	0
(vii) Grants to play centres and clubs	4,999	8
(viii) Grants for inter-school competition	2,000	0
Total ..	12,374	8

One Subdivisional Inspector of Schools, 22 Sub-Inspectors of Schools and 57 teachers underwent a short course of training during the period; 14 girls' schools were aided with health and game grants; and 36 clubs were aided with game grants. The expenditure on all these items amounted to Rs. 9,438-9.

Among western games, football is most popular; hockey, tennis, and badminton are also played in urban areas. Indigenous games like hadudu, kapati, etc., are preferred in rural areas because they involve little or no expense. Swimming and rowing are practised in those places which can provide the organisation and funds required for the purpose.

In the Inter-School Drill Competition held by the Physical Director during the period under review, the Reformatory School, Alipore, topped the list. Drill together with games, folk dances and folk songs (the last two items introduced by Mr. G. S. Dutt, I.C.S., founder of the Bratachari Association) are doing much to remove the dullness and monotony of school work and have infused new life in the student community. The District Board of Birbhum has spent a sum of Rs. 550 on account of the employment of some itinerant instructors for the introduction of folk dances and folk songs in the schools of that district.

4. Boy scouts.—During the scout year 1933 there were in the presidency altogether 49 local associations, 340 troop officers, 127 pack officers, 6,436 scouts, 2,786 cubs, 462 rovers and 111 local association officers as compared with 52 local associations, 337 troop officers, 111 pack officers, 5,447 scouts, 2,116 cubs, 412 rovers and 131 local association officers in the previous year. The normal annual grant of Rs. 6,000 was paid to the Calcutta Branch of the Baden-Powell Boy Scout Association. According to the recommendations of Mr. N. N. Bhose, Provincial Organising Secretary, Bengal Boy Scout Association, a sum of Rs. 4,000 was also distributed to Government and non-Government schools with a view to help them in purchasing scout outfit, flags, charts, etc., required for the development of the scout movement in these schools.

5. Girl guides.—Girl guide companies are in existence in most of the important high and middle English schools in the presidency.

6. Medical supervision.—No funds were available in the year under report for giving effect to the scheme of medical examination and supervision of the pupils of Government High English schools and Senior Madrasahs outside Calcutta which has consequently been held in abeyance. As regards the scheme of medical inspection of the pupils of Government and aided secondary schools in the city of Calcutta, which has been transferred to the control of the Education Department since March 1933, the work was carried on as before by three part-time medical officers. The Asansol Mines Board of Health has a School Medical Officer for the mines area who examined the students of 54 schools during the year under review. The Medical Board attached to the Students' Welfare Committee of Calcutta University visited seven colleges and three high English schools in and around Calcutta. The total number of students examined during the year was 2,560. The follow-up and after-care work of the students suffering from defects and diseases was further developed, but the progress of medical examination was held up for a time owing to the inability of certain colleges to provide the necessary facilities.

7. Hygiene.—Lessons in Hygiene are given in all classes of schools, although it is a compulsory subject for Classes III to VIII. Theoretical lessons in Hygiene however are of little practical value unless the general principles inculcated by them are observed by students in their daily life. Propaganda work by means of lectures and exhibitions illustrated by magic lanterns which were organised at some centres are reported to have been both interesting and instructive. It is gratifying to note that in some schools the students have done such rural welfare work as cleaning of jungles, tanks and filth and burning of bamboo clumps.

8. Discipline.—The murder of Mr. B. E. J. Burge, District Magistrate of Midnapore, by a schoolboy from the local Collegiate School brought added disgrace to that unhappy neighbourhood and was a rude reminder that evil forces masked under the guise of patriotism were still at work. Much steady and patient work must be done before the poison is neutralised, and schools were encouraged by frank talks with boys and the provision of recreation for them out of school hours to create a more healthy atmosphere.

In some districts where a ward system has been introduced into schools, there has been a tendency to let it degenerate into a mechanical rotation of visits to boys' homes, devoid of the real companionship which is possible between teachers and pupils, and which can do so much to make the "tone" of a school.

In Government colleges, an attempt was made to introduce a tutorial system somewhat on the lines of that in vogue in the older universities in the west, and the result of the experiment will be watched with interest.

9. Religious and moral instruction.—Religious instruction continues to be given only in denominational schools like tols, madrasahs, maktabs and mission schools. In some institutions there are arrangements for giving religious instruction weekly; in others the days' work begins with a prayer or hymn in which both students and teachers participate. The question of giving religious instruction in public schools attended by students of various castes and creeds is a thorny problem which does not admit of easy solution. Lessons in morality given through the medium of text-books are generally sterile things: practice rather than precept must be the influence, and the social organisation of a school such as first aid classes, poor funds, scouting, debating clubs can be all powerful.

10. National schools.—During the calendar year 1933 the Presidency had 9 national schools with 1,137 pupils on their rolls as compared with 12 such schools having 1,244 pupils in the previous year; thus the number of schools decreased by 3 and that of pupils by 107. Reports received indicate that the influence of national schools on the life of the people in general is steadily diminishing.

CHAPTER XIV.

Conferences and committees.

1. The committee, which was constituted in 1931 to advise Government with regard to the policy to be adopted in future for the advancement of Muslim education in the presidency, has concluded its labours, but the report of the committee was not received during the year under report.

2. The usual local conferences of executive and educational officers were held in several districts, and discussion ranged over questions of grants, the improvement of teaching and Suri had an Agricultural and Industrial Exhibition which comprised a collection of educational exhibits from the district.

3. The Bengal Women's Education League held its eighth annual session in Calcutta in February 1934. Among the resolutions passed by the conference the following deserve special notice:—

(i) The conference stresses the importance of appointing women teachers in all town schools (primary) for girls and in mufassal schools also just as soon as conditions make such appointments possible.

(ii) The Bengal Women's Education League shall seek the advice of teachers with experience in village schools with a view to working out a more simplified and therefore more effective syllabus for such schools.

(iii) The conference urges that from the outset such plans may be made as will ensure matters relating to the education of girls having adequate consideration by the proposed Provincial Board of Secondary Education.

(iv) The conference views with intense regret the decision to close Diocesan College in Calcutta, a college which has had a worthy tradition in women's college education.

(v) The conference requests the University to appoint, at the earliest possible date, a qualified woman to supervise all recognised hostels for women.

4. The All-Bengal Teachers' Association held its tenth session at Asansol during the Easter holidays, 1934, and was presided over by Rai Bahadur Khagendra Nath Mitra, M.A. The resolutions passed at the meeting dealt among other things with the following important subjects, e.g., grants-in-aid, Matriculation Regulations, holidays, textbooks, provident fund scheme for teachers in non-pensionable service, rules of the School Code, facilities for female education, revival of the old M. E. and M. V. Examinations in place of the present M. E. and M. V. Scholarship Examinations, compulsory supply of midday refreshment to schoolboys and measures for improving their health.

5. By far the most important educational conference of the year was the one held at Government House, Calcutta, on 23rd, 24th and 25th of November 1933. This conference was composed of representatives of the Governments of Bengal and Assam and of the Universities of Calcutta and Dacca together with certain non-official members and one teacher deputed by the All-Bengal Teachers' Association. At the outset the conference was presided over by His Excellency the Governor, but during His Excellency's absence the chair was occupied by the Hon'ble the Education Minister, Bengal. Important educational questions, viz., the weaknesses of the present system of university education, more effective co-operation between the different institutions responsible for university teaching, the concentration of Honours Class in selected colleges, control of secondary education, the relation of secondary education to the Matriculation Examination and the financial instability of schools were discussed at the meetings.

The following resolutions were adopted:—

(i) Whereas it is essential to make provision for the better regulation and control of secondary education in Bengal, this conference is of opinion that a Statutory Board of Secondary Education should be established at an early date. This Board should have full authority to exercise such powers as may be entrusted to it by the statute:

Provided that sufficient funds should also be placed at the disposal of the Board for the purpose of discharging its functions and that the formation of the Board does not prejudicially affect the financial position of Calcutta University.

(ii) That this conference is of opinion that immediate steps should be taken for increasing the supply of trained teachers for work in secondary schools.

(iii) In the opinion of the conference, there should be no ban on high schools maintaining primary and secondary classes.

(iv) This conference is of opinion that immediate steps be taken to make an educational survey of the province with a view to finding out whether any amalgamation, reduction, redistribution or addition to the number of high schools is desirable, in order that the fullest benefit may be obtained from the available resources; any such rearrangement that might be found desirable should be so planned as to permit of the extension of educational facilities with the expansion of resources.

CHAPTER XV.

Text-book committee.

1. During the year under review, two members of the Provincial Text-Book Committee died and one member resigned his membership as he was absent from India for more than six months.

2. One thousand six hundred and seventy-seven books were received by the Secretary, Provincial Text-Book Committee, by the 31st March 1933 for consideration. Of these, 1,373 books were circulated to regular and co-opted members for examination, 304 books being rejected by the Secretary at the preliminary examination. In addition to the ordinary members 23 co-opted members had to be appointed to cope with the work of examination. Six hundred and six books were approved by this department during the year under report for use in secondary schools in this presidency.

3. The changes shown below were made by Government in the syllabuses of studies for primary and secondary schools and in the rules for the working of the Provincial Text-Book Committee during the year on the recommendation of the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal:—

(i) The syllabuses in Physical Training for secondary and primary schools were revised and new books for teachers were approved to replace Dr. Gray's Drill Book.

(ii) Rule 30 of the Text-Book Committee Rules was changed so that text-books approved by the department should continue on the approved list for four years instead of three.

(iii) The limit prescribed for text-books approved by this department under rules 10 (vi) and 17 of the Text-Book Committee Rules was fixed uniformly at 30 for all subjects instead of 30 in English, Vernacular and Mathematics and 15 in other subjects previously sanctioned by Government.

4. The award of the Braja Mohan Dutt Prize for Indian Ladies of the value of Rs. 45 for the year 1932-33 jointly to Miss Kumudini Rakshit and Sreemati Kalyani Devi was approved by the General Committee of the Provincial Text-Book Committee at its meeting held on the 2nd September 1933.

The following subject was chosen for the essay for the year 1933-34:—

"The importance of physical education in girls' schools and the forms of exercise best suited for girls."

CHAPTER XVI.

Education in the Legislative Council.

No important motion or resolution affecting education was debated in the Bengal Legislative Council during the year under review. The demands for educational grants in March 1933 provided, as usual, opportunities to members to discuss among other things the action of the Calcutta University in the matter of co-education, the policy of Government regarding the establishment of a Provincial Board of Secondary Education, and the desirability of slowing down university education until primary education is further advanced. In addition questions were asked with a view to elicit information about more detailed matter and their varieties showed that members of the Legislative Council continued to take a lively interest in the policy and administration of the Education Department.

Resolution on the report on the working of the Co-operative Societies in the Presidency of Bengal for the year ending 30th June 1934.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

Department of Agriculture and Industries.

Co-operative Societies.

CALCUTTA, THE 16TH JULY 1935.

RESOLUTION—No. 3526 Co-op.

Minister-in-charge: The Hon'ble Nawab K. G. M. Faroqui, Khan Bahadur.

Read—

The Report on the working of the Co-operative Societies in the Presidency of Bengal for the year ending 30th June 1934.

Khan Bahadur A.M Arshad Ali was in charge of the department throughout the period under review. During the earlier part of the period the superior staff of the department consisted of five Assistant Registrars and one Personal Assistant. In March 1934 a temporary post of Deputy Registrar was created to assist in introducing the new land mortgage banks, and the post of Assistant Registrar, Presidency Division, was left vacant.

2. The history of the period is again mainly one of struggle to maintain the credit of the movement through a period which unfavourable climatic conditions in some parts of the province, combined with economic depression throughout, made one of strain and anxiety. Government are accordingly glad to observe that, though no striking progress was secured, or could indeed have reasonably been expected, the department was on the whole in a stronger position at the close of the period than at its beginning. The Central Banks and all classes of societies increased their reserves. The Central Banks also increased their receipts from loans and deposits repaid by over Rs. 11½ lakhs and their issue of loans by over Rs. 1¾ lakhs. In the case of agricultural societies the decrease in repayments by individuals was more than off-set by the increased repayments from banks and societies. It is satisfactory to find that there was an improvement in the recovery of overdue debts, but the outstanding sums are still disquietingly heavy and the Registrar has already paid special attention to the problem of their recovery. His report discusses the causes of the present position, which are primarily economic and describes the various measures initiated to meet the difficulty. Perhaps the most important of these is the all-round reduction of interest rates, which, being in excess over the rates now prevalent in the open market, are an embarrassment to all types of society. Government are glad to note the progress already made in this direction. Another valuable development is the reorganisation of inspecting arrangements so as to secure more control and supervision with the existing staff. While one of the objects of the movement is to give training in self-organisation in self-help, times like the present throw a great strain on the resourses of the great majority of societies, and the check and guidance of trained officers is necessary for the maintenance of that confidence without which they cannot survive and retain the confidence and support of their members. Government will watch with interest the progress of these and of the other measures which the Registrar has initiated to maintain the solvency of the societies.

3. Effect was given to the previous year's decision by the establishment of three of the five land mortgage banks which Government are introducing to meet the demand for long-term credit. It was not possible before the close of the year to form an opinion as to the extent to which they will succeed in fulfilling their purpose. Their establishment was, however, generally welcomed, and Government will be prepared to make any change in their organisation, compatible with their financial security, which appears likely in the light of experience to make their operations more valuable to those whom they are designed to help.

4. The Government of Bengal (Ministry of Agriculture) have much pleasure in acknowledging the assistance rendered to the movement by the various district and subdivisional officers named by the Registrar and of non-official gentlemen connected in the movement. The thanks of Government are due to Khan Bahadur A. M. Arshad Ali for the way in which he has discharged his duties during another difficult year. The Hon'ble Minister also notices with pleasure the good work done by the departmental officers mentioned by the Registrar.

RESOLUTION No. 2517EDN

Calcutta, the 27th July 1935.

Minister in charge : The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur M. Azizul Haque.

INTRODUCTION.—Exactly a hundred years ago, the famous Resolution of the Government of India gave a new direction and a strong impetus to education in India. Since then the growth of education in Bengal has been rapid. The growing demand of the people of Bengal for educational facilities has been one of the most impressive features of our age. Schools and colleges arose in all parts of the province. The range of studies became gradually wider and wider and teaching more extensive The University of Calcutta was established to co-ordinate higher education and later developed to foster research. Under the present system a large educated community has grown up, which has supplied the province for generations in increasing measure, with the personnel for its administration, its learned and humble professions, its business and industry and its social and political leadership, and the province can legitimately take pride in what has been achieved in the field of education.

This process of expansion is still going on "Education has come to be regarded generally as a matter of primary national importance, an indispensable agency in the task of nation-building." Communities, which in the early days of English education, were slow to respond, are now fully awakened to the need and possibilities of education for their children. The demand for more institutions for the education of girls has been insistent all through the province for some time past. The movement has spread to backward classes—the depressed classes, the scheduled castes and even to the aboriginal tribes. All now demand education as a right.

But with all this, as time passed, it became manifest to thoughtful observers that the present educational system was tending to become stereotyped and mechanical and was not meeting in full the changing needs and requirements of the province. A great mass of the intelligent manhood of the province is at present driven in ever increasing numbers along the same, often unfruitful, course of study, which creates expectations that cannot be fulfilled and sometimes actually unfits those who pursue it from undertaking many useful occupations, necessary for the welfare and well-being of the province.

Attempts have been made in the past to remedy this state of affairs and to improve the system of education in the province. Public men and educationists, the Universities and the authorities of schools, have done much to adapt education to the new requirements of the times. There has been a great awakening to the need of improvement both in the quality of education provided and in the conditions which determine the working of educational institutions, but, in spite of the rapid expansion of education and attempts for a better type, we are still far behind and have a long way to make up, if Bengal is to take her proper place in the future history of India.

A hundred years have passed since Lord William Bentinck's Resolution on education. We stand to-day on the threshold of a new era. In a short time Bengal will be an autonomous province and its destinies will be very largely in the hands of its own people. "To educate our masters" will be more than ever a duty and a responsibility. For the last few years public opinion has shown genuine anxiety about the future of education The time is ripe, therefore, for a review of the whole position, especially of primary education, in which Bengal lags most behind, and there is more than ever to-day an imperative necessity to face the problems of education, estimate their magnitude and devise practical measures for their gradual solution. Bad education is as detrimental to the welfare of the community as want of education and forms a great menace to good Government, however it may be constituted, whether it be bureaucratic or popular. Expansion of education is still certainly the need of the province, but, if it follows unhealthy and unprofitable channels, the flood may devastate instead of fertilising the country. The problem is complex enough and the longer it is postponed the more difficult it will be, as its solution vitally concerns the future social, political and economic welfare of the province.

The following resolution is, therefore, an attempt to reorganise the present system and conditions of education, and particularly primary education, and the Government in the Ministry of Education are genuinely anxious that something should be done to better the conditions of education and so to train up the future generations that every Bengali child may reach, according to his aptitude and irrespective of his parents' position, the full measure of intellectual and moral achievement and that the young man of Bengal, who wishes to go in for higher education, may not at the end of his career find himself in a morass of disappointment but may be better equipped for the increasing struggle of life.

1. Defects of the Educational System.—The condition of education in Bengal has for many years caused anxiety to thoughtful observers and it has often been pointed out that the province is gradually losing the position of pre-eminence it once occupied in education. In 1917 the Calcutta University Commission was appointed to investigate the state of higher education in the Colleges and University and it presented a thorough and detailed Report with a carefully considered, scheme of recommendations for reform. Very few of its proposals have, however, been carried out. The Auxiliary Committee on Education to the Statutory Commission (Hartog Committee) again surveyed the position of education in this province, as in the other provinces, and exposed many defects, especially in the system of elementary education. The Bengal and Indian Quinquennial Reports on Education also contain candid criticisms of many aspects of education in the province. Speeches in the Legislative Council, articles in the newspapers and the utterances of many prominent leaders provide further proof that there is much that is ill-designed, inefficient and wasteful in education in Bengal.

These criticisms are not of recent times. Ever since the reconstitution of the Presidency of Bengal in 1912, educationists have realised the dangers of the situation, but the war of 1914-18 made any educational reorganisation impossible.

The new reforms were inaugurated in 1921 and Bengal, as a result of the Meston Award, has been in great financial difficulties and this in spite of retrenchment and additional taxation. The result has been that expenditure on education in Bengal has practically remained stationary, being Rs. 1,23,16,000 in 1922-23 and Rs. 1,27,67,000 in 1933-34. Primary education has particularly suffered from this inability to expand and education in general has suffered in comparison with other provinces, as will appear from the following figures:—

Province.	Population.	Revenue receipts. 1921-22.	Revenue receipts. 1933-34.	Total expenditure on education. 1921-22.	Total expenditure on education. 1933-34.	Expenditure on primary education. 1922-23.	Expenditure on primary education. 1933-34.

2. Thrown into relief by (1) Retrenchment.—The result for education has been disastrous. What was bad has become worse and what was tolerable has in many instances become bad. Successive years of world-wide economic distress and the general fall in prices, and especially in jute, aggravated the situation. The Retrenchment Committees recommended many economies in educational expenditure and, although all their proposals were not accepted, those which were accepted owing to the exigencies of finance inevitably retarded progress. Improvements, long meditated and long overdue, had to be postponed indefinitely and, instead of even normal progress, there was at many points a visible retrogression. The grant given by Government to institutions had to be curtailed at the very time when their other sources of income had diminished or disappeared.

(2) Economic Depression and Unemployment.—The economic difficulties and rigours of these days have thus thrown into bold relief the weaknesses of the educational system in Bengal. But other causes also have combined to reveal them more clearly and to focus public attention on them. The growing extent of unemployment among certain classes, intensified by the general depression of trade and industry, has produced a storm of criticism directed against a system of education, which did not fit the youth of the province to earn their own living, criticism which was perfectly natural even if not altogether justified. The Vice-Chancellor of the University of Dacca said in evidence before the Unemployment Inquiry Committee, "I regard the education given now in the majority of cases.....in Bengal as tending to diminish the intellectual energy of those who receive it. It is sterilising. I think the education at present imparted is in many cases a positive disadvantage to those who receive it and tends to render the students more worthless in the market than if they had worked by themselves."

(3) Terrorism.—The outlook of Bhadralog youths in Bengal to-day is one of gloom and despair and it has thereby predisposed their minds to the morbid attitude, which allowed revolutionary and terrorist leaders to find ready disciples in many of the schools and colleges. The terrorist movement in Bengal, which assumed menacing proportions in recent years, revealed some of the weaknesses of the present educational system.

But the financial stringency, the growth of unemployment and of subversive political movements are not themselves the cause of, although in many ways they have intensified, the defects of education in Bengal. Those defects are of long standing and have only been made prominent—more difficult to solve—by recent events. The primary causes should be sought rather in the general social and political history of the province. A complete analysis of them would be out of place here, but attention may be drawn to one or two of the more singular features.

3. Peculiar features of Educational system: (1) Its urban bias.—The great majority of Bengal's population is engaged in agriculture. The greater part of the province consists of the vast deltas of the Ganges and Brahmaputra, land admirably suited for agriculture but destitute of mineral resources. It possesses also important industries but these are located almost entirely in two relatively small areas, Calcutta and its neighbourhood and the coal-field area in the Burdwan district. Speaking generally, Bengalis have stood aloof from the development of these industries and the labour force is very largely drawn from outside Bengal. As is natural in an agricultural land, the people live for the most part in villages and the towns are small country towns, rural rather than distinctively urban in character. Apart from Dacca, Calcutta and Howrah, which is practically a part of Calcutta, there is not a town in the province with a population of 100,000 and very few with 50,000 inhabitants. Nor is the urban population increasing relatively, except in Calcutta and its neighbourhood. Excluding Calcutta and Howrah, 38 per thousand of the population lived in towns in 1911; in 1931, the proportion had fallen to 34 per thousand.

In spite of this predominantly rural and agricultural character of the province, the system of education is better adapted to an urban than to a rural population. The subjects taught are those helpful to the boy who has to live and earn a living in a town rather than to the boy who will be a farmer or cultivator. This is true even of the lowest stages, which have been designed to lead up to what is often summarised as "an English education." In other words, boys have sought and been given not so much a training for life as the specific kind of training, which would qualify them for a clerkship or at best for one of a limited number of professions. The middle vernacular schools, in which boys might obtain a good general grounding, have never been popular in Bengal and are now almost extinct and even the primary schools teach English. This is an extraordinary paradox.

(2) Preponderance of Private Schools.—Another paradox is to be found in the fact that the early and rapid spread of English education in the province is one of the chief causes of its general inefficiency at present. A hundred years ago, when the first public schools and colleges were established in Bengal, they proved so popular, largely as a pathway to official preferment, that similar institutions were founded by private persons in large numbers all over the province. As the pupils were willing to pay for their instruction, such private schools not only diffused learning, but provided occupation and profit. In other words, schools became a remunerative business and it is not surprising that they sprang up on every side. Many other motives of a higher kind undoubtedly contributed in great measure to the multiplication of schools; but in any case the result was that far more schools in Bengal owed their origin to private enterprise than to public foundation and, as a corollary, the condition of many of them was ephemeral and precarious, resting neither on a substantial endowment nor on the resources of the State or of public bodies. Thus, in Bengal, we have the peculiar and characteristic feature of a predominantly "private" system of schools under no adequate public control.

4. Defects (1) of Primary Schools.—But, whatever the historic causes may be and whatever the aggravating circumstances of the present, the condition of education in Bengal is such as to compel the anxious consideration of Government and of all interested in the welfare of the province. The primary schools are numerous indeed; but in almost every other respect they are deficient. The great majority of the pupils are in the lowest class and go no higher—nine out of ten of them never become really literate and derive little if any benefit from their year or two of schooling. The curriculum is not altogether adapted to the rural environment from which the children come and to which they return. The teacher is often untrained and generally unenthusiastic, and, even when he has both energy and skill, is faced with impossible problems—the problem of teaching three classes single-handed, the problem of how to live on six or eight rupees a month, the problem of engaging and maintaining the attention of pupils who and whose parents are more or less indifferent to education, the problem of sustaining his keenness when he is isolated from year's end to year's end except for the single visit of the inspector. At their best the primary school and its staff may be the centre of village life and the chief motive power of rural progress—but the least that they should do is to make the pupils literate: it is, however, the belief of those qualified to judge that the ordinary primary school in Bengal does not adequately perform even this elementary and fundamental task. The aid which Government have been able to give to primary schools has been disproportionately small; and the levy of the cess provided in the Primary Education Act of 1930 has had to be postponed on account of general economic depression.

(2) Of Secondary Schools.—The secondary schools are little better adapted to their function. The complaint has been general that they have devoted themselves to the single task of passing pupils through the Matriculation and that the interests of those who never proceed to a college course are betrayed. Nor was the course of studies for the Matriculation satisfactory, even as a general preparation for higher studies. The school tended to neglect all the other important aspects of education, the training of the body and of character; and the nature of the teaching was such as to stimulate the use of the memory rather than of the mind.

(3) Financial Instability.—Even this limited and too narrowly academic task the schools were in many instances ill-fitted to discharge because of the inadequacy of their staff, equipment and financial resources. The rapid growth in the number of schools has led, especially in towns and developed areas, to competition for pupils, with the result that the average number of pupils in a school is uneconomically small. There are on the average less than 250 pupils in a high school and the income from fees is only a little over Rs. 500 a month: but in many schools the number of pupils and the fee income are actually much less. In the last Quinquennial Report it was pointed out that Bengal is much worse off than Madras or Bombay in these respects. The consequence is that many schools are unable to entertain a sufficient number of teachers or to pay them properly or even regularly, the teaching is inefficient and both teachers and pupils are driven to private tuition to eke out the deficiencies of the school. There is nothing more ominous and significant in the educational system than the almost universal prevalence of private tuition.

(4) Lack of extra-academic activities.—It is not surprising that in such institutions the school does not supply the facilities, and the teachers have neither the time nor the enthusiasm, for the stimulation and supervision of the activities of the pupils outside the class room. Few healthy outlets are provided for their occupation or amusement. There is often little attempt at organised games or physical recreation, apart from the dull routine of drill, little attempt at any regular measurement and record of physical progress or the detection, diagnosis and treatment of physical weakness. Many of the boys have no interests or hobbies and perhaps the teachers have none either. The actual teaching, too, is imparted generally by men, who have perhaps in many cases no special gifts or talents of their own, little devotion or loyalty to the school, no scientific training, and who are preoccupied with the necessity of adding in some way to their meagre salaries; and teaching under such conditions can scarcely be expected to arouse the interest, touch the imagination or develop the intellectual curiosity of the pupils. Most of the faculties of the mind lie numbed and inert in this wintry scholasticism.

It is with such material that the colleges have to deal— plants already so mishandled and stunted as to need the most favourable influences to bring to flower and fruit, individual attention, sympathetic care, the fostering of mental and spiritual light and warmth. The task would be difficult enough in any event, but our colleges can scarcely be said to offer this exceptional environment. Another series of examinations are again held out as the goal of intellectual endeavour. Many of the colleges are too large to permit of effective personal guidance or tutorial help. Many of those in Calcutta especially have no adequate playing fields. Few of them are able to create any corporate tradition or attract any deep sense of loyalty. A school or a college means little more to a boy than the shop to which he gives his custom or the train which takes him on a journey.

This picture may seem to be painted in colours too sombre to be true, but it is intended to be only an impressionistic sketch of the effect produced by the existing educational system on those who are aware of the progress made not only in other countries but in other provinces of India and who cannot regard the stagnation in Bengal with equanimity. Among the chief weaknesses are these. First, the lack of funds has not only hampered development but led to actual retrenchment and retreat at some points. Education is an expensive commodity and some of those who take a narrow view, who fail to realise how fundamental it is to national health and progress, are inclined to regard it as a luxury.

(5) Superfluity of Schools.—But, secondly, the unnecessarily great number of educational institutions in some overschooled areas of Bengal, far greater in proportion than those in any other province, has become a source of danger and inefficiency, depriving schools of that necessary financial stability without which efficiency is impossible.

(6) Lack of variety.—In the third place, all the schools have been cast in the same mould and directed to the same end, so that individual aptitudes and gifts have often been crushed out and the potential soldier, explorer, saint, business man, inventor, farmer or artisan have generally been transformed into potential clerks. Again, the scheme of studies has not only been uniform but unsuited to the background, tradition and needs of the majority of the pupils—and in a country, where 14 out of 15 persons live in villages and three out of four of those who work for a living are employed in agriculture, we have a curriculum intended mainly for town-dwellers and workers.

(7) Inadequate Control.—Over this enormous mass of institutions, there is no well-organised control: many of them are private schools and many receive no grant from public funds and escape even that measure of supervision which the receipt of a grant entails. Over the high schools there has been a divided control, which has long proved unsatisfactory and detrimental to any thorough reorganisation of secondary education. The inspecting staff of the Department has been and is quite insufficient to carry out any effective inspection, which should imply guidance and inspiration as well as supervision.

(8) The Teaching Staff.—Again, the schools left largely to their own devices have been staffed by teachers who are often neither numerous enough nor sufficiently qualified, trained or well paid nor so imbued with a sense of vocation as to be equal to the high responsibilities of their task. They generally content themselves with the minimum, uninspiring instruction in the class room, neglecting all the possibilities of influencing the character of their pupils for good or of training them to be healthy, happy, useful citizens. And the pupils so trained, or rather untrained, have in not a few cases been drawn into the toils of revolutionary conspiracy and done inestimable harm to themselves and to the entire political development of their country, for which they cherish such a disastrously misdirected love.

5. Multiplication of Lower Primary Schools.—The spread of literacy in Bengal has been surprisingly slow and in the last ten or twelve years it is doubtful if it has spread at all. The explanation is to be found in the fact that the overwhelming proportion of primary schools are lower primary schools with only three classes, that most of these schools have only a single teacher each and that the great majority of the pupils never proceed beyond the infant class. Three years of schooling under such conditions is not sufficient to make a pupil permanently literate. But new schools of this type are arising every day. During the five years from 1927 to 1932, the number of boys' primary schools decreased in three provinces and the largest increases were about 900 in Assam and 800 in Bombay; but in Bengal there was in increase of over 5,500, far more than the new schools in all the other provinces put together. This fact is sufficient indication of the ill-considered manner in which primary education in Bengal is proceeding. On the other hand, little was done to effect any real improvement in the quality of the teaching. The Indian Quinquennial Report for 1927-32 contrasts the position in Bengal with that of the North-Western Frontier Province, where the people live widely scattered and where the difficulties are perhaps as great, though not of the same kind, as those of Bengal. "Whereas there are in Bengal an unknown number of lower primary three-class schools (the Hartog Committee estimated the number at 39,000 in 1927), there are none in the Frontier Province. Whereas there are only 54 vernacular middle schools in Bengal, there are already 199 such schools (inclusive of lower middle schools) in the Frontier Province. Whereas the average enrolment of a primary school in Bengal is 38·4, that in the Frontier Province is 51·4, in spite of the fact that most of the well attended primary schools have been converted into middle schools and have thereby been removed from calculation. Whereas the percentage of boys in Bengal in Class I who reach Class IV in the normal period of time was only 13 in 1932, that in the Frontier Province rose from 12 to 18 during the quinquennium." The Bengal Quinquennial Report also concluded that "an improvement in quality rather than in quantity is the first requisite of an effective system of primary education in Bengal."

6. Programme of reconstruction.—With this state of things neither Government nor the descerning public can any longer be content. It would be useless to apportion blame, when many of the causes lie far in the past or in circumstances beyond the control of any individual or even the province as a whole. But, on the other hand, it would be fatal to adopt the attitude either of complacency or of despair. Government are conscious that the complexity of the problems and the magnitude of the difficulties have often in the past induced a policy of drift; and that no piecemeal reorganisation, no changes of detail, will avail to remedy weaknesses and defects which are so far-reaching. They propose, accordingly, a comprehensive programme of reconstruction, a programme which cannot immediately be carried into entire effect but which will be steadily pursued till its objects are achieved. In other words, they propose a plan of reconstruction for education which they intend to follow in future years. Important parts of the plan will have to wait for more prosperous times but the great advantage will be that schemes will be ready to be put into operation as soon as funds are available.

7. Proposal for four-class Primary Schools.—Government accordingly believe that the time has come to plan for primary schools of a higher standard. At present, the full primary course extends over five years but the upper primary schools are comparatively few. A five years' primary course would be most desirable, but the cost of providing and staffing a large number of such schools throughout the province would be prohibitive. It is accordingly proposed that the distinction between Upper and Lower Primary schools should be done away with and that the primary course should last for four years, Classes I—IV.

8. Staff.—Each primary school, as organised in this scheme, would also be expected to maintain a staff of four teachers as a condition of receiving recognition or aid. In special circumstances it may be necessary and desirable to start a school with a smaller number of classes, but the number of teachers must always be the same as the number of classes. Only thus can the instruction be made satisfactory and the increased help which Government hope to be in a position to give will make this possible. Provision will also be made to train more primary school teachers, for at present the proportion in Bengal is the lowest in all India. There were 73·3 per cent. of trained teachers in the Punjab, 59·4 in Madras and only 28·1 in Bengal in 1932.

9. Free instruction.—The ultimate aim is that instruction in all primary schools shall be free, at least for those who are too poor to pay any fees at all. This will involve the loss of a few lakhs of rupees in fees but will throw elementary education open to even the poorest.

10. The question of compulsion.—It is not proposed, however, to make it compulsory at this stage and that for three reasons. In the first place, the cost of a free compulsory scheme would be entirely beyond the financial resources of the province now, and, until the Primary Education Act is given effect to, nothing in the way of compulsion can be achieved, except perhaps in a few selected areas. Estimates of the cost of compulsory education differ, but the lowest is about Rs. 3½ crores, about five times the total amount now spent on primary education from public and private sources. In the second place, compulsion, where it has been tried in India, has not yet proved an unqualified success in rural areas; in municipalities, of course, the problem of ensuring attendance is far simpler than in rural areas. In the third place, a well-designed net-work of four class primary schools will provide the opportunity for education to a very large proportion of children of school-going age and, without compulsion and the machinery and unpopularity it entails, practically the same result may be achieved. The last Indian Quinquennial Report points out that "unless a system of compulsion is based on firm foundations, unless the majority of parents are actively in support, unless an ample supply of trained and efficient teachers is available, unless there is careful supervision and a wise distribution of schools, compulsion will do more harm than good."

11. Compulsion to continue at school.—But there is another type of compulsion, which is absolutely necessary to prevent the wastage which has so often been exposed and deplored. In 1932 there were about 1,344,000 children in the lowest class and only about 100,000 in the highest primary class. In other words, a great majority of the children did not stay in school long enough to become literate. On the average, a primary school in Bengal consists of 22 children in the lowest class, 7 in the second class and 5 in the third. The crowd in the infant class is alone what enables the school to carry on, what in fact gives it the semblance of a school. The ordinary primary school now is not even a lower primary school of three classes, it is practically a school with only one class, the infant.

While, therefore, Government do not believe that it would be wise at this time to compel all children to come to school, they recognise that steps should be taken to prevent this wastage. They desire that every child, whose parents send it to school, should be given the opportunity to learn to read and write and they propose that, once a child joins school, it should be compelled to remain at school till it has finished a primary course or for five years —and, as a corollary to this, that no child should be allowed to remain in the same class for more than two years. Compulsion to continue in school will give the children and the teachers a real opportunity to teach and to learn. It is not an unreasonable assumption that a parent, who sends his boy to school, wishes him to become literate; and he cannot very well complain if measures are taken to realise this end. The first step is the parent's own; but he will take it in the full knowledge of the consequences which it entails.

12. Curriculum: Rural bias.—Another important matter remains—the curriculum of primary schools. It has already been pointed out that in a mainly rural and agricultural province like Bengal the course of study in the primary school should be adapted to the needs and environment of the majority of the children. At present the curriculum is designed not to be complete in itself but to lead up to higher studies; and, in fact, two out of three children who come to the end of the primary course pass on to the middle school. The natural result is that, while the country as a whole depends on its villages and on agriculture, every intelligent boy is drawn away to the towns and to occupations which can only be followed in towns; the countryside is regularly drained of its most hopeful and intelligent elements. And, on the other hand, no villages need instructed leadership and service more desperately than the villages of Bengal, afflicted by malaria and other diseases, oppressed by the growing burden of debt. Under the new system here proposed, the number of children in the upper classes of the primary schools will probably be very much greater and there will be all the more need for a re-orientation of the curriculum. This revision is necessary, first because the existing course is generally regarded as too heavy and wide for the average village boy, secondly because the primary course should be a self-contained course suited to the village child, lastly because the child will be able to grasp more quickly and intelligently teaching with a "rural bias," dealing with ideas and things which are part of its own background. Primary education will thus mean for the village boy not only a grounding in the rudiments of general knowledge, but also in some sense a preparation for his own vocation. A curriculum on these lines for primary schools is being prepared.

13. Programme of Primary Schools.—There are at present over 60,000 primary schools in Bengal, mostly one or two-class schools, mostly one-teacher and only a small number two-teacher schools. These 60,000 probably do not produce 60,000 literates in the year. It is obvious that any scheme of reorganisation may involve, until more funds are available, a reduction in the number of schools receiving aid from Government and public funds without in any way reducing the sum total of grants. This may be inevitable, because funds are not available to render all of them even moderately efficient. In many villages there is a general patshala, a maktab for Moslem boys and a school for girls—none of them properly housed, equipped, staffed or taught, useless for any purpose of good. Some amalgamation and selection is an indispensable preliminary to effective reconstruction. It should always be remembered that many of the present schools teach so little and so badly that their abolition is no real loss to anyone. Government propose, however, not to abolish but to expand facilities for education and, as a preliminary, desire that a survey should be undertaken of the location and standard of the existing schools and that the number should be reduced to about 16,000 and that for the time being a programme involving this number of good primary schools, fairly distributed throughout the province, should be carefully worked out. If they were properly distributed, there would still be in general a school within less than two miles of every child. The provision would thus not be very inadequate considering the present financial condition of the province, and, when more money is available, more schools could be established. Sixteen thousand are all that are now possible with any regard for efficiency.

14. Probable increase in number of literate pupils. In 1932, there were about 21 lakhs of children in all the primary schools, of whom only about 8 lakhs were above the infant class. The schools under the proposed scheme, situated as they will be in the larger villages and within easy reach of the smaller villages, will be able to have on the average a much higher enrolment, especially as wastage will be prevented and children will move on regularly from class to class. Most of them will probably easily obtain an enrolment of 120 pupils, 30 in each class. The 16,000 schools will thus have over 19 lakhs of pupils, of whom about 14 lakhs will be in the three upper classes against the present actual number of 864,659 pupils in the top four classes of the primary stage. The total number of children at school will thus not be very much smaller, especially because the primary stages of middle and high schools in rural areas will also absorb a considerable number of pupils, but the number made literate will be out of all proportion greater. The opportunities for real education will expand rather than contract as a result of this reorganisation.

15. Maktabs and Girls' Schools.—Of the 43,000 or more boys' schools which we have now, about 16,000 are maktabs and about 27,000 are general schools. Of the 18,000 girls' schools, about half are maktabs. But it is proposed that under the new scheme all classes of children should attend the same type of schools, provision being made in the curriculum for especial Islamic subjects.

To take first the case of Maktabs: the curriculum in these schools is practically identical with that in a general primary school except that provision is made for religious instruction and the teaching of Islamic subjects. There is no reason why instead of two, one single school, so organised as to provide for the necessary variation in school studies, should not, in all but the most exceptional circumstances, satisfy the needs of both the Hindu and the Moslem communities in primary education. Similar arguments apply to primary schools existing entirely for the education of girls. A school which is to teach girls must provide instruction in subjects which find no place in a boy's curriculum, but this can be done as well in a large general institution generously housed and staffed as in a small and inefficient school to which only girls may go.

Government regard it as a paramount duty to do all that is possible to forward the education of girls and they believe that a great step in this direction will have been taken when the distinction between boys' and girls' primary schools goes.

The positive advantages of such fusion and condensation of schools, even apart from any considerations of efficiency and economy, are great. Every primary school will, under these conditions, have on its staff both Hindu and Moslem, men and women, teachers and will be able to provide, with increased efficiency, all the advantages which accrued to the special and separate institutions.

In schools where a majority of the pupils are Moslem the title of Maktab, traditionally attached to Islamic primary schools, might be given, while in the bigger centres of population, where some of the foregoing arguments have less force, it may be found of advantage to have separate schools for girls and for Moslem pupils.

16. An outline of distribution.—The Presidency of Bengal occupies 77,521 square miles, roughly one-fifth of which may be deducted for waste lands, hill tracts, jungle, rivers and beel areas. If 16,000 schools were properly distributed, there would still be in general a school within less than two miles of every child. Bengal has a total population of about 50 millions, of which a little over 46 millions live in rural areas. There would thus be at least one efficient primary school to serve the need of a rural population of a little less than 3,000. In effect, it will mean that in districts like Hooghly, Howrah, Dacca, Mymensingh, Faridpur, Bakarganj, Tippera and Noakhali there will be a primary school to almost every 2 to 3 square miles or a school within less than a mile of every child in these districts. In some districts, the situation of the school will depend upon the existence of beels, rivers, forests, hills and these factors may necessitate local adjustments. But, subject to this, the following distribution of primary schools is suggested, on the basis of one primary school per 3,000 of population:—

The table will make it clear that in all except 6 districts the area to be served by each school will be near about or even less than 5·5 square miles, which means that, if the area served is taken as a circle, then the schools will be within 1¼ mile distance of every boy or girl. The six districts where each school area is over six square miles are Bankura, Midnapur, 24-Parganas, Khulna, Dinajpur, and Jalpaiguri. All these areas have forests and jungles, hill tracts and uninhabited areas; if these are excluded, the school area in these districts also will probably come to the level of the other districts.

The Government wish to make it clear that in putting forth these proposals before the public, they are genuinely anxious to expand the opportunities of real education and to bring in a better condition of instruction. Nor do they wish by these proposals to delay the operation of the Primary Education Act, should the economic condition of the people justify the introduction of the Act at any particular time. On the other hand, the establishment of the new type primary schools will give an immediate programme of work to those districts which have accepted the partial operation of the Primary Education Act. When the Act is introduced in full, these schools working in double shifts will meet the needs of the rural areas as contemplated under the Primary Education Act and in many respects will be the models, so that the people may get good value for their money, and the dangers of wastage, of lapse into illiteracy and of bad education may be avoided.

17. Employment of 64,000 teachers.—Under this scheme, 64,000 men and women teachers will be settled in village life with a new avenue of employment. Sixteen thousand of them, as will be seen later, will be employed on a pay of Rs. 20 and 48,000 on a pay of Rs. 15. They will, in addition, have opportunities to look after their village lands and cultivation. One may fairly aim at creating a new life in the villages and incidentally these men and women will be directly interested in the improvement of village agriculture and will be better informed about market conditions.

18. The Primary School Teacher.—In education, even more than in other social activities, everything depends in the last resort on the human factor and the teacher is the key to the success or failure of an institution. All earlier proposals are intended merely to remove obstacles and to provide a favourable environment for the efforts of the teacher; and they would by themselves be futile unless the quality of the teaching is sound. But in Bengal the teacher is not only overworked and underpaid, but generally untrained and ill-qualified for his work. The last Quinquennial Report stated that "most of the teachers remain untrained. Bengal, in this respect also, was at the bottom of the list of provinces. Of the untrained teachers there are, it is reported, many who cannot even read correctly or with ease.....The fact is that the conditions of service of the primary school teacher are such that the profession can scarcely attract any but those who are driven into it in despair as the last refuge of the unemployed. .....the average salary in Bengal is the lowest in all India."

19. Need for Rural-minded Teachers.—Nor is this all. Many of the teachers are men with an urban rather than a rural outlook, with a smattering of an "English education," who belong by upbringing or longing to the towns rather than to the country. A new type of teacher is required, men and women who have had a thorough vernacular education, who have been trained in the art of teaching small children, who are interested in the welfare of the village and eager to play their part in its improvement. The Auxiliary Committee wrote thus:—"There is little hope of real progress in primary education, unless a definite break is made with the policy of inconsiderately multiplying schools, and of hastily expanding or improvising new ineffective arrangements for training the additional teachers required. As matters stand in India, effective arrangements for training vernacular teachers must, generally speaking, precede the expansion of primary schools, as the training of vernacular teachers itself depends upon a good supply of recruits from middle vernacular schools. Hence money spent on expansion or improvement of middle vernacular schools and on vernacular training institutions will yield a larger and more permanently fruitful return than money spent on almost any other of the many objects which are dear to the heart of the educationist."

The last Indian Quinquennial Report quoted from the report of a committee of American experts about missionary educational work in India to the same effect. "We would get further in the end," they suggested, "if we closed one half of our village schools and spent money in training teachers for the other half.....What we need for village teachers are not foreigners, nor even the urban, English-trained Indians of the city schools. The one has never had, and the other has lost, the ability to think along the furrows cut by Indian tradition. The need is for young men and women who, having grown up in a village, are used to its ways of living; and who have been given an education that opens their eyes to village and agricultural problems and gives the means of dealing with them."

20. Results of the New Policy in the Punjab.—What teachers of this type can achieve can be seen in the remarkable progress made in recent years in the Punjab. The percentage of boys at school to the total school-going population in that province increased from 23·9 in 1922 to 44 in 1932 whereas in Bengal it increased only from 37·2 to 48·8. The number of pupils in Class IV increased from 41,729 in 1917 to 109,582 in 1932—in Bengal it remained almost unchanged about 128,000. In other words, in Bengal about 45,000 schools were producing 128,000 literates, but in the Punjab about 10,000 institutions were producing about 109,000 literates; the cost in Bengal was about Rs. 70 lakhs, in the Punjab only about Rs. 38 lakhs. The waste of money and effort in Bengal is lamentable. Nor is this all. The school and the teachers in the Punjab have become the centres of community life. "There is not a tahsil or sub-tahsil, where useful work has not been done by teachers and inspecting officers.....Scores of schoolboys have formed themselves into singing parties for carrying on uplift propaganda in villages.....As a result of this propaganda vigorously pursued, one is beginning to see a streak of light on the horizon, and one has occasion to see signs of the wholesale effect of the work now being done. Thousands of lectures have been given by teachers and inspecting officers. Thousands of people have been vaccinated and inoculated at their persuasion. Prophylactic measures have been taken in hundreds of villages against disease. Streets have been cleaned, manure pits have been dug, wells have been purified, and so forth."

The explanation is simple. In the Punjab, only 17·4 per cent. of the schools are single-teacher schools, in Bengal 59·8 per cent. Nearly three in four of all the primary school teachers in the Punjab are trained, in Bengal only about one in four. In Bengal only about one in five of the men teachers have a higher qualification than that of having passed the primary stage, in the Punjab the proportion is two in three. In 1932 in the Punjab there were 853 pupils in the 18 women's training schools, in Bengal only 234 in the 10 schools.

21. Pay of Primary Teachers.—To attract suitable men and women to the profession of teaching in primary schools and to train them adequately is, therefore, a necessary preliminary and concomitant to any re-organisation of primary education. But this would be hopeless unless the teacher is better paid. In 1932 the average salary in a school under public management was about Rs. 15 and in private schools only a little over Rs. 6. A man during training gets a stipend of Rs. 10, but after training he would be fortunate to get a salary of Rs. 10. Unless the prospects of the teachers are improved, we cannot hope to improve their quality. Government propose to work in future on the plan that in all recognised and aided primary schools the salary of the headmaster should be at least Rs. 20 and that of the assistant masters Rs. 15. The minimum cost of a four-teacher school would thus be Rs. 65 for salaries and about Rs. 10 for contingencies, or Rs. 900 a year. The 16,000 schools proposed would ultimately involve an annual expenditure of Rs. 1,44,00,000.

22. Inspecting staff.—Even good teachers will benefit by the stimulus and check of sympathetic inspection: and a competent inspecting staff is as indispensable as a competent teaching staff. At present the lower inspectorate suffers in two ways: each sub-inspector has far more schools under his charge than he can give proper attention to and he is too often a man trained in the methods of English rather than of vernacular education. The new rural school will need a new type of inspector, a man or woman tuned to the needs and conditions of the village and at home in it. Government suggest, therefore, that the number of sub-inspectors should be fixed at one for a hundred schools, that a fourth of the cadre should be filled up by the most capable and experienced of the primary school headmasters and another fourth from the staffs of the middle vernacular and vernacular training schools. There will thus be a career open to talents among the teachers. It is hoped that at least 10 per cent. of the sub-inspecting staff will be women.

At present sub-inspectors of schools are chosen from those who have passed the course for the degree of Bachelor of Teaching, which is designed more for teachers in secondary schools than for men whose work will be the inspection of primary schools. This training is unsuitable for the type of officer required, and Government propose to institute a new system which will involve a special six months' course at one of the Training Colleges, followed by nine months' practical and theoretical work at selected centres in primary school teaching and supervision, together with an intensive training in rural reconstruction work.

Such men should be able to bring to their work a fresh and sympathetic understanding of the problems of primary education in all its aspects.

23. Secondary Education: (a) Middle Vernacular Schools.—From what has been said of the primary school and its teachers, the significance of the middle vernacular school will be apparent. But nothing has been more striking than the steady decay of these schools in Bengal. In 1917 there were 349 middle vernacular schools, in 1922 only 217 and in 1932 the number had dwindled to 54. Contrast this with the amazing expansion of such schools in the Punjab, where they increased from 151 in 1917 to 672 in 1922, 2,114 in 1927 and 3,241 in 1932 and the enrolment during the period from 28,711 to 447,514. For every one boy in a middle vernacular school in Bengal, there are over a hundred in the Punjab. And this remarkable development is the result of a deliberate policy, most successful in the Punjab but followed also in almost every other province in India. "The aim of vernacular middle education," says the last Quinquennial Report of the United Provinces "is to improve the rural youth, to provide the necessary teachers for elementary education and, while making rural boys literate, to retain them in the country-side." Without a well-distributed system of middle vernacular schools, it would be idle to expect either to improve primary education or to raise the level of village community life or to keep away from English schools the many who do not benefit by higher education and now clog and hinder the work of high schools and colleges. The middle vernacular school is not merely a school where all the instruction is in the vernacular and where English is only an optional subject, it is or should be a school with a rural outlook, adopted to the needs of those who come from the village and will go back to the village There is no reason why what has been achieved elsewhere should not be accomplished in Bengal and the middle vernacular school made the corner-stone of the new educational programme.

Government propose that there should be one middle vernacular school to every police-station, roughly one middle school to 25 primary schools, and that the number should be gradually increased till the ratio becomes one to five. These schools will have their three middle classes and most of them will have attached to them the four classes of a primary school.

These middle vernacular schools would have a curriculum designed to give a sound general training to rural boys and to fit them in some measure at once for their agricultural occupations and for village uplift work. "What India needs more than anything to-day," wrote the Agricultural Commission, "is a new and wider system of education, a system which will be in harmony with village conditions and requirements, which will train boys and girls desirous of remaining a part of the village and of spending lives of service to the progress of the country-side." Accordingly in the Punjab agriculture forms a part of the course in many middle vernacular schools and "rural science (a composite subject embracing agriculture, science, village sanitation, co-operative and elementary civics) has recently been provided as an alternative to English at the Vernacular Final Examination." The curriculum for Bengal will be on similar lines and is now under preparation.

24. Training Class.—It is from these schools that the primary school teachers will be largely drawn and for the purpose of training them training classes will be attached to selected middle vernacular schools.

25. Revision of Middle and High School curriculum—(b) Middle English and High Schools.—With the establishment of the new type of primary schools, Government will slowly attempt to convert the existing middle English and middle vernacular schools into the improved type of such schools.

The middle English stage will also cover a period of three years and will be intended for the urban or developed areas. But in one important respect it will differ from the present system; it will lead up to the high stage and will be a preparation for it but it will also be complete in itself, providing a satisfactory general training for the boy who wishes either to proceed no further or to pass on to a technical or vocational school. In other words, the end of the middle stage will be a definite terminal or diverting point for many pupils and the curriculum will be constructed accordingly. With the revival and reconstruction of the middle vernacular schools, there will be need for middle English schools only in urban or other developed centres and their numbers can be reduced, with a corresponding improvement in efficiency. In 1932 Bengal had 1,845 middle English schools for boys, while Madras had only 174 and no other province had 600.

Similar improvements are necessary in the high stage as well. The high school should be an avenue to the college, but it should also be a stopping point for a considerable number of the pupils who do not wish to proceed further With the changes already suggested, the demand for a high school education will probably become less general, especially in the rural areas, in which hundreds of schools are now situated. It will, therefore, be possible to turn many of them into middle English or middle vernacular institutions and to use the resources set free to strengthen the others. At present, the multiplication of schools has led to severe competition, which reduces the number of pupils and the income from fees below the economic minimum and is in many ways detrimental to discipline and efficiency. Government have also been unable to bestow an adequate grant-in-aid on these schools.

26. Comparison of Bengal with Madras in Secondary Education.—A comparison with Madras will illuminate the position in Bengal. A boys' middle English school in Bengal had in 1932 an average enrolment of 88, in Madras 152. A high school in Bengal had 239 pupils and in Madras 416. Between 1912 and 1932, in Bengal 594 new high schools for boys were started, in Madras only 210. The average grant to a boys' secondary school in Madras was Rs. 3,256, in Bengal only Rs. 870. One thousand and forty-nine out of 2,995 boys' secondary schools in Bengal were unaided, in Madras only 9 did not receive aid out of 552. The average number of teachers per school in Madras, taking all secondary schools, was 17, in Bengal 8. 81·6 per cent. of the men teachers in secondary schools in Madras were trained and 30·5 per cent. had a degree, in Bengal the corresponding figures were 19·7 and 22·6. Bengal has about three times as many boys' high schools as Madras, but the number of pupils in the high stage is scarcely greater. These figures are sufficient to show the wide differences in secondary education between two provinces, of which the population and area are approximately the same. Bengal has far more institutions, but they are ill-attended, ill-staffed, inadequately aided or altogether unaided, financially unstable.

27. Necessity of reorganisation.—The reorganisation of vernacular education will, on the one hand, reduce the demand for high English education in Bengal and may render some of the high schools superfluous, and, on the other hand, no radical improvement can be effected without a reduction in the number of institutions in over-schooled areas either by amalgamation or by the abolition of inefficient schools. Both efficiency and the law of supply and demand will point in the same direction; and Government consider it necessary to undertake a survey as a preliminary to a more satisfactory geographical distribution of schools. If the schools are located in the towns and large villages and if competition is eliminated, then each school would have a much larger enrolment than at present, a larger revenue from fees and a larger Government grant, and these in turn would enable it to afford a larger, better paid and better qualified staff and more adequate equipment.

28. Free studentships.—If, however, secondary schools are in future to be situated in the larger centres of population, it follows that boys from the country will often be at a disadvantage in pursuing higher studies. As a complement to their proposals, Government intend accordingly to offer a larger number of free studentships to pupils on the results of the primary and middle school examinations. There will be, as now, a certain number of scholarships for those who occupy the highest places in these examinations; but, in addition, each recognised school will be entitled to grant free studentships to boys who are in need of financial help; these free studentships will be intended primarily for boys from rural schools.

For boys who come from their villages to attend the middle or high school, residential arrangements will also be necessary. Many schools will accordingly have hostels and some concessions should be arranged for those boarders who hold free studentships and under the same conditions.

These concessions will enable a great number of poor and intelligent boys to complete their higher education without serious difficulty; and the concentration of schools will place no obstacle in their way. On the other hand, the generous provision of free studentships may permit in some schools some increase in the rate of fees.

29. Quality of School Work.—One very general complaint is that apart from forma instruction the teacher and the school do very little for the pupils and that even the teaching is lifeless and uninteresting. The last Quinquennial Report stated that "schools are too often merely coaching establishments and neither seek nor achieve any training of the mind in discipline, leadership and corporate action or any proper training of the body." And again, "little effort is made to arouse the dawning intelligence, to develop the innate spirit of questioning and curiosity, to teach through the medium of all the faculties instead of merely one." In these criticisms there is a great element of truth and, especially, at the adolescent stage it is essential that all the latent powers and interests of the boy should be drawn out and that the influences by which he is surrounded should be healthy and happy.

30. New Matriculation Regulations.—It is hoped that the new Matriculation Regulations will go a great way in improving the quality of school work. The average Matriculation student will be better equipped generally, will be required to pay greater attention to History and Geography as compulsory subjects and to pass in a paper of elementary scientific knowledge. His burden will be lightened by the introduction of vernacular as the medium of instruction and examination and he will be able to pay greater attention to English as a language. Every school must also give him training in physical development.

31. The Teacher.—The decisive factor is the capacity and personality of the teacher. If he is a man with some sense of vocation, some pride in his profession, some knowledge of its technique, then he will in one way or another impress himself on his pupils. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that the best men should be selected as teachers and that, on the other hand, teaching should be made attractive to the best men. At present the teachers in many aided and in most unaided schools are generally obliged to resort to private tuition or other occupation to supplement their meagre salary. Many of them come to school tired—they have little interest in their work, they have no prospects to stimulate their ambition. Government propose, therefore, that in all recognised institutions there should be a minimum scale of salaries for teachers, as well as a minimum number of teachers. Many of them are now overworked and even a school teacher needs leisure if he is to do his best. Teaching is both an art and a mission, and the teacher needs not only vision but quiet if he is to express what is in him. In 1932 in high schools, the average number of teachers in Bengal was 13, in the Punjab 17, in Bombay 17·5, in Madras 20·5, differences only partly to be explained by the existence of divisions in a class.

32. Methods of Training.—The teacher needs also training, as in any other vocation. In this respect, Bengal is very backward. In 1932 there were 15,088 high school teachers in Bengal and in Madras 9,124 and 5,247 in the United Provinces. In the same year, there were 187 students in the training colleges in Bengal, while there were 342 in Madras and 413 in the United Provinces. The training colleges actually supply Bengal with 120 trained graduates on an average every year. The provision for training in the province is sadly inadequate and even if the number of high schools is reduced, it will be many decades before a majority of the teachers are trained.

It is essential that the facilities for training teachers should be extended and this can be done by establishing more training colleges or by devising schemes in which teachers may, under suitable conditions, do a large part of this training while at school.

Although sooner or later Bengal will have to face the necessity for more training colleges, these institutions are expensive things and Government have under examination proposals whereby in specially selected schools teachers may, by carefully supervised reading and practical work, fit themselves for an examination entitling them to a diploma or a shortened course preparatory to taking a degree in teaching.

It is proposed also to make these schools centres at which will be held "training camps" —short courses of training for teachers in individual subjects. Courses would be designed both for primary and secondary school teachers, the former under the supervision of the staffs of Normal Schools the latter under that of Training College staffs.

33. Improvement of teaching.—Teachers with professional keenness and training will be able to make teaching more vivid and stimulating than it is at present. They will remember that it is the business of the teacher not merely to prepare the pupils for an examination but even more to train them to read and think for themselves

34. General knowledge and library work. —Apart from the formal subjects of instruction, it is of importance that the school-boy should acquire a taste for reading and through it a store of that general knowledge which is the foundation of culture. These are notably lacking at present and the school should devise ways to impart them. Books should be more carefully selected and libraries should be made more easily accessible. It is not unusual now to find a school library, which is open only once a week and from which the issue of books for reading in school or for taking home is made as difficult as possible. Inspection has shown that in many cases library books are kept in a disorderly fashion, equipment jumbled together, stationery and other articles thrown anywhere, instruments and maps uncared for, pictures in class rooms dirty and the school compound bare and untended. In some cases the library books are not at all suitable for school-boys. There are, however, a few schools, where a daily bulletin is put up on the notice board, consisting of cuttings on interesting topics from the newspaper and where at the end of each day five minutes are set apart for a talk on some general subject by one of the teachers. These and other methods can be more widely used to arouse the pupil's interest and to disseminate general information. Government propose to make a beginning with Government schools and they further propose to examine the whole question of library facilities in schools.

35. Responsibility of the parents—Religious and moral teaching in schools.—But the boy is in school only for five or six hours in the day and no sound scheme of education can altogether leave out of account the rest of his time. For that, the school, unless it is a residential school, shares the responsibility with the home and it is well to remember that, while the home and the school should co-operate, neither should trench on the legitimate province of the other. For instance, education in India has often been denounced as "godless," but the indictment is at least as much against the home as against the school. In a country where there is such a variety of religions and where Government profess an attitude of religious neutrality and where society itself is so thoroughly permeated with and controlled by religious rules and observances, instruction in religion can be given most easily and most effectively in the home and the parent has no right to transfer his responsibility altogether to the school. At the same time, in deference to the wishes of a large section of the people that our schools must definitely inculcate some religious or moral teaching, Government are prepared to make a beginning and the question is under examination.

36. Responsibility of the school: Games, etc.—On the other hand there are many things which are best done corporately and which the school can organise better than the individual parent. The care of the health of the boy and his physical development is a task which belongs in large measure to the school. Every school should have its playing fields, and, even where much land is not available there are small-area games which are economical of space and equally interesting and useful.

It often happens, however, that the school regards its responsibility as finished when it provides a playing field: it is far more important that every boy should be induced to play. Not only is the superintendence of teachers necessary, but also their participation in games—and on the playing field the teacher can help the boy to learn many lessons which he can scarcely learn as well in the class room, to co-operate with others, to obey orders, to play fair, to accept defeat with equanimity. The introduction of mid-day tiffin makes the institution of compulsory games practicable; and if schools, when they appoint teachers, could give weight to athletic prowess they would have men who would be at once competent to supervise games and able to evoke the hero-worship and spirit of emulation latent in the boy.

There is considerable scope for the development of increased facilities for recreation, in the widest sense of the term, and extra-school activities. These features of youthful life, which in other countries make it a period so full of interest, are almost unknown in Bengal.

A wise headmaster helped by an enthusiastic staff will discover innumerable ways along which to proceed. Visits to local places of historical interest, to mills and factories, to technical schools and agricultural farms, to waterworks and electric generating stations; the encouragement of hobbies and of interest in machines and instruments, such as aeroplanes, motor cars, microscopes, barometers, etc.; school clubs, musical and dramatic; handwork, whether artistic or more narrowly educational like the making of geographical models and plans; welfare and social work, the cleaning of tanks and jungle in villages and the care of the sick and those on pilgrimage or at melas and fairs—these are but a few of the methods by which it is possible to arouse in children those instincts of curiosity, creativeness, and sympathy, which lie at the very foundation of all true education.

In order to help schools which are remote from the larger centres of population and whose staffs are, for that reason, out of touch with recent developments in educational practice, Government propose that periodical circulars will be issued containing suggestions and plans for the use of teachers.

37. Other Activities.—Apart from organised exercise and games, there are other ways in which the body, mind and character can be developed. The Scout movement and the Bratachari movement have already spread widely, but in most schools they are represented by a dozen or two dozen boys in a school of some three hundred. There is still abundant scope for expansion and an even greater need for an improvement of the quality of the actual work done. The aim should be for the whole school to participate in a Boy Scout demonstration or Bratachari display or games and sports. "A game for every boy and girl and every boy and girl in a game" should always be the objective. In the last resort, parents and the community generally will rightly judge the value of such movements not by their reputation but by the definite results in their children. There is at present a real danger that they may become mechanical and superficial; and schools and teachers are urged to make sure that they should not attempt more than they can do and that whatever they do should be done well.

38. The "Block" system.—In all these ways the teacher can come near the boy in a friendly and informal manner and can help him; but even here a little organisation is useful and in some schools the boys are all divided into groups or blocks and each placed under a teacher. The teacher is expected to get to know the boys of his group, their homes, their progress, their aptitudes and weaknesses and to help them in every way he can. A relationship of this kind is helpful and the tutor may be able to train and restrain his pupils in many ways that the more formal intercourse of the class room does not permit; but it has its dangers: it would be useless to expect teachers to know everything about the boys nor is it desirable. The value of the relationship depends on its being informal and friendly and, if it becomes inquisitorial, more harm may be done than good. The boy has a right to his own reticences and reserves and a teacher who pushes his way into them will naturally arouse resentment.

39. Need for unified control: Secondary Board.—Many of the suggestions that have been made can be carried out at once, at any rate in Government and aided schools—and that is what Government propose. But it has long been recognised that any radical reform of the secondary system is difficult, if not impossible, as long as the present dual system of control exists. The University can regard the high schools only as preparatory to the colleges but they should be more. While therefore, Government gladly recognise that in recent years the University has done much to improve the state of the high schools, its work has naturally been limited and the constitution of a separate single controlling authority is an essential condition of thorough reorganisation. Government consider that the proper course would be to establish a Board of Secondary Education to control all middle English and high schools, a Board on which there will be adequate representation for all the different interests involved. The details of the curricula and so forth can be largely left to the Secondary Board to work out; but the broad principles to which attention has been drawn in this Resolution should govern any future reorganisation.

40. Co-ordination of Madrasahs and other Schools.—Government also desire that the reformed madrasahs and the ordinary secondary schools should be co-ordinated so that passage from one to the other and from either to the colleges or professional schools may be made easier and duplication of institutions as far as possible avoided. A scheme is under preparation.

41. Agricultural farming.—It has already been mentioned that, in spite of the predominantly rural and agricultural character of the province, the present system of education is better adapted to an urban rather than to a rural population. A child after a few years of school education develops a tendency to look upon agriculture as an occupation not belonging or suitable to him. He loses interest in his ancestral pursuits and occupations. Bengal is fast losing the position it once held owing to the growth of this spirit among its literate people. The only way to check this is to create an interest for the child in agricultural and rural vocations. It is therefore proposed that every village primary school and every middle or secondary school in rural areas shall have a small plot of land for some form of agricultural or horticultural work such as is provided by farm, garden or poultry. Bengal villages have still enough land to spare for its schools. The proverbial liberality of Bengalis, especially in educational matters, will always find some suitable land for the school farm. The proprietary rights of these lands need not be transferred to the school; it would be quite enough if some land near the school were made available for even a season or two.

In the school field or the garden, the boys, especially those of the upper classes, can be usefully employed during spare hours on Sundays and holidays in growing flowers or vegetables or raising small crops or keeping poultry. Such occupations would be a delightful change from the ordinary class routine and would be both attractive and helpful. In the Phillippines, practically all schools have gardens attached. In middle and secondary schools, the farming will further develop, though some schools will take up other vocational work such as carpentry, weaving, masonry, hut-constructing, etc. For girls, handwork, cooking, home-craft, village hygiene may be substituted.

A boy is very quick to take the colour of his surroundings and the material environment affects him as surely, if not as profoundly, as the intellectual or spiritual. Plato said that he who lives in lovely surroundings will become lovely in soul. But many of our schools are unattractive without and within. It is not possible to erect new buildings everywhere, but much may be done to improve and beautify the existing buildings, by a greater attention to cleanliness, neatness and order, by the removal of dust and dirt, by pictures on the walls and perhaps more than all by the cultivation of school gardens. Such gardens can be cared for by the boys under the guidance of a teacher and will serve not merely to adorn the school compound but to keep the boys engaged in a healthy and delightful occupation. If a boy learns to like books, games and flowers, there will not be much wrong with him.

42. Vocational Schools.—An integral part of the scheme of Government is the diversion, at different stages of general education, of such boys as wish to go further to such institutions as can give them the particular type of training for which they are best fitted. This involves the provision of a carefully graduated series of technical, vocational and professional schools and colleges, which will work in co-operation with the general institutions. Vocational training can be given either in the ordinary schools as a part of or an alternative to the general courses or in special vocational schools. Educational opinion at the present time appears to incline to the view that vocational training is best given in separate schools. On the other hand, it is important that in general schools there should be some kind of manual training or handicraft. This has not only a high educative value as a splendid training for the eye and the hand and as a method of self-expression and creation, but it may help boys to discover and test their aptitudes and may predispose some of them to technical careers. Rural science, including some agricultural training, gardening, carpentry, drawing and painting, needlework, these are all subjects which should form part of the curriculum of the different types of primary and secondary schools. But they are intended to vary and widen the general training of the boy and not to prepare him for a craft or industry. It has already been proposed that, in every Government and aided school and in the new type of primary and middle schools, the school compound shall be arranged to provide for a small farm or a kitchen or flower garden or some other outside interest of this nature but that in the primary stage only boys of the topmost class will do regular work therein. There is at present a definite scheme for vocational training in Bengal. In the junior technical schools there are artisan and technical classes suited respectively to the barely literate and to those who have finished the primary or middle stages. The senior technical schools are intended for those who have passed the Matriculation or Intermediate. What is needed is perhaps a more detailed programme and a more extensive system of schools on these general lines. The proposed rural primary schools will give a boy a general training for his ancestral occupation of agriculture; but there should be also schools for teaching village industries such as carpentry, basket-making and so forth. The urban primary schools should lead out to the middle schools and also to industrial schools imparting a general training in small urban industries, such as smithy and carpentry. The boy who passes out of the middle vernacular school will have the choice between agriculture, primary teachers' training and industrial schools of a rather more advanced type—and the same or slightly different schools would be open to the boy who has passed the middle English stage. Similarly, there should be craft schools for boys who have finished the higher secondary stage. There will thus be three grades of technical or vocational schools and boys should be able to pass from one to the other, if they so wish, just as they pass from one stage of general education to the next.

43 Medical inspection of High School children.—In the past the medical examination of students has not formed a part of school work. We are still far from the time when regular health inspection of primary school pupils is possible. But the examination of the boys of the top five classes is a task that can be easily taken up. Most municipalities and all the district boards have Government Health Officers and the medical inspection of school children is a part of their duties. Unfortunately sufficient attention is rarely given to this side of the work mainly owing to the lack of interest of the school authorities. It is, therefore, proposed that every school will have one teacher or two teachers in charge of the medical inspection of its pupils. It will be his duty to write to the Health Officer to come from time to time and medically inspect the boys. He will maintain a medical inspection register, see that action is taken on each defect, if necessary by placing the matter before the Managing Committee or by arranging with the local hospital or local medical practitioner for free treatment of the poorer pupils. The head master will generally take steps to develop the habit of cleanliness in dress and person and will arrange with the Health Officer for regular quinine treatment of the pupils in the malarious season.

44. Deficient School Areas.—In any proposals of redistribution, it should be borne in mind, a fact which the Government fully recognise, that all Bengal is not overschooled, and there are areas which require more schools than they have at present. It is proposed that in the reorganisation of schools the needs of such areas will be specially considered and it is hoped that this will meet the requirements of the educationally backward communities.

45. Mass Education.—With the introduction of the new Constitutional Reforms, the province will need an intelligent and informed electorate, capable of judging the economic and political issues of importance. The problem, therefore, of educating the masses, apart from making them literate, will soon assume definite importance and the Government feel that some beginning should be made at an early date. The work of educating villagers through the Inspectorate has already been outlined. Another proposal is that important villages should possess village Halls with a small library attached, containing books suitable to village needs and requirements. But this can be developed only if the public and the people interested come forward with their sympathy, co-operation and generous help.

46. Proposed Programme.—Such is the outline of the proposals which Government now put forward for the improvement of elementary and secondary education. They are designed, on the one hand, to adapt the whole system to the social and economic background of the people and the social and economic requirements of the province, so that a healthy correlation may be established between demand and supply, needs and aptitudes, work and talents; on the other hand, they are intended to improve the quality of the training now given, so that a child should not only get what he is fitted for, but should get the best training possible, a training not only of the memory but of the mind, of the body, of character.

Until the financial condition of the province improves it will not be possible to put into practice at once many of the proposals which have been adumbrated in the preceding paragraphs. But, though progress may be slow, the public has a right to know what is the goal aimed at and how it will be reached. A tentative programme has, therefore, been drawn up to indicate how Government propose to attack the problems of education in Bengal:—

(1) Creation of a Board of Secondary Education.

(2) Transformation of the existing system of primary schools into one of four-class four-teacher schools with a revised syllabus.

(3) Reorganisation and extension of the system of teacher training both for primary and for secondary schools.

(4) Reorganisation of the inspectorate for primary schools.

(5) Insistence on the provision and maintenance of arrangements for healthy extra-academic activities in all Government and aided secondary schools and the withdrawal of grants from schools which do not fulfil these conditions within a fixed time.

(6) Provision of a "vocational" side to the instruction in secondary schools and in the highest classes in primary schools.

(7) Survey of secondary schools with the ultimate object of the establishment of schools where they are necessary, and the consolidation or amalgamation of schools in "overschooled" areas.

(8) Transformation of middle English schools in rural areas to middle vernacular schools.

(9) Co-ordination of the work of maktabs and primary schools, and of madrasahs and secondary schools.

(10) Introduction of some form of religious or moral instruction in schools.

(11) Legislation, if necessary, to prevent wastage in primary schools.

(12) Institution of final examinations at the end of the primary and middle stages.

(13) Provision of craft classes at the end of the primary and middle stages.

(14) Enlargement of the scope of the village school to serve as a village welfare centre in co-operation with other departments and utilisation of the Inspecting Staff for this work.

(15) Better arrangements for the medical inspection of children.

(16) Revision of curriculum on the lines previously indicated.

47. Principles underlying proposals.—The proposals which Government are making are based on two generally recognised facts: first, that the real objects of the different stages of education have been till now confused or neglected, so that it has become necessary to envisage and define them afresh and organise each stage with reference to its object; and, secondly, that the quality of the instruction now given is so unsatisfactory that in many cases it does more harm than good and the youth of the province is being defrauded of its rights. These are the facts which have dictated the proposals and by which they have to be judged. Government have no desire whatever to make the commodity of education more expensive or to restrict the supply; on the contrary, they are proposing to offer a wider variety, a better distribution, so that every boy may be able to obtain what is best adapted to his capacity and best fits him to serve the country, and, at the same time, to improve the quality of the product.

48. Government believe that the proposals, if adopted, will remove or mitigate the chief evils and weaknesses of the existing educational system. The problem of the large numbers of unfit pupils in schools and colleges will be solved, first, by the ruralisation of the primary and middle vernacular schools which will keep the average village boy in the village; secondly, by the provision of alternative courses at the different stages in the vocational, technical and professional institutions; thirdly, by the organisation of each stage of general education as more or less complete in itself; lastly, by better teaching in the school itself and by more individual care and attention. The problem of the large numbers of bad schools will be solved partly by a better and more unified scheme of control and by the grant of recognition and aid only to schools for which there is a need and which are efficient. Government will give more generous grants, but only to institutions which have a reasonable number of pupils in each class, an adequate and well-paid staff and arrangements for extra academic activities. Scholarships will be open only to pupils from such schools and will be tenable only in such schools.

49. The problem of unemployment among the educated classes will probably be simplified by the diversion of large numbers of boys unfit for higher education at different stages and by the increased provision of craft classes. The problem of political terrorism will be mitigated by more adequate control over schools, by greater facilities for and insistence on games and outdoor activities, by the more vigorous exertion of the influence of teachers over their pupils, and generally by providing healthy outlets for the energy and idealism of boys; and, in another way, by the reduction of unemployment.

50. There are other matters to which Government are giving their careful consideration: these include the development of female education, the reorganisation of the college system and the special problems affecting the Muslim community and the scheduled castes and educationally backward classes. It has not been found possible to deal with these questions in this Resolution, but Government hope to formulate their proposals in these spheres as early as possible.

The early establishment at Rajshahi College of an Agricultural Institute with the help of the endowment of the late Kumar Basanta Kumar Roy will provide an interesting experiment in the development of farm work in combination with a scientific laboratory training. With the assistance of the Ministry of Agriculture, schemes have been drawn up for training in dairy work including preparation of butter, cheese, etc., poultry upbringing and horticulture; the latter, it is proposed, should comprise, among other things, the growing of garden produce, and the preparation of such things as syrups, jams, etc., from fruit. Besides those who join the Institute as full-time pupils, students of the college, will be encouraged to employ their spare time in taking courses at the Institute.

The Government College at Krishnagar with its extensive grounds is another obvious place for such experimental work, and the establishment of a Government fruit research institute in Nadia district points to training in fruit-farming as the natural adjunct for the college. There are other colleges in Bengal where agricultural and vocational works can be taken up, provided public opinion gives sympathetic response to the new line of educational activities.

51. Public opinion invited.—Government believe that a thorough overhauling of the whole system of education has long been overdue. The defects and weaknesses they have sketched are far-reaching and every day become more threatening. The time has come for a well-considered policy and for vigorous action. Government have put forward the tentative scheme outlined above, but they recognise that it is not possible to carry out any scheme of educational improvement, unless it is supported by public opinion and has borne the test of scrutiny by educationists. Government, therefore, do not intend to proceed further with the proposals until those interested in the future of education and the welfare of the province have had an opportunity of expressing their opinion on them. Government will give the most careful consideration to any criticism and any alternative proposals that may be brought to their notice.

Such opinions should reach the Secretary, Department of Education, Government of Bengal, on or before September 30th, 1935.

Order—Ordered that the resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette with a view to elicit public opinion thereon.
